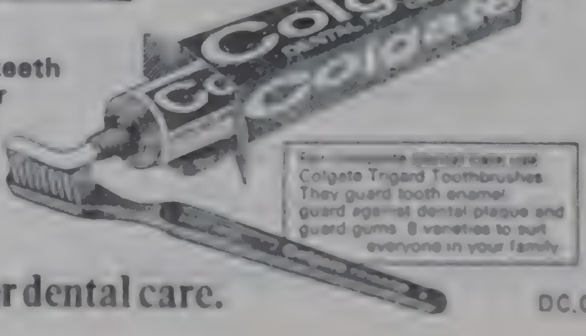
Colgate's unique active foam reaches deep to remove dangerous food particles and bacteria.

The result: attractive white teeth, fresh breath confidence, protection against decay.

For cleaner, fresher breath and whiter teeth more people buy Colgate than any other toothpaste in the world!



For complete dental care use Colgate Trigard Toothbrushes. They guard tooth enamel, guard against dental plaque and guard gums. 8 varieties to suit everyone in your family.

Now, Engineering Components in Fibreglass Reinforced Thermoplastics

Now, Fibreglass reinforces all thermoplastics—Polystyrene, Polypropylene, Nylon, Polycarbonate, Polyethylene, ABS and others—to give you the latest engineering material, Fibreglass Reinforced Thermoplastics (FTP).

Special industrial plastics are expensive and, often, difficult to obtain. General-purpose unreinforced plastics are good enough only for consumer use. Now, FTPs enable moulding of engineering components not feasible in plastics so far.

Fibreglass Reinforced Thermoplastics, now manufactured in India

- are far stronger than other engineering plastics
- replace metal parts economically
- are as easy to process as other plastics.

How FTPs score over other materials:

- Lower cost—faster production and no finishing...less expensive than metals, volume-for-volume
- Superior mechanical and creep properties—thinner, lighter and stronger sections possible... shorter moulding cycles, speedier production...long, maintenance-free performance
- Better thermal properties—improved heat distortion temperature and lower coefficient of linear thermal expansion
- Improved electrical properties—higher arc resistance and good dielectric strength
- Excellent resistance to chemical as well as environmental corrosion
- Lower shrinkage—consistent quality
- Greater flexibility in design and production—one-piece moulding eliminates assembly

Some popular applications of FTPs:

Textile: Dye bath spools, bobbins, pirns, shuttles

Electricals & Electronics: Switch boxes, coil forms, circuit breaker parts, motor cooling fans, airconditioner fans and blowers, motor end-covers, power tool housings

Automotive: Battery cases, radiator grilles, instrument panels, water pumps, radiator fans

General: Chairs, luggage, sports goods, rifle and pistol butts, business machine covers, door and window hinges, watch cases, radio & TV cabinets, water meter housings, needle bearing cages

DISC SPRINGS

Hivel disc springs save space in assemblies. They allow alteration of spring performance by addition or removal of single disc spring as desired, and provide load-deflection according to design requirements. Special features include self-damping, better shock absorption and energy dissipation. It is reported that the springs replace stretch bolts, at lower costs and space, and preload and eliminate noise and sideplay in ball bearings. They are free from deformation or fatigue under normal loads.

Largest manufacturers in India of R. C. C. Pipes known as ' HUME PIPES ' and allied products, HUME STEEL Pipes, WELDED STEEL Pipes and STEEL PENSTOCKS, PRESTRESSED CONCRETE Pipes and Poles, R. C. C. POLES, NO-JOINT CONCRETE Pipes Cast-in-Situ, PRESTRESSED MONOBLOCK CONCRETE SLEEPERS, etc., etc.

HUME PIPES : Extensively used for Water Supply, Sewerage, Drainage, Irrigation, Culverts, Well-Sinking, etc.

ALLIED PRODUCTS : Concrete Half Rounds, Channels, Water Tanks, R. C. C. Septic Tanks, Dust Bins, Sentry Cabins, Telephone Booths, Housing for Latrines, Policeman Cabins, Cattle-Troughs, Pillars, etc. Also R.C.C. Piles and ventilating shafts.

HUME STEEL PIPES : Hume Steel Shells Lined and Outcoated with cement concrete which are manufactured as per ISI 1916, are known as Hume Steel Pipes and are exclusively used as High Pressure Mains for Water Supply Projects.

WELDED STEEL PIPES : Extensively used for Gas mains, Tunnelling and for high pressure Water mains. We recently supplied Steel Pipes (nearly 45,000 tonnes, Dia. of pipes is 2500 mm to 3650 mm.) to Bombay Municipal Corporation for its Upper Vaitarna Water Supply Project.

STEEL PENSTOCKS : Pioneers in the manufacture of Steel Penstocks for Hydro Electric Projects ; Penstocks varying in diameters from 600 mm to 5,500 mm of 10 mm to 56 mm thickness are supplied by this Organisation for important schemes using various types of steel such as Mild Steel, High Tensile Steel, extra high tensile steel quenched and tempered.

Penstock factory at Hadapsar (Pune) is fully equipped with the latest machinery to meet the increasing needs of Penstocks in the country. From this central factory, the Company has supplied over 35,000 tonnes of Steel Penstocks for the above schemes and also for Balimela Hydro Electric Project in Orissa State, and Pressure Shaft Lining of Koyna Stage III Works, Yamuna Steel Lining Works, U.P. State and Loktak Hydro Electric Project in Manipur State which are at present in progress.

IHP Prestressed Pipes, generally manufactured as per ISI 784, are built with compressed concrete for greater strength, to bear internal pressures and to withstand external ones. In the Prestressed Pipe process, High tensile steel wire, under controlled tension, is wound around a core pipe of concrete, thus inducing a designed circumferential precompression in the concrete core pipe. The core pipe is precompressed longitudinally by high tensile steel wires. This method of construction is now used over a very wide range of pipe diameters and design pressures. Prestressed concrete Pipe processes are widely used by major overseas manufacturers. Since 1945 more than 160 kms. of pipes are in service in Australia. In India, IHP has so far supplied about 600 kms. of these pipes. The projects in progress are Water Supply Schemes at Delhi, Pune, Karwar and Tuticorin. 144 kms. pipeline work for Indore and Calcutta Water Supply is recently undertaken by us.

NO-JOINT CONCRETE PIPES : The Company have the patent rights for the NO-JOINT Concrete Pipes cast-in-situ. To complete storm water drains or sewerage scheme with standard non-pressure precast pipes or other conventional methods such as masonry conduits, a long period is required for either manufacture, curing, transporting, laying in case of precast pipes or constructing the masonry conduit manually. No-Joint Concrete Pipes are machine-cast-in-situ in ready formation, reducing either the number of operations in the work or manual labour or technical difficulties in executing the work. This speeds up the work considerably with a saving in time and cost. Major projects executed at Delhi and Chandigarh.

PRESTRESSED CONCRETE POLES : These Poles are manufactured for Transmission lines both for High Tension and Low Tension lines. R.C.C. Poles also are manufactured and are largely used as Lamp Posts in all the cities.

PRESTRESSED MONOBLOCK CONCRETE SLEEPERS : Are manufactured for the Indian Railways for laying them under Railway tracks.

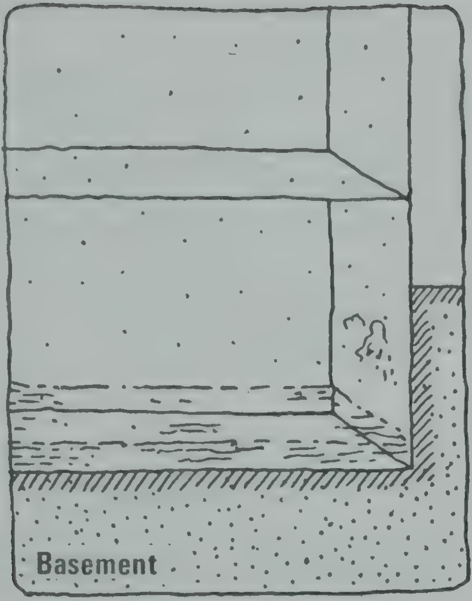
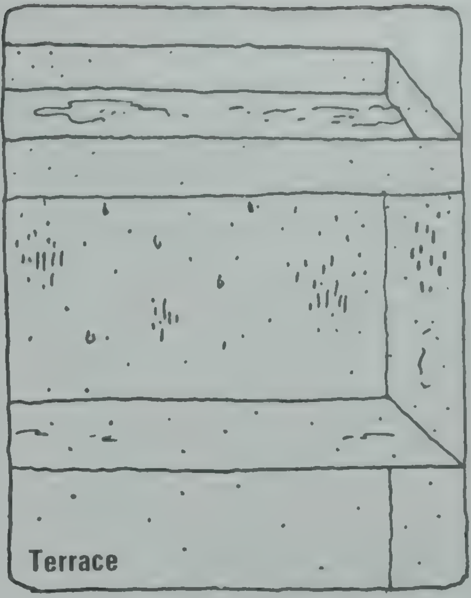
A Structure Leaking is Like An Umbrella With Holes.





Well, it is easy to mend an umbrella. But not so a structure. It needs an understanding, care, planning, expertise and experience to handle this. We provide these and much more.

Leakage has various geneses. It could be owing to heavy showers, retention of water, non-drainage or poor drainage of water, permeable surface, defective construction, inferior quality building materials, thawing of building materials etc. But most of all, it is the natural elements at work that cause the leakage and seepage problems. Despite the best materials used and skilled construction, the cavities, voids honeycombs and cracks are formed. Causes are many. Solution is one : WATERPROOFING.

And waterproofing requires only a specialist to render it. So that its planning and execution can be performed to utmost precision with highest attention on details.

As a permanent solution, cement-based waterproofing treatment like LIKPROOF has been used for a number of years. LIKPROOF is not just another waterproofing compound, but a process. It is a system. The LIKPROOF treatments are designed to last for the life-time of the structure under 10 to 25 years of free rectification guarantee against leakage.

Our service and your patronage has put us on the approved list of waterproofing specialist contractors with the Municipal Corporation of Greater Bombay, State PWD, Maharashtra Housing Board, Central PWD, P & T Department, Bombay Port Trust, Air Port Authority, LIC, CIDCO etc. We are also working with several reputed architects, consulting engineers, construction companies and builders.

AMENDMENT OF THE CONSTITUTION : [ART. 368] The extent of the power to amend the Constitution and whether all parts of the Constitution were amendable was the subject of several decisions of the Supreme Court. In the last decision, popularly known as the "Fundamental Rights Case" the Supreme Court has held that the power to amend applies to even the Fundamental Rights (which it had previously held to be not amendable) but that Parliament could not amend the "basic features" of the Constitution. ART. 368 was itself amended by the 24th Constitution Amendment which was challenged in the Fundamental Rights case and that amendment was upheld by the Supreme Court. The new ART. 368 contains the procedure for amendment. The amendment can be done only by the introduction of a Bill for that purpose in either the Lok Sabha or the Rajya Sabha and the Bill has to be passed by each House by a majority of the total membership of that House and by a majority of not less than two-thirds of the members of that House voting and after the President has assented to it the Constitution will stand amended. The 42nd Constitutional Amendment has amended Art. 368 to provide that no amendment of the Constitution made before or after the 42nd Amendment shall be questioned in any court on any ground, and further, that Parliament's power to amend the Constitution under Art. 368 shall be without any limitation.

Section 59 of the Constitution (Forty-second Amendment) Act, 1976 has conferred power on the President to remove by an order, any difficulty that may arise during the period of transition from the old provisions of the Constitution to the new provisions as amended.

Amendments made to the Constitution: Till 1977, 43 amendments had been made to the provisions of the Constitution. In some of the recent amendments many Acts of Parliament and the State Legislatures have also been inserted in the Ninth Schedule (See above Fundamental Rights) to protect them from challenge in a Court of Law on the grounds that they violate the Fundamental Rights.

PHYSIOGRAPHY

THE vast size of India needs no stressing. Reaching from 8° 4′ to 37° 6′ North latitude, and from 68° 7′ to 97° 25′ East longitude, it measures some 3,220 kms. from south to north and some 2,980 kms. from west to east, and covers an area of 3,276,141 sq. kms. (including Sikkim).

Physical Features : India is built on a grand scale. Its physical features fall into three well-marked regions, each of them vast in dimensions : first, the great Himalayan mountain system ; secondly, the Indo-Gangetic plain ; and thirdly the plateaux of peninsular India, the Deccan.

The Himalayan system lies between the plateau of Tibet and the Indo-Gangetic Plain, and consists essentially of a complex series of young fold-mountains arranged in more or less parallel ranges which now combine in a mountain-knot, then divide to leave room for intermont valleys like those of Kashmir and Kulu. The highest range, the Great Himalaya, consists of a whole series of giant peaks like Nanda Devi (24,645 feet), separated by deep chasms cut by rivers and glaciers and, occasionally, by high passes over which run the immemorial trade-routes between India and Tibet. South of the Great Himalaya lie other high ranges, and nearest to the plains there are the Sivaliks, the youngest member of the series geologically, which present a massive rampart to the south, broken only by valleys through which run great snow-fed rivers like the Sutlej (a tributary of the Indus), the Yamuna and Kosi (tributaries of the Ganga) and the Ganga itself. At the eastern-most end of the Indian Himalaya the ranges are breached in a spectacular gorge the Brahmaputra, which rises in Tibet. East and sou of the Brahmaputra gorge, the fold-ranges trend genera southward, and form the wild hilly country of Nagala and other areas on the frontiers of India and Burma.

The Indo-Gangetic Plain occupies what must on have been a hollow between the Himalayas and the o rock plateaux of the peninsula ; a hollow that has b infilled by alluvium brought down by the great Himalay rivers and, to a lesser extent, by those flowing into from the Deccan, like the Chambal and Sone. If one includ the level ground along the Brahmaputra in Assam, t Plain as a whole is over 2,400 kms. long, and genera 200-300 kms. wide (rather narrow in Assam). Here is o of the world's really large Plains. To the casual observ it is one great monotony, but actually it has considerab variety, of two kinds : first, the gradual transition fr the dune-covered desert-plain of Rajasthan, throug the rich, cultivated alluvium of Uttar Pradesh to t swampy Sundarbans along the seaward edge of the Beng delta ; and, secondly, more intimate local variety — f example, the contrast of deeply-gullied terraces of o alluvium and of low-lying flood-plain where the Chamb runs into the Yamuna below Agra.

The dominant landform in the Deccan (that is, in penin sular India) is the plateau, the great stretch of [illegible] country at some considerable elevation above sea leve level, in the Maidan of Karnataka or the black earth platea of Malwa (or the detached plateau which forms Meghalaya

Most of these plateaux, indeed, almost all of the Deccan, are built of hard old crystalline rock, with here and there ancient sediments. Here lies most of India's mineral wealth, especially iron and manganese ore (with coal in down-faulted basins in the north-east Deccan). In Maharashtra there was a great outpouring of basalt which overlies the crystalline base and gives rise to characteristic stepped landforms. Across the plateaux roll the great east-flowing Deccan rivers, the Mahanadi, Godavari, Krishna and Kaveri, with their tributaries. Each forms a notable delta where it reaches the sea. The Narmada and Tapti, on the other hand, flow westward to the Gulf of Cambay north of Bombay. The great plateaux end in massive mural scarps like those overlooking the Indo-Gangetic Plains or the even more impressive Western Ghats (the so-called Eastern Ghats are puny, broken things in comparison). There are also scarps with the appearance of mountain ranges where one plateau-level descends to another within the Deccan.

Climate : The vastness of India and the variety of its relief are reflected in the wide range of climatic types to be found within it. In the Plains, the desert of Rajasthan contrasts with the humidity of Bengal. The winter snows of the Himalaya contrast with the nearly equatorial heat of Kerala and Tamil Nadu. The last two contrast with each other, for Kerala is wet, with a short dry season, and Tamil Nadu is dry, with a long dry season when much of India is having rain, during the south-west monsoon.

If one seeks a unifying factor in the climate of India, it is to be found in the dominance of the monsoon : that is, in a great seasonal reversal of wind and weather. For most of India except Tamil Nadu, the south-west monsoon of about June to September is a period of rain, very heavy in Bombay and Calcutta, torrentially heavy in Meghalaya (where Cherrapunji has the reputation of being the earth's wettest spot), light by the time Delhi is reached, even lighter (and highly variable) in the desert. The north-east monsoon of 'winter' is a period of dry weather over most of India except Tamil Nadu, which then has its rainy season ; and of cold weather, becoming hot as the south-west monsoon season approaches, in north India.

Vegetation and Soils : Most of India must once, it is thought, have been covered with forest whose nature reflected principally variations in rainfall (or of altitude in the Himalaya) : forest that ranged from tropical rain forest in Kerala through tropical moist deciduous forest in the eastern Plains and north-east Deccan to thorn scrub in semi-arid interior Maharashtra. Forest reserves to some extent preserve this pristine vegetation, though usually in a form modified by man, acting as a destructive agent (for instance, turning thorn forest to poor savana-jungle) or as a constructive agent (replacing 'natural' vegetation with pure strands of desired species like sal or sandal-wood). In the Plains, the east coast deltas and western coastal strips, in Tamil Nadu and much of Maharashtra, little 'natural' vegetation of any sort survives.

Human activity over the centuries (indeed, for millennia) has replaced 'natural' vegetation with crops : the kharif rice and rabi wheat of much of the Plains (and, of course, other crops beside, like sugar-cane and mustard) ; the jowar and bajra of the drier parts of the Deccan, except where irrigation has brought in wheat, or rice, or sugar-cane ; the tea of Assam ; the tea and coffee of Kerala and of the hills north of it ; the coconut of the coastal fringes of the South. So, too, the teeming wild life of India, dependent as it is on forest cover, has been fighting a losing battle against man. There is now concern over the survival of a number of species, notably the lion (confined to the Gir forest in Saurashtra), the tiger, the elephant and the rhinoceros. But a number of species of deer are still relatively common, and bird life is generally abundant.

Population (also see Chapter on Population) : India is the world's second most populous country. The 1971 Census indicated the total population was 547,949,809, an increase of 24·57 per cent since the 1961 Census. It is not surprising that, although there are great variations between one region and another, pressure of population on the land has become excessive, especially in the Plains, the east coast deltas and Tamil Nadu.

A TOURIST'S GUIDE

INDIA has three major seasons: winter, summer and the monsoon.

The winter months (November-February) are pleasant throughout India with bright sunny days. In the northern plains, the minimum temperature at times drops steeply and there is snowfall in the hills. In Maharashtra and the south and in eastern India, however, December and January are pleasantly cool, never really cold.

The summer months (April–June) are hot in most parts of India, and it is during this season that hill resorts such as Simla, Mussoorie, Naini Tal, Kulu and Kashmir Valleys, Darjeeling, Shillong, Ootacamund, Kodaikanal, Pachmarhi and Mount Abu provide cool retreats. (See "Meteorology" for average temperatures and rainfall.)

The south-west monsoon usually breaks about the beginning of June on the west coast and reaches elsewhere later. With the exception of the south-eastern areas, India receives the major share of its rainfall between June and September. The south-eastern areas receive most of the rainfall from the north-east monsoon between November and January.

Clothing: In northern India, where evening and night temperatures drop steeply in winter, woollen clothing is necessary from the middle of November to the middle of February. Winter in other parts of the country is mild and tropical clothing will be sufficient. For those visiting the hill resorts during this time heavy woollens are essential.

During the summer months, only light tropical and cotton clothing are comfortable. Visitors to the hill resorts, however, should carry light woollens.

Medical Facilities: In all the cities and towns there are State-managed and private hospitals and dispensaries. The services of highly qualified specialists and consultants are available in places like Delhi, Bombay, Calcutta, Madras and other large cities. Some of the chemists offer round-the-clock service. (See "Hospitals" in general index for full list.)

Foreign Exchange: Under the revised rules of the Government of India all foreigners, including those of Indian origin, are required to pay their hotel bills in foreign currency. For details please enquire at nearest Government of India Tourist Office.

The official rates of exchange are as follows: £1 approx. to Rs. 15·28; U.S. $1 equal to Rs. 8·34. The actual buying and selling rates, however, differ slightly from these rates.

Indian Currency: No Indian currency can be brought in or taken out of the country except rupee travellers' cheques.

Electric Current: Voltage in most places is 220–240 A.C., 50 cycles, though a few areas have D.C. supply as well. The tourists are advised to check the voltage before using an electric shaver or other electrical gadgets.

ACCOMMODATION : (See "Hotels" in general index for full list.)

There are modern western-style hotels in all large cities as well as at popular tourist centres. These have been classified on the internationally accepted star system. Hotel charges in India are moderate compared to those of many other countries.

At tourist centres where hotel accommodation is not adequate, there are travellers lodges/tourist bungalows constructed and run by the India Tourism Development Corporation, a Government of India Undertaking, or by the State Governments which offer comfortable lodging and meals.

House boats fully furnished and staffed are moored to the banks of the river Jhelum and Dal and Nagin lakes in Kashmir and are known for their comfort and convenience.

Many centres of tourist interest in India are situated in out-of-the-way places. At most of these tourist centres there are Government owned rest houses (semi-hotel establishments) where tourists can stay. These are all close to national highways and convenient for tourists travelling by road. There are more than 70 such low-income group rest houses and bungalows which provide cheap hostel facilities to low-income group people. It is advisable to make reservations in these rest houses sufficiently in advance.

Youth Hostel accommodation is generally available in the hostels of schools and colleges in most places of tourist interest during vacations only, in summer from May to July and in winter during December. However, there is a Youth Hostel in Delhi open throughout the year. Organised camping facilities exist in New Delhi at the Bharat Scouts and Guides ground, Near Humayun's Tomb, New Delhi.

The Department of Tourism, Government of India have constructed Youth Hostels at: Amritsar, Aurangabad, Bhopal, Dalhousie, Darjeeling, Gandhinagar, Hyderabad, Jaipur, Madras (Indiranagar), Nainital, Panaji, Panchkula (Haryana), Patnitop, Puri, Trivandrum. PLACES OF TOURIST INTEREST IN CENTRAL REGION

Sanchi: It is 45 kms. (28 miles) from Bhopal, the Capital of Madhya Pradesh. Sanchi was not directly associated with the life of Buddha, but grew to be an active centre of Buddhism during the time of Ashoka (3rd Century B.C.). The magnificent and relatively well preserved monuments for which Sanchi is famous are all situated atop a hill overlooking woods where "Flame of the Forest" trees bloom fiery red in the summer. The most imposing of the monuments is the Great Stupa (about 150–100 B.C.)—huge semi-circular structure, surrounded by profusely carved gateways and railings depicting scenes from the Buddha's life. In the history of Indian art, the Sanchi stupa occupies a very important place, for it has influenced Hindu and Buddhist sculpture for many centuries that followed.

Khajuraho: Nearly 402 kms. (250 miles) south east of Delhi (flying time 2 hrs. 15 mts.) are the erotic temples of Khajuraho in Madhya Pradesh, belonging to about 950 to 1150 A.D. They are ranked among the world's topmost tourist attractions, and represent some of the most exquisite specimens of Hindu architecture and sculpture in medieval India. The carving in the temples still seem to breathe a life and passion of their own and their beautiful proportions, the vibrant texture of the carvings which enrich their walls and their impressive size testify to the glories of the master builders of those days.

The impressive Howrah Bridge leads to the Botanical Gardens and to Belur Math, the seat of the Ramakrishna Mission.

(160 feet) high, contains a colossal gilded image of the Buddha in the earth-touching posture symbolising the event of enlightenment. The temple was probably built in the 4th century A.D. and restored several times subsequently. Bodh Gaya is 11·26 kms. (7 miles) by road from Gaya railway station which is connected with Patna by rail (92 kms. or 57 miles).

The quaint Buddhist shrines and monasteries, the happy carefree faces of the hill-folk and above all the picturesque scenery all around will abide in the visitor's memory.

The Kanchenjunga can always be seen, while the Everest, the highest peak in the world, is visible only on a clear day. Other favourite walks for the visitor are to Birch Hill and Lebong. The former is a reserve forest with an excellent park. Here the visitor will find oak, chestnut, cherry, maple, birch and alder.

Not far from the Birch Hill Park is the Himalayan Mountaineering Institute which provides training in mountaineering in the Himalayas. Mr. Tenzing Norkay, who climbed the Everest along with Sir Edmund Hillary, is associated with the Institute. The Observatory Hill, above the church, is known to the Buddhists as 'Rdo-rje-gling', 'the place of the Dorje', the mystic thunderbolt of the lamaist religion. It is from this that Darjeeling takes its name. Hyderabad-Secunderabad : The twin city linked together by the Hussain-Sagar (lake), is the capital of Andhra Pradesh. It is a centre of Muslim culture and learning and the fifth largest city in India. Standing on the banks of the river Musi, it was till 1948 the capital of Hyderabad State of Nizam, one of the richest men in the world. The Salar Jung Museum crammed with curios from all over the world, old manuscripts, costumes and ancient weapons is a living proof of the riches. Trapezoid in shape the city is surrounded by a stone wall. At the junction of wide avenues stand the Char Minar, a stately rectangular white building with four tall minarets often referred to as the "Arc de Triomphe" of the East. It is the famous landmark of Hyderabad and curiously made more famous by a brand of cigarettes of the same name said to be one of the strongest, cheapest and most satisfying kind on the market. To the south of Charminar lies the Chaumahalla Palace and to the west the Mecca Masjid, the principal mosque of Hyderabad. Built entirely of stone and richly decorated in coloured and polished plaster it boasts of an interior that can hold ten thousand worshippers at a time.

The Falaknuma Palace, the Osmania University and the beautifully laid out river gardens are some of the recent additions to the city that blend well with the old.

The tombs situated 8 kms. (5 miles) out of the city, are of Qutbshahi kings who ruled in the 16th and 17th centuries. Next to it is the massive Golconda Fort. It is surrounded by a strongly built wall of solid blocks of granite, with eighty-seven bastion at the angles, on which there are still some of the old guns. Now in ruins it was once famous as the diamond mart for the nearby mines.

IN NORTHERN REGION

Delhi : Like Rome, the capital of the Indian Republic, is an 'eternal city', and with a history even more chequered and ancient. In the ancient days, the city shifted its site at least seven times and the ruins of all these townships are still there for anyone to see.

There are today two Delhis — the old city of the Mughals built by Shah Jahan, the Emperor who built the Taj, and the new city built by the British in 1931. While Old Delhi evokes a distinctly oriental atmosphere, New Delhi has wide avenues and imposing office buildings. Both the cities are rich in monuments and mosques; such as the Red Fort, the Jantar Mantar Observatory, Humayun Tomb, the Parliament House, the Rashtrapati Bhavan and many more.

Agra : The city of the world famous Taj Mahal has many other historical sites of interest like the fort of the Mughals, the ruins of Fatehpur Sikri — a city built by Akbar — a Mughal Emperor. It also has numerous and fabulous tombs of eminent personalities. Special tourist bus and trains run from New Delhi for a day's journey.

Chandigarh : Now a Union Territory and also the capital of the Punjab and Haryana, the youngest of the Indian capital cities, it is a striking example of modern town planning conceived by Le Corbusier and Maxwell Fry. Advanced styling is adapted to the local climatic needs making it an unique city in the whole of India.

Amritsar : City in the Punjab, is the religious capital of the Sikhs. It was founded in 1577 around a sacred pool, from which the city takes its name "Pool of Nectar". The Golden Temple stands in the centre of this pool. The marble based temple has bronze sides and dome which are heavily covered with pure gold leaf. These reflect the tropical sun into the still waters of the pool, illuminating it and creating an atmosphere of awe and respect. There are a few more of the Sikh and Hindu temples worth seeing, but none surpass the peaceful aura of the Golden Temple.

Almora : In U.P. (133 kms. or 83 miles from Kathgodam Railway Station) is the main town in Kumaon Hills. Perched at an elevation of 1,706·88 m (5,600 ft.) it is about two miles in length like a saddle, and is said to have been founded four hundred years ago by Raja Kalyan Chand. Almora has moderate rainfall, temperate climate, the temperature seldom rising above 31°C (88°F), even during the summer days, and comparative freedom from fog. Within easy distance of Almora are many Himalayan peaks — Seehee Debi, Bandnee Debi and Binsar being the chief ones. Binsar Hill also known as Jhandi Dhar is only 21 kms. (13 miles) from Almora and the bridle path leading to it, passes through enchanting jungle scenery.

Accommodation : Available at the Government circuit house for which an advance booking has to be made.

Pindari Glacier : Can be reached from Almora at a distance of 120 kms. (75 miles) in eight stages, attaining an altitude of 3,963 m. to 4,267 m. (13,000 to 14,000 ft.). The most suitable time for this trip is either May–June or September–October.

Naini Tal : Hill station also in Kumaon Hills, is attractively situated around a mountain lake 1,935·48 m. (6,350 ft.) above sea level. A shady avenue skirts the lake. On either side of the lake rise lofty hills dotted with beautiful villas and bungalows. There are a number of picnic spots around from where one can have a magnificent view of the snow peaked Himalayan mountain range. Nainital District has a chain of lakes lying close to one another, the prettiest amongst them being lake Naini itself. They are a veritable paradise for the angler. Besides fishing, one could also do swimming, yachting, boating, riding, skating and trekking.

Kashmir : The Great Mughals, who were connoisseurs of the good things of life, described Kashmir as 'the earthly paradise'.

Indeed, it is difficult to imagine anything more lovely. It is a vast, rich, green valley criss-crossed by streams and rivulets and encircled by stupendous snow-clad mountains — 'an emerald set in pearls'. Nature has adorned it with lakes of limpid waters, bubbling springs by hill-sides, upland pastures and springy meadows. Clothing the valley is a vast expanse of paddy fields and forests alive with a variety of birds and animals. To enhance its natural beauty, pleasure gardens were laid out by the Great Mughals at many places in Kashmir.

Here you can stay in luxury in a floating hotel called the 'house-boat'; glide gently on the placid waters of the Dal Lake in a shikara; play golf on perhaps the world's highest golf-course; enjoy a variety of water sports; or, if you are adventurous, go trekking or hunting. Also, you can take back home some of the exquisitely embroidered, carved, chiselled or painted handicrafts for which Kashmir is known the world over.

Srinagar : Is a central place from where excursions and pleasure trips to all parts of the valley can be planned. It is itself a picturesque place with lakes, gardens and monuments along the river Jhelum.

Srinagar is an ancient city believed to have been first built by Emperor Asoka in the third century B.C. The Jhelum flows through the heart of the city, dividing it into two parts which are connected by nine bridges. A trip down the river in a swiftly gliding shikara would give the visitor a feel of the city's picturesque balconies, busy ghats, mosques and temples.

Gulmarg : Is about 46 kms. (29 miles) from Srinagar, a huge grassy bowl, known for its golf-course. The last 6·4 kms. (4 miles) of the journey are covered either by a pony or on foot and, with special permission, by jeep also. At the end of the climb, the visitor is rewarded with a magnificent view of Gulmarg which has numerous walks and picnic spots.

Pahalgam : In the lovely Lidder Valley, about 97 kms. (60 miles) from Srinagar is known for its exquisite scenery, springs and streams. It is also the base for treks to higher points like Amarnath and Sheshnag.

Kulu and Kangra Valleys : Well-known for its picturesque landscapes and historic temples, lies in Himachal Pradesh. 33·7 kms. (21 miles) from Kangra is the famous temple of Jwala-Mukhi, built up against a rocky cliff. An inflammable gas issues forth from a cleft in the cliff, creating an atmosphere of reverence. Kangra has several tea gardens while Kulu is well-known for the fruit orchards. The winding narrow roads flanked and shaded by pink blossomed apricot trees, huge rhododendrons and blue and purple iris in different seasons lead to the hilltops that look down on a gorgeous alpine scenery. These valleys are favourite vacation places as the summer is never uncomfortably hot and offer sports like golf, tennis, swimming, hiking and trout fishing.

Here the simple and unsophisticated people are a contented lot with few needs and fewer worries. These happy-go-lucky people hold fairs and festivals throughout the year and it would be wise to check and be there on a festival.

Allahabad : (Also called Prayag): City in U.P. situated at the confluence of the Ganga, the Jamuna and the unseen Saraswati. The confluence is the holiest bathing place for Hindus. Every 12 years, Kumbha Mela (religious fair) is held attracting over four million pilgrims during the four weeks. The last one was held in February 1965. A smaller fair occurs every six years — Ardha Kumbhi. The old Mughal fort contains an underground temple where well carved images are seen and the pilgrims worship at a small tree taking it to be the Eternal Banyan Tree (Akshaya Vata). 104·6 kms. (65 miles) from Allahabad is Kosambi, where the ruins of an ancient capital are being excavated.

Banaras : Now known as Varanasi, is more than a holy city of the Hindus; it represents a way of life. For more than a thousand years this centre of Hindu pilgrimage has lived a rich life haloed by tradition on the banks of the great river Ganga which reaches Varanasi in a graceful curve. For more than a thousand years great masses of people have come here from every corner of the country to receive spiritual sustenance.

The oldest city in the country and perhaps the oldest living city in the world, Varanasi has about 1,500 temples besides countless minor shrines which are thronged with pilgrims all the year round.

Sarnath, a Buddhist centre with many architectural ruins, is about 9·6 kms. (6 miles) from Varanasi. The Buddha preached his first sermon here.

Jaipur : Capital of Rajasthan State, it was planned and built by an astronomer-prince in the 18th century, when there were few planned cities even in Europe. "I have seen Jaipur, and now I can die" was how Max Lerner, a famed traveller, felt after having an eyeful of this beautiful pink city. Comparing it with Venice and Paris, he named Jaipur along with them as the three most beautiful cities of the world. But he found something more in Jaipur — a dream quality about the fabric of its delicate gossamer structure, its lattice work and pink terracotta. This picturesque city — a fantasy in stone — set in the heart of Rajasthan is encircled by rugged hills crowned with medieval fortresses reminiscent of the days when the valiant Rajputs fought fierce battles and long drawn out wars to save their beloved land from invading alien hordes. The city palace in the centre of Jaipur is now a museum of Rajput & Mughal miniature paintings, an armoury and rare manuscripts. The Hawai Mahal Palace of the winds — has so many windows with perforated screens that the breeze sweeps through them. Maharaja Jai Singh who built the city in 1727 was also a great astronomer. He built an observatory with instruments of his own design. About 11·2 kms. (7 miles) away is Amber palace perched on the slopes of a steep hill and surrounded by a lake. A majestic elephant takes the visitor up the slopes and into this mysterious palace that possesses the world's best chamber of mirrors. Jaipur pottery, brassware, sculpture, ivory and sandalwood work and jewellery have enjoyed a great reputation from ancient times.

Udaipur : In Rajasthan, is the romantic city of lakes with island palaces. The sprawling marble palaces with coloured glass of amber and pale jade reflect in the steel blue waters of the lake Pichola. Hundreds of green pa lend colour to the early morning skies. Surrounded by wooded hills the city is aptly called the 'City of Dreams'. The Jag Nivas palace with fountains and gardens and apartments with courts, has now been turned into the Lake Palace Hotel and offer the visitor a unique and unforgettable stay.

About 112·6 kms. (70 miles) from Udaipur is Chittorgarh. The ruins of this abandoned capital of Mewar speak eloquently of the many grim and glorious deeds of Rajput heroism and sacrifice which have almost become a myth.

Mount Abu: In Rajasthan (3,822 ft. above sea level) is famous for its Dilwara group of Jain temples (11th-13th century A.D.). Having the most intricate and finest marble-carvings in India, these beautiful temples nestle among the lush green mango trees. Hills surround them on all sides and the scenic beauty is very enchanting. Abu is known for its variety of birds and the flowering trees in its jungles. It is reached by rail and road from Ahmedabad.

IN SOUTHERN REGION

Madras: Capital of Tamil Nadu is the gateway to a pleasant land, the city of an ancient civilization exemplified in its many monuments of the past with a rich heritage of culture. Although being carried along on the stream of progressive development yet remaining largely unspoilt, Madras is one of the more attractive cities of India. Perhaps the first claim to fame for Madras is its wonderful foreshore of fine sandy beach stretching from the harbour to the limits of the city at the Adyar river and then beyond for many miles to the south. It is a source of pride to the people, for it is considered to be the second longest beach in the world. There are delightful gardens along its whole length with many varieties of flowers.

Speaking of culture the visitor instantly feels the difference between the rest of India and the south in this city which can be the starting point for an introduction to the Dravidian culture. The many invasions of the aliens never quite reached upto the south and the pureness of this culture remains intact. The temples, the music and the dance all vibrate in its original form and one should never leave Madras without seeing a Bharat Natya dance performance. Much of the poses and stances of this dance are depicted in the sculptures of the South Indian temples.

Mahabalipuram: 59·5 kms. (37 miles) out of Madras are some of the ruins of the great Pallava Empire. The shore temple, a little gem of a shrine, stands poised on the very shore, the waves beating against it. The cave temples are store-houses of art. The so-called pagodas are carved out of rocks, in the form of temple chariots and are the chief glory of Mahabalipuram.

Conjeevaram (Kanchipuram): The city of temples, the Banaras of the South, is about 72 kms. (45 miles) to the south-west of Madras. The place is divided into three parts, Shiva Conjeevaram, Vishnu Conjeevaram and Pillayar Paliyam, a testimony to the part played by all the main Hindu religious sects in the history of the city.

There are over a thousand temples in all, amongst them is the temple of Kailasnath, believed to be 1,200 years old and contains some excellent 7th and 8th century paintings on the walls. More of these wall paintings are seen in the Vaikunthanath Perumal Temple which is also over 1,000 years old.

It is a one-day excursion trip from Madras, but one can stay at the Traveller's Lodge.

Pondicherry: 167 kms. (104 miles) by road from Madras. The atmosphere of a sleepy French provincial town still prevails here. It was returned to India in 1954 after the French rule of 250 years. The main attraction of this place is the ashram of the philosopher Aurobindo Ghose.

Auroville 'the City of Dawn' is being built on the outskirts of Pondicherry. It will be the first 'World City' where any national can have a home.

Kanya Kumari or Cape Comorin: In Tamil Nadu, named from the temple of Kumari (an attribute of Parvati) is at the southern-most tip of the Indian peninsula. Here the Arabian sea and the Bay of Bengal meet the Indian Ocean. According to a legend Siva married the Goddess Parvati, daughter of King Himalaya on the rocks where the temple now stands. Offshore are the two rocks where Swami Vivekananda sat in meditation before he left for the United States. Now on them stands a huge and imposing memorial to the Swami.

Ootacamund: Ooty for short, is a hill station in Tamil Nadu. Over 2,286 m. (7,500 ft.) above sea-level, Ooty has a temperate climate. The rainfall rarely exceeds 1,016 mm. (40 in.) so that Ooty has excellent weather throughout the year, and during the season from April to June, it ranks amongst the gayest resorts in India. It reposes in an amphitheatre surrounded by four great hills. On the slopes of the hills are residential and office buildings. At the bottom of the valley enclosed by them is Ooty's artificial lake which could pass for a natural one. Conceived by Sullivan in 1823 and meant for irrigation, it turned out to be so lovely that it was preserved for its sheer beauty. The lake provides facilities for boating and fishing. West of this are the Wenlock Downs — an expanse of undulating springy turf embellished with woods and streams. Here are also the golf-links. These downs are the home country of the Ootacamund Hunt.

The terraced Botanical Gardens, a landmark in Ootacamund, were laid out by an expert from London's Kew Gardens, over a century ago. It has many rare trees and flowering plants. Ooty's flower, fruit and vegetable shows are attended by people from all over the Nilgiris, and here the fashionable jostling with the tribal folk present a colourful spectacle.

Kodaikanal : Famous hill station on the Palni Hills in Tamil Nadu, it is about 2,343 m. (7,688 ft.) above sea-level and has a temperate climate. The place affords plenty of scope for such recreations as walking, hiking, boating, fishing, hill climbing and golf. For the more adventurous there is big game hunting. Kodaikanal is the delight of the gardener and flowers are in bloom all the year round. The long winding road up the hill reminds one of the road up to Sorento in Italy. The greenery on the way is breathtaking. The different waterfalls make Kodaikanal a truly beautiful vacation spot. A man-made lake with a three-mile shady promenade around it is the popular place in the evenings. Kodaikanal has a hint of a place somewhere on the continent with chalet-type houses perched at random on the slopes of the Palni Hills.

Cochin : In Kerala it is one of the important ports on the west coast of India and, yet it is very different than a typical commercial port. Shady lagoons, wooded islands, ancient palaces and churches are encircled by canals of palm fringed shimmering backwaters. In fact Cochin is a cluster of islands and towns linked by bridges.

In Mattancheri is the community of Jews that came to Kerala as early as the 1st Century A.D.

A side trip down the west coast to Alleppey and then on to Quilon on the backwaters, offers breathtaking scenery. Lush vegetation and palm thatched villages are dotted with churches in Portuguese colonial style.

Trivandrum : The sea-side capital of Kerala is built like Rome, on hills. Many parks and lovely buildings with their gabled roofs, stand on low hillocks, while the restful valleys below are adorned with coconut groves. Trivandrum means "the place of the sacred snake Anant". The imposing temple of Sri Padmanabhaswami is dedicated to the Hindu God Vishnu, his image reclining on Sheshnag, the enormous hooded serpent.

A long drive from Alleppey to Trivandrum via Quilon has a very picturesque scenery along the west coast of India.

IN WESTERN REGION

Bombay : Arriving by sea or by air, one is struck by its natural setting — the far-away blue outlines of the majestic Western Ghats, the calm sea dotted with fishing boats, the palm-fringed beaches and on the outskirts smoke rising from a thousand chimneys in the mill area — a reminder that Bombay is one of the largest industrial cities of the East.

A cosmopolitan city, it owes its prosperity to the industry and enterprise of its population of six million. Bombay is a city of contrasts where the rich and the poor, the educated and the illiterate, the modern and the ancient co-habit. It is the largest city in India which has grown out of seven islands. Over the years the islands merged into one another by reclamation of land from the sea.

Excursions Around Bombay: About 38·8 kms. (15 miles) to the north of the city is Juhu, the palm-fringed natural beach, ideal for bathing. Juhu has good hotels, while shacks and villas along the beach can also be rented. Bombay's picturesque lake district is only an hour's drive from the city.

Some 15 kms. (6 miles) across the Bombay harbour, on a small island are the famous cave temples of Elephanta. Five in all, these cave temples date back to the eighth century. The main cave, dedicated to Siva, has huge sculptures and panels in relief. The most striking of the images is the Maheshmurti, a 6 m. (19 ft.) high, three headed bust hewn from a single rock representing the triple aspect of the Hindu Divinity.

There are a number of rock-cut monuments around Bombay. The more well-known among them are the Kanheri group of Buddhist caves and the series of shrines and monasteries known as Karla, Bhaja and Bedsa.

Aurangabad : In Maharashtra is where Emperor Aurangzeb built a replica of the Taj, Bibi-ka-Maqbara, a mausoleum for his wife. It has its own splendour and grace quite different than the Taj.

Close to Aurangabad is Daulatabad, "City of Fortune", built in the 14th century by a Sultan of Delhi, who was mad enough to try to move here the whole population of Delhi, which is some 1,813 kms. (700 miles) away.

Ajanta-Ellora : An hour and a half's flight from Bombay is Aurangabad, the starting point of a journey to two of the world's famous rock-cut temples — Ajanta and Ellora, the most remarkable monuments of their kind in the world. These monasteries and shrines have been hewn out of living rock by generations of sculptors. Ajanta, 170 kms. (66 miles) from Aurangabad, lies in a narrow gorge and contains a breathtaking picture gallery of frescoes. It is believed that these caves were cut in stages between the 2nd century B.C. to about 7th century A.D.

The Ellora caves situated 38·8 kms. (15 miles) from Aurangabad are excavated in the face of a hill and run north to south for a mile and a quarter. The crescent-shape hill has Buddhist, Hindu and Jain cave temples with a unique collection of sculptures. These caves are about a thousand years old.

Ahmedabad : Is the second largest textile centre in India. It contains numerous monuments of the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries, amongst them are the Shaking Minarets which are architectural wonders. Mahatma Gandhi's ashram is situated on the banks of the river Sabarmati. A 45 minutes Son-et-Lumiere show brings the ashram alive giving its history and an insight into the life of Mahatma Gandhi.

Goa : Cradled among the picturesque hills of the western ghats, its panoramic beauty, its smiling green valleys and its luxuriant tropical vegetation, its quaint houses and the ruins of old and historic buildings which bring ancient splendour to life, all combine to make it an earthly paradise. Once a Portuguese possession in India, Goa has numerous beautiful beaches, where one can sun-bathe, swim or just laze away in the vast expanse of dazzling white sands fringed with swaying palm trees.

The remnants of the Portuguese civilization can be seen in the old Goa. Among the still surviving ancient Portuguese churches is the Basilica and the Convent of St. Francis Xavier, built in the 16th century, where the body of St. Francis Xavier, patron saint of Goa, is enshrined in an exquisitely carved glass and silver-casket.

Goa is easily reached from Bombay by a 75 minutes flight by the Indian Airlines.

ARECANUT INDUSTRY

LOCATION OF THE INDUSTRY

Kerala, Karnataka and Assam account for nearly 90 per cent of the total area and production. It is also cultivated to a smaller extent in Meghalaya, West Bengal, Tamil Nadu, Maharashtra, Andhra Pradesh and Goa. The State-wise break-up of the area under arecanut cultivation is given below.

No. of Persons Employed : About four million.

Ranking in the World Market : India ranks first in the world both in the area and production of arecanut. The main arecanut producing countries in the world are India, Bangladesh, Sri Lanka and Malaysia.

GENERAL

Yield Per Hectare : About 820 kgs.

Research: Pilot trials conducted have shown that fat, alco hol, etc. can be extracted and products like chewing gum tooth paste etc. can be prepared from arecanut kernel. Th liquid obtained while boiling tender nuts ('Kali') can b utilised for tanning leather. Hard board, wrapping pape cushioning materials etc. can be made out of arecanu husk. Arecanut leaf-sheath can be used for making washes, packing cases, soles and heels in shoe making Arecanut husk is also an excellent poultry litter.

A new high-yielding variety "Mangala" has bee released from the Central Plantation Crops Researc Institute's Regional Station at Vittal, South Kanara fo cultivation. This variety, an introduction from Chi gives 70 per cent more yield than that of the best local ones, besides being an early bearer.

The Directorate of Arecanut and Spices Development of the Department of Agriculture, Government of India, is situated at 1/500, Cannanore Rd., Calicut 673005, Kerala.

Marketing : There are 26 co-operative marketing societies in Kerala, Karnataka, Tamil Nadu, Maharashtra and Goa and 21 regulated markets in Karnataka, 6 in Kerala and 2 in Goa for handling the crops.

Publications : 1. Indian Arecanut, Spices & Cocoa (Quarterly Journal) brought out by the Directorate of Arecanut and Spices Development, Calicut-673005, Kerala. 2. Journal of Plantation Crops (Half-yearly) brought out by Indian Society for Plantation Crops, Central Plantation Crops Research Institute, Kasargod 670124.

AUTOMOBILE INDUSTRY

UPON independence in 1947 the Government of India decided to stop assemblies of foreign cars and encourage local manufacturers.

The automobile industry depends upon its ancillaries for the manufacture and supply of over 50 per cent of the 5,000 components that go into making an automobile.

CASHEW-NUT INDUSTRY

BRIEF HISTORY

THE cashew tree (Anacardium Occidentale), a native of South America was introduced into India by the Portuguese who planted the first saplings on the west coast during the sixteenth or seventeenth century to check soil erosion. Finding a congenial home it grew extensively and is known as 'Feringi Mango' (Feringi meaning Portuguese).

Despite its early introduction the value of the cashew-nut was discovered only in the nineteen twenties when some enterprising farmers sent the nut abroad. There was an immediate demand for the cashew kernel in raw or roasted form which marked the beginning of the cashew industry.

The cashew "apple" when ripe, is juicy and sweet and rich in vitamin C. The juice is used in the preparation of syrup, squash, jam, candy and wine.

The cashew-nut shell liquid is a brown viscous oil and is an important raw material in the manufacture of insulating varnishes, paints, typewriter rolls, oil and acid proof cold setting cements, industrial flooring tiles, automobile brake-linings and also in the plastic industry.

Area Under Cashew : The Kerala State Co-op. Marketing Federation announced in February, 1977, it would extend cashew cultivation to another 28,000 hectares by providing long-term loans through land mortgage banks. At present about 100,000 hectares are under cashew cultivation with an annual yield of about 150,000 tonnes. The federation also announced a proposal to organise cashew apple processing units in Kerala. The state was losing about Rs. 200 million a year by wasting the cashew apple.

LOCATION OF THE INDUSTRY

Out of about 300 processing factories in the country about 200 are in Kerala State and the others in Tamil Nadu, Karnataka, Andhra Pradesh and Maharashtra.

Public Sector : The Kerala State Cashew Development Corpn. Ltd., Quilon, opened its first factory in July, 1970 by taking over a factory owned privately. By the end of 1974, the number of factories taken over increased to 34.

Ranking in the World Market : India accounts for about 60-65 per cent of the world export of cashew kernels.

PRODUCTION AND CONSUMPTION

The yearly local production of raw cashew nuts, according to the Directorate of Cashew-nut Development, is 140,000 tonnes. The trade estimate of availability of raw nuts for processing is, however, placed at around 100,000 tonnes.

IMPORTS

The domestic supply of raw nuts is inadequate to meet the total requirements of the processing factories. The shortfall is made-up by importing raw nuts. This is being done by the Cashew Corporation of India Ltd., which was set up as a subsidiary of State Trading Corporation.

Import of raw cashew-nuts from East African and West African countries and Madagascar during 1976-77 amounted to 75,195 tonnes valued at Rs. 183·4 million.

EXPORTS

A Cashew Export Promotion Council (Chittoor Rd., Ernakulam South, Cochin 682016, Kerala), was set up in 1960.

India used to monopolise the exports of processed cashew kernels until Tanzania, Mozambique and Kenya set up their own units.

Export Duty : There is a one per cent ad valorem cess on exports of cashew kernels. The tariff value for cashew kernels fixed for this purpose for the year 1976-77 (July-June) is Rs. 1,500 per quintal.

Export of Cashew Kernels : Cashew kernel exports fetched Rs. 1,432·2 million in 1977, an increase of about 29 per cent over the earnings in 1976. Quantitatively, the export was less by about 31 per cent because of the lower availability of imported raw cashewnuts.

GENERAL : According to the study made by GATT, a good average crop from a mature plantation tree is around 10 kgs. in East Africa and 30 kgs. in India.

In Africa, the average yield of kernels is about 21 to 24 per cent of raw nut weight, while in India it is slightly higher. Indian processors claim to be able to get upto 70 per cent whole kernels, while the mechanical processing plants in Africa record upto 65 per cent.

The poor technology in the cashew industry in Ke in which the operations are done manually accounts for investment per worker being as low as about Rs. Over 90 per cent of the workers are women.

CEMENT INDUSTRY

BRIEF HISTORY

CEMENT, though it may not have been known by that name, is an ancient building material. Evidence of its use is believed to have been found in the Indus civilisation of Mohen-jo-daro. The Greeks are also known to have made extensive use of it, but it is to the Romans that the credit must go for having evolved concrete from cement.

Although cement was first manufactured in India near Madras in 1904, it was not until 1914 that the foundations of a stable Indian cement industry were really laid. In October 1914, the first bag of cement was packed at Porbandar by the Indian Cement Company Ltd. (Agents: Tata Sons & Co.). This company then had a capacity of only 1,000 tonnes. Today there are 56 units in the country and the capacity is 21·60 million tonnes.

The State-wise break-up of the units is as follows :

IMPORT: Due to shortage of cement in the export of cement came practically to a standstill from 1977 and Government have started importing cement January 1978 to meet the growing internal demand.

GENERAL: In 1977 coal and wagon supply to Industry was satisfactory. However, power shortag an important external constraint on cement prod

New Projects : The Cement Corporation of India three projects under construction located at Bokajan Assam, at Rajbaon in Himachal Pradesh and at in Madhya Pradesh, the last being expansion of existing unit. The Bokajan unit started production at end of 1976.

The Corporation took up four new projects, in 1977. Three for the manufacture of Portland cement at Adilabad, Tendur and Yerraguntla in Andhra Pradesh and one for the manufacture of blast furnace slag cement at Akaltara in Madhya Pradesh with a capacity of 400,000 tonnes each.

The Government has also approved a proposal for the setting up of a new plant at Neemuch in Madhya Pradesh having a capacity of 400,000 tonnes.

Mini Plants : At the first meeting of the newly constituted Development Council for the Cement Industry held on 5th January, 1978, the Union Ministry of Industry, announced certain concessions to encourage speedy installation of mini cement plants. The Cement Research Institute and the Regional Research Laboratory, Jorhat, are offering vertical shaft technology. Indigenous technology for putting up of mini cement plants based on Rotary Kiln is also available. Besides efforts are made to obtain German technology which is said to be different and claims several advantages.

Demand : A Planning Commission study group had re-estimated in September, 1976, that the annual domestic demand for cement would be between 19·33 million and 22·40 million tonnes. Adding the export obligations of about 1·5 million tonnes the total demand was likely to be between 20·83 million and 23·90 million tonnes in 1978–79.

Training and Research : Industry has set up a research institute called the Cement Research Institute of India at M-10, South Extension II, Ring Rd., New Delhi 110016. A well equipped laboratory project with training facilities for scientists is available at Faridabad, 32 kms. from New Delhi. Basic research in cement technology is being undertaken at the laboratory.

COCOA INDUSTRY

Brief History : Originally believed to be growing in tropical America, the Cacao tree (Theobroma cacao), was planted by the French in their possessions in India in the 1670s. But it was not commercially exploited till the last decade.

Location of Plantations: Cocoa (Theobroma cacao) is grown in an area of about 8,000 hectares mainly as a mixed crop in coconut and arecanut gardens. It is mainly grown in Kerala followed by Karnataka and Tamil Nadu. The estimated production of cocoa beans during 1977 was about 400 tonnes.

Consumption: Demand for cocoa products is partly met by import of beans. The annual average import of cocoa beans during the last few years is 400 to 1,100 tonnes. Cocoa is re-exported as cocoa powder, chocolates, cocoa butter etc. to the Middle East, Nepal, U.K., Indonesia and Singapore.

The present grinding capacity in India is about 10,000 tonnes, hence it is proposed to bring 40,000 hectares under cocoa cultivation. Though there are two popular varieties — Criollo and Forestero — only the latter has been recommended for cultivation in India because of its wider adaptability and better performance.

Development schemes for covering large areas under cocoa are being implemented by Kerala Agriculture Department and Karnataka Forest Plantation Corporation. Cocoa is also grown in small areas in Tamil Nadu, Andhra Pradesh, Maharashtra and Goa.

Compared to other plantation crops, cocoa bears early and yields high economic returns.

Exports: During 1975-76 India exported cocoa products weighing about 505 tonnes valued at Rs. 51·5 million while corresponding figures for 1974-75 were 582 tonnes valued at Rs. 45·5 million.

Imports: In 1975-76 India imported about 677 tonnes of cocoa beans and cocoa products valued at Rs. 85·9 million while during 1974-75 the import amounted to 468 tonnes valued at Rs. 61 million.

GENERAL :

Development : The Government of India has constituted the Indian Arecanut and Cocoa Development Council, made up of State and Central government officials and representatives of growers, traders and farm workers. It periodically reviews the ongoing development work and advises the Government of India on future development programmes. The development programmes are implemented through the Directorate of Arecanut & Spices Development, functioning at 1/500, Cannanore Road, Calicut 673005, Kerala.

The important development measures undertaken include establishment and maintenance of progeny orchards of high yielding cocoa trees and large scale production and distribution of quality seedlings.

Research : The agronomic research work on cocoa is undertaken by the Central Plantation Crops Research Institute, Kasargod, and by its regional stations and research centres. The Central Food Technological Research Institute, Mysore, carries out the research work on the processing of cocoa beans and finished products.

Processing firms : The following are the important processing firms :

1. M/s. Cadbury India Ltd., Cadbury House, Bhulabhai Desai Road, Bombay-400026; 2. M/s. Satho Biscuits and Chocolate Co., Bhavanipeth, Pune 411002; 3. COFFEE INDUSTRY

BRIEF HISTORY

About 400 years ago coffee became established as a beverage in Arabia from where it eventually came to Europe and to London in 1652.

The plant is believed to have been introduced in India by a Muslim saint who came from Mecca and made his home in Karnataka.

The coffee plant usually reaches heights ranging from 4·57 to 6·09 metres. The fruit is red and contains two interlinked seeds which when roasted and ground, produces the coffee powder.

LOCATION OF THE INDUSTRY

The total area under coffee is 171,535 hectares — hectares Arabica and 73,641 hectares Robusta.

BRIEF HISTORY

THE word 'coir' has an historical background. The fact that it is derived from the Malayalam word 'kayar' meaning cord, shows that this material first became known as a product of the Malabar coast. As early as the 11th century A.D. Arab writers have mentioned coir and referred to the uses of this material as ship's cables and rigging.

However, it was in England that coir was first put to practical use. About 125 years ago three partners of a London carpet firm registered their patents for the manufacture of coir fibre into various fabrics suitable for floor coverings.

The development of the coir industry in India began in 1859.

LOCATION OF THE INDUSTRY

It is mainly confined to the coastal strip of Kerala and other coconut producing States.

Kerala : Husk Retters 23,000 units, Spindle Spinning 25,000 units, Hand Spinning 85,000 units, Products Mfg. 1,994 units, Powerloom Matting 3 units, Rope Making 62 units, Defibering 10 units, Rubberised Coir 3 units. Karnataka : Fibre Extraction 59 units. Tamil Nadu : Rope Making 926 units, Yarn Spinning 710 units, Fibre Extraction 14 units, Rubberised Coir 1 unit. Andhra Pradesh: Fibre Extraction 4 units, Production Centres 7 units. Maharashtra : Departmental Coir Factory 1 unit, Fibre Extraction 2 units, Production Centres 8 units ; Orissa : Fibre Extraction 1 unit, Production Centres 5 units. West Bengal : Fibre Extraction 2 units, Rubberised Coir/Curling 1 unit, Rope Making 12 units. Gujarat : Production Centres 4 units. Goa, Daman & Diu : Production Centres 685 units, Defibering Centres 3 units ; Laccadive, Minicoy and Amindivi Islands : Defibering Centres 1 unit (Exclude hand spinning units). Pondicherry : Fibre Extraction 1 unit, Production Centres 2 units. Andaman & Nicobar: Production Centre 1 unit.

Public Sector : Hindustan Coir Ltd. at Kalavoor near Alleppey in Kerala is the only factory in the public sector.

No. of Persons Employed: About 450,000.

Ranking in the World Market: The total volume of coir entering the world trade is about 152,100 tonnes. Raw fibre alone accounts for 101,400 tonnes while coir yarn and processed coir goods account for only 50,700 tonnes. India's share is as follows : coir yarn 95 per cent, coir manufactures 55 per cent, coir cordages and ropes 95 per cent.

India and Sri Lanka are the only two countries where widespread commercial production is undertaken even though coconuts are grown in abundance elsewhere.

COTTON AND COTTON TEXTILE INDUSTRY

BRIEF HISTORY: The writings of Marco Polo in the 13th century A.D. and of Tavernier in the 17th century stand testimony to the degree of excellence and perfection achieved by the textile industry in India.

Originally, all cotton cultivated in India grew on the perennial type of plant known as G. Arborium Var Neglectum, which was of Forma Bengalenses in north and western India and of Forma Indicum in central and south India. It is believed that the ' webs of the woven wind '—the world famous Dacca muslin was made from Forma Bengalenses.

Until about the middle of the 18th century Indian textiles reigned supreme in foreign markets. But during the Industrial Revolution in the West, Indian cloth began to lose its overseas market. Realising the significance of the revolution the East India Company changed its role of an exporter of cloth to an exporter of cotton and encouraged a wider cultivation of cotton in India. Thus began the cultivation of cotton as a commercial crop.

AREA UNDER CULTIVATION

India has the largest area in the world under cotton cultivation, which is more than one fourth of the total world acreage.

The area ('000 hectares) under cotton cultivation during last three years was : 1974-75 : 7,561·8 ; 1975-76 : 7,460·5 ; 1976-77 : 6,634·0.

India's cotton production suffered a marked set-back in the 1976–77 season, the latest estimate being 5·95 million bales (of 170 kgs. each), as compared with 6·65 million bales in 1975–76. With a carry over of 1·43 million bales and imports amounting to 1·08 million bales, the tota supply in the cotton season 1976-77 worked out to 8·4 million bales.

The prospects of a tight supply position began to manifest itself from March–April 1976. The revised estimates of the crop showed a fall larger than expected. The cotton season 1976-77 opened with the highest level of cotton prices recorded ever.

The production ('000 bales of 170 kgs. each) of cotton during last three years was : 1974-75 : 7,156 ; 1975-76 : 6,101 ; 1976-77 : 5,950.

GENERAL

Yield Per Hectare: In spite of India having the largest area under cotton cultivation, the production accounts for less than one tenth of the world cotton output. Indian production has been on an average one bale (170 kgs.) per hectare, against 4 bales produced in Egypt.

The Hybrid-4 is credited with a record yield of 8,700 kgs. of kapas per hectare in Bellary district of Karnataka. The average yield from this strain is placed at 3,500 to 4,000 kgs. per hectare, while the average yield per hectare of other varieties is 925 kgs. of kapas in irrigated areas and 250 kgs. in non-irrigated areas.

Research: Established in 1924 the Cotton Technological Research Laboratory at Adenwala Road, Matunga, Bombay 400019, offers facilities for fibre testing and spinning quality evolution of cotton with the result that a large number of improved varieties have been evolved and extended for commercial cultivation.

The laboratory also offers training in cotton technology to sponsored candidates from the textile industry.

COTTON TEXTILES

Brief History: The cotton textile industry was the base on which Indian industrialisation was built more than a hundred years ago.

The industry was started largely as a spinning enterprise and gradually developed into a full-fledged composite one. The first power-mill was set up in Bombay by a Parsi pioneer, Mr. Kavasji Nanabhai Davar, in 1854.

No. of Persons Employed: It provides direct employment to about 1,030,000 (19 per cent of all factory labour totalling 5·5 million). Indirect employment runs into several millions.

Capital Investment: Estimated at Rs. 3,300 million and the annual value of the output amounts to Rs. 30,000 million.

Ranking in the World: India occupies second position in terms of spindles (after the U.S.A.), third as exporter of cotton textiles (after Japan and Hong Kong), fourth in terms of cotton consumption (after China, U.S.S.R. and U.S.A.).

Cotton Textile Export Promotion Council: (Address: Engineering Centre, Mathew Rd., Bombay 400004.) It is an autonomous body and a non-profit making organisation and was set up in 1954 for the promotion of exports of mill-made cotton yarn and piece-goods, cotton manufactures and all hosiery and readymade garments.

Per Capita Availability: The estimated per capita availability of cotton cloth in 1977 was 11·36 metres, as against 12·58 metres in 1975 and 12·88 metres in 1974. The slight fall reflects the growth in population and the fractional decline in production.

Readymade Garments: India's exports of readymade garments had picked up swiftly in recent years. The export value was hardly Rs. 140 million in 1971–72. It rose to 1,450 million in 1975-76 and Rs. 2,420 million in 1976-77.

National Textile Corporation Ltd. (Details in the chapter on 'Govt. of India Undertakings'.) A public sector undertaking, it was set up in 1968 to take over and run 'sick' textile mills in the country. Similar corporations are also set up in the State sector of Gujarat, Kerala, Maharashtra, Madhya Pradesh, Tamil Nadu and Uttar Pradesh.

Indian Cotton Mills' Federation (ICMF): (Address : Textile Centre, 34, P. D'Mello Rd., Poona St., Wadibunder, Bombay 400009.) Established in March 1958, it is the apex body representing the cotton mill industry of India. The object of ICMF is to watch over, protect and promote the interests of the industry.

Research : Extensive research on cotton textiles is carried out by the following organisations : (1) Ahmedabad Textile Industry's Research Association (ATIRA), P.O. Polytechnic, Ahmedabad 380015, Gujarat. It also has several regional research stations in Gujarat doing research on cotton. (2) Bombay Textile Research Association, [illegible] par, Bombay 400077. DAIRY INDUSTRY

MILK and milk products contribute about Rs. 8,933 million to the national income. Of the 237 million cattle and buffaloes, only 90 million or 38 per cent are milch animals. Besides, the milk yield is low—157 kgs. a year in the case of a cow and 504 kgs. a year in the case of a buffalo. The highest average daily milk production per animal in milk both for cows and buffaloes is in Punjab which is only 2.28 kgs. and 3.99 kgs. per day respectively. The average annual milk production per cow is 4,154 kgs. in USA, 3,950 in U.K. and 3,902 kgs. in Denmark.

India now ranks fourth in the world in the matter of milk production with about 24 million tonnes. Nearly 60-61 per cent is marketed and the balance is used for home consumption or feeding calves.

Per capita consumption : The per capita consumption of milk and milk products varies from State to State The average works out to 5.5 oz.

The present per capita availability of milk (1973-74 is estimated at around 108 grams (3.8 oz.) per head.

Dairy Plants: The total number in operation increased from 132 units in 1973-74 to 149 units in 1974-75, comprising 81 liquid milk plants, 16 milk product [illegible] and 52 pilot milk schemes/rural dairy centres. Besides, 25 dairy products, including some dairy schemes being developed into full-fledged units, were in different stages of implementation.

The average daily throughput of milk of all the dairy plants is at present 2·8 million litres as compared to only 0·7 million litres at the end of Second Plan. During 1974–75, there was a spurt in milk production particularly in Maharashtra and Gujarat due to the Operation Flood Programme. This project aims at covering a population of 2·1 million milch cattle and buffaloes spread over 22 milk sheds in selected States.

Measures had been taken to increase the number of milk plants in operation to 119 by the end of 1975–76. Similarly, 24 milk product factories were to be in operation in 1975–76. About 37 plants are in the co-operative sector. In many States, co-operatives constitute a major source of supply of milk. On June 30, 1974 there were nearly 14,300 primary milk supply co-operative societies. State level federations are functioning in Uttar Pradesh, Gujarat, Maharashtra and Punjab. At the all India level there is the National Co-operative Dairy Federation of India (address awaited) to co-ordinate and facilitate the working of State-level dairy co-operatives. During 1974–75, it had approved the setting up of six milk chilling centres — 5 of 4,000 litres capacity each in Uttar Pradesh and one of 125,000 litres capacity in Andhra Pradesh.

DRUGS & PHARMACEUTICAL INDUSTRY

BRIEF HISTORY

THIS industry has grown considerably since 1947 both in the Private and the Public Sector. In 1947 the Public Sector in the drug industry was non-existent. In the early fifties the indigenous production of drugs and pharmaceuticals amounted to Rs. 350 million. It consisted mainly of galenicals produced from medicinal plants and herbs and formulations of imported bulk drugs. On the whole, the industry had to depend largely import of diverse chemicals, both basic and in Production : Most of the drugs including the portant life-saving medicines covering the range of biotics, e.g. Penicillin, Streptomycin, Chloramphenicol, Erythromycin etc., Sulpha ing long acting ones, e.g. Sulphasomidine, Sulfadimidine, Phthaly-Sulphathiazoles, etc., antidrugs, e.g. INH, PAS, Thiacetazone, Ethambutol etc., Vitamins, e.g. A, B_1, B_2, B_{12}, C, D, E, P & K, Folic Acid etc., Steroids, e.g. Prednisolone, Betamethasone, Dexamethasone, etc., and a host of other synthetics, phyto-chemicals and biological products are now manufactured within the country. The overall production of drugs and pharmaceuticals for the year 1976-77 is estimated at Rs. 1,500 million in terms of bulk drugs and Rs. 7,000 million in terms of finished formulations. The industry consists of about 128 units in the organised sector and about 2,500 units in the small-scale sector.

Organised Sector : Of the 128 units, 14 produce bulk drugs, 27 produce only formulations, 67 produce both and 12 manufacture pharmaceutical auxiliaries and 8 units which have recently been licenced are yet to commence production.

Foreign Equity : Of the 128 units, 32 have foreign equity exceeding 50 per cent while 13 have foreign equity ranging between 40 and 50 per cent. Of the above, 6 units are functioning as branches of foreign companies.

Expansion : The estimated indigenous production of bulk drugs during 1977-78 is of the order of Rs. 1,750 million and of formulations Rs. 8,000 million. It has been estimated that the total requirement of bulk drugs by 1982-83 is expected to be Rs. 5,500 million which is likely to result in formulations worth Rs. 19,000 million. Thus production of additional bulk drugs worth Rs. 3,750 million and formulations worth Rs. 12,000 million have to be organised during the period 1978-79 to 1982-83. The investment needed during this period has been estimated at Rs. 37,750 million for bulk drugs and Rs. 1,500 million for formulations.

Government Study : Government have since taken a decision on the recommendations made in the Report of the (Hathi) Committee on Drugs and Pharmaceutical Industry submitted in April, 1975. The decisions include the allocation of a leading role to the public sector, fostering the growth of the Indian (including small-scale sector) and regulation of the activities of foreign drug firms in India, as well as rationalisation of pricing.

Bulk Drug Sales : In case of 18 bulk drugs imports will now be made by State Chemicals and Pharmaceuticals of India Limited (CPC) under OGL on the basis of foreign exchange released by Government. Import, distribution and their pricing will be made by CPC as per the policy of Government in the Ministry of Petroleum, Chemicals and Fertilizers.

Price Control : Control on prices of drugs was first introduced in the country in 1963. The retail prices of drugs then prevailing were frozen and it was provided that prior approval of the Government should be obtained for any increase in prices.

Later in June, 1966, an order was promulgated under which approval of government for fixing prices of new drugs had to be taken, and, marking of retail prices on containers of drugs was made compulsory.

A comprehensive order was issued in May, 1970, designed to :

1. bring down the prices of those essential drugs whose prices generally remained very high ;
2. to provide sufficient incentives to the industry to maintain and facilitate its growth from the basic stage and to develop research facilities and expansion in a planned manner ;
3. to promote diversification of entrepreneurship in the future development of this industry and thereby provide better opportunities for Indian personnel with requisite technical qualifications ; and,
4. to curb excessive profits.

In order to give relief to the drug manufacturing units with a turnover not exceeding Rs. 5 million per annum, they were exempted from the requirement of obtaining government approval for the prices of their formulations.

The order was amended effective from May 1, 1975 and provided that no retailer shall sell any formulation to the customer at a price exceeding the retail price of that formulation in the price list approved by the Central Government or the price displayed on the label of the container of the formulation whichever is less, plus local taxes, if any payable.

Research and Development : A premier role is played by the R & D laboratories in the public sector. While IDPL have developed processes for a number of bulk drugs like retronidazole, nitrofarazene, allopurinol and phthaly sulphathiazole etc. HAL has established facilities for the production of 6-APA (an intermediate for ampicilin) from penicillin crystals. Some of these are laboratories like Central Drug Research Institute, Lucknow (U.P.); National Chemical Laboratory, Pune (Maharashtra); Regional Research Laboratories at Hyderabad (A.P.), Jammu (Kashmir) and Jorhat (Assam), under Council of Scientific & Industrial Research, New Delhi and Research and Development Laboratories at the Antibiotics Plant, Rishikesh (U.P.) and Synthetic Drugs Plant, Hyderabad (A.P.) under IDPL and a research centre at Hindustan Antibiotics Ltd., Pimpri (Maharashtra).

In the private sector also, there are a number of drug research centres of which those of Bengal Immunity, Sarabhai, Ciba-Geigy and Hoechst are im [illegible] research units have contributed significantly [illegible] improving the existing technology, development [illegible] processes and drugs and discovering import su [illegible] of several raw materials and intermediates.

ELECTRONICS INDUSTRY

BRIEF HISTORY

THE Electronics Industry in India is increasingly playing an important role in the national development. This industry in India nucleated during the early 1950's with the manufacture of radio receivers by a few private firms. Since then, it has not only grown in total volume, but also has diversified enormously. In fact, there is hardly any major sector of economy in which electronics does not find some use. The trend has been towards growth of professional electronics and self reliance in many of the high technology sophisticated fields.

Even a brief survey of developments in the country indicates the vital support offered by the electronics industry. More than 80 per cent of India's population is now covered by the mass communication media like radio and television. The defence preparedness is now based on the indigenously manufactured radars and other sophisticated systems, the process control instrumentation is being increasingly used for economic running of different processes and manufacturing industries like fertilizers, petrochemicals, etc. Indigenously produced computers are being used in some cases. Electronics plays a pivotal role in the control of nuclear reactors and optimal distribution of power through the grids. The launching of the first Indian satellite was testimony of our ability to design and implement complex projects involving myriad of electronic systems.

Growth of Electronics : During the last ten years, the production of electronic equipment and components has increased tremendously. Table 1 gives a profile of the production of electronic items over the last four years. During the last few years many technical entrepreneurs have started electronics industry in the small scale sector. The commercial viability of such small scale units was demonstrated through the successful manufacture of items in consumer electronics and instrumentation area which has reached self-reliance and self-sufficiency. The private sector is also responsible for substantial export of electronic items, and has entered into areas like radio frequency cables, microwave components, digital instruments, control equipment, etc.

Export of electronic items increased from Rs. 270 million in 1976, to Rs. 370 million in 1977.

Consumer Electronics : The main items in this sector are radio, TV, tape recorders, record players and public address systems. The total production in this sector increased from Rs. 1,010 million in 1976 to Rs. 1,330 million in 1977 registering a net growth of 32 per cent against 23 per cent achieved during 1976. The total production of radio receivers increased from 3 million in 1976 to about 3·76 million in 1977. The small-scale sector played an important role in the growth of radio manufacture. In order to encourage the production of low cost radio receivers the government has reserved this item for [illegible] tion in the small scale sector and exempted the [illegible] excise duty. Currently, the ownership of the radio [illegible] is estimated to be about one set for every 35 p [illegible] the country. The production of TV receivers in [illegible] around 240,000. A wider base for tape recorder [illegible] and cassette radio combinations has been [illegible] the past few years. While the production of record [illegible] decreased marginally, there has been an inc [illegible] production of amplifiers and PA systems. Prod [illegible] electronic calculators has also increased, both in q [illegible] and variety.

The development and production activities in the telecommunication field and VHF/UHF communication are continuing in the Indian Telephone Industries, Bharat Electronics Limited, Hindustan Teleprinter Limited, Hindustan Cables Limited and Electronics Corporation of India Limited (for details see Government of India undertakings). There are plans to supplement these efforts in some of the newly set up State Electronics Development Corporations. Research and Development in telecommunication is continuously being carried out in the Telecommunication Research Centre under the Ministry of Communications.

Seven satellite earth stations are being planned to establish faster and reliable communication even in remote areas. In the next phase, there will be 32 ear satellite stations to be installed under this plan.

Another noteworthy development is the execution of communication and telemetry systems for offshore oil wells near Bombay.

Computers and Data Processing Equipment : The first computer in India started its operation more than 16 years ago. Since then, there has been a rapid growth in terms of computer installations and throughput. At present there are about 400 computer systems installed in the country, including 87 systems manufactured by Electronics Corporation of India Limited, Hyderabad. It is estimated that about 15 large size and 250 medium size and 400 mini-computers will be required in the next three to four years. A wide variety of computer peripherals will also be required to support these new installations.

The present indigenous manufacturing programme for peripherals is for low-speed devices. Two public sector companies have undertaken the development work for a variety of peripherals like consol keyboard printers, card readers, dot matrix printers, cassette drives, magnetic tape drives, visual display units and direct entry devices. The production of some of these items will be started [illegible].

In order to gain experience in development and application of computer and related technologies two national centres namely, National Centre for Software Development and Computing Techniques (NCSDCT) and National Informatics Centre (NIC) have been up with the assistance of UNDP. NCSDCT is functioning at the Tata Institute of Fundamental Research at Bombay. The primary objectives of this centre are to develop software tools and computing techniques to support the growth of a major self-reliant computer and associated semiconductor industry. The National Informatics Centre at Delhi was set up for developing methodologies relating to large data bases and their development. Experiments in data communication are also in progress. The Department of Electronics is also setting up regional computer centres at various locations in the country.

Considering the importance of maintenance and efficient operation of wide variety of computers already installed in the country, and to be installed, the Department of Electronics has set up a Computer Maintenance Corporation in the public sector. This corporation is responsible for coordinating and implementing all aspects of system design and maintenance of computers. It will also stock and ensure continuous and fast supply of spares for the systems in operation.

Another notable development is the efforts made to generate computer software for exports. With the highly skilled software personnel available in the country, there is considerable potential for building up this industry, especially for exports. India has started exporting computer software to countries in the West, USSR and Eastern Europe.

Control and Industrial Electronics : With the accelerating progress in technology, industrial processes have become increasingly complex. It is vital to run them with adequate and sophisticated instrumentation and control systems, so that operational cost, efficiency and quality are optimised. In the field of instrument servo components, two of the prominent groups are Servo Control Division at ECIL and Control Guidance & Instruments Division of SSTC. Indigenous production of servo components has been established with the manufacture of servo and hysteresis motors, synchros and rate gyropackages. There are about 70 units engaged in the manufacture of process control instruments. The types of instruments produced cover temperature measurement using mercury, resistance and pyrometric methods, gauges for pressure measurement, strain gauge instrumentation and a variety of analysers. Instrumentation Limited, (for details see Government of India undertakings) is producing a wide variety of pneumatic instruments. The items manufactured in the field of industrial electronics cover a wide variety of drives, numerical control machines, dielectric, induction, furnaces, etc. The development in this field has been rapid and the basic components like thyristors and high power silicon diodes are being manufactured. New areas in industrial electronics like mining electronics, pollution monitoring equipment and agro-electronic instruments are growing rapidly.

Instruments : A wide variety of instruments like test and measuring, analytical, nuclear, geoscientific etc. art being manufactured in the small scale sector. The tese and measuring instruments manufactured include instruments like digital multimeter, admittance bridge, oscilloscopes, communication test equipment and TV test instruments. The analytical instruments manufactured include pH meters, conductivity meters, spectrophotometers and calorimeters. The production of nuclear instruments like

GM counters, phase analysis equipment, reactor control instruments, whole body counters is mainly concentrated at ECIL, Hyderabad. The present manufacturing base for geoscientific and related instruments is quite modest, although the demand for these instruments is growing due to the increasing activity in oil and mineral exploration.

Medical Electronic Equipment : One of the spin-offs due to increasing sophistication in electronics is the emergence of a new area called bio-medical engineering or medical electronics. In India, though the field of medical electronics is still in its infancy, it has made a significant start. New equipments in increasing numbers are being used in many hospitals. The production of electronics equipment is mainly in the small and scale industries both in the public and private X-ray equipment constitutes the major share of the ment manufactured. Some of the other equipments rently being manufactured are electro-cardiogra pirator, foetus heart detector, hearing aid and to consumer grade components, the production of professional components is lagging behind. Consumer grade components in addition to meeting the local demand are being exported in substantial quantities.

In the area of electron tubes, the production includes that of receiving and transmitting tubes, magnetrons, x-ray tubes, TV picture tubes and nixie tubes. In the area of semi-conductor devices, most of the production is of germanium and silicon discrete devices. As regards integrated circuits, Bharat Electronics Limited (BEL) is producing TTL ICs with indigenous know-how. Hybrid microcircuits are made by BEL and ITI. The planned Semiconductor Complex near Chandigarh will be manufacturing MOS LSI, bipolar LSI and LED's.

In the area of passive components, different varieties of resistors and capacitors are manufactured. About a dozen manufacturers are making coaxial, rack and panel and printed circuit connectors. Relays are also being produced in a fairly wide range. ITI, Bangalore, makes telephone type relays for its telecommunication equipment switches which include rotary wafer, push button, toggle, snap-action, etc. These are also being produced by more than 25 manufacturers. Other components like crystals, transducers, magnetic components, printed circuit boards are also being manufactured. In so far as materials are concerned, the electronic component industry still depends on imports to the tune of over 50 per cent. The production of some ultra-pure materials has been established at Special Materials Plant, Hyderabad. A wide variety of soft and hard ferrites are already under production catering to most of the requirements. Except some special plastics like PTFE, DAP and polycarbonate, etc., others are being locally manufactured.

FERTILISER INDUSTRY

It was in the Third Plan that the industry received a big boost. As against the allocation of Rs. 11,500 million in the Fifth Plan the actual expenditure on the schemes in the first four years of the Plan was about Rs. 15,000 million. With the implementation of the schemes, which are either under consideration or approved, the total capacity developed would be 6,343,000 tonnes of nitrogen and 1,880,000 tonnes of P_2O_5. Most of the capacity developed in the fertiliser field is based on naphtha but in view of the increasing pressure on naphtha, Government has decided that new plants would be based either on coal or fuel oil/heavy petroleum fractions depending on the suitability of the locations, availability of raw materials, demand considerations, etc. In pursuance of this policy, three large-sized coal-based plants are under implementation at Talcher, Ramagundam and Korba each consuming about 1 million tonnes of coal per annum.

There are more than 50 fertiliser factories of various sizes in the private and public sectors.

Public sector : Following are the public sector units :—

For effective management the Government has reorganised the Fertiliser Corporation of India and National Fertilisers Ltd. into five companies with effect from April 1, 1978. The names of the companies with their units respectively are : 1. Fertiliser Corporation of India : Sindri old and new plants, Sindri Fertiliser, Gorakhpur, Talcher, Ramagundam and Korba ; 2. National Fertilisers Ltd. : Nangal, Bhatinda, Panipat ; 3. *Hindustan Fertiliser Corpn. The Cochin Fertiliser factory (Phase I) at Ambalamedu set up by FACT and FCI at a cost of Rs. 630 million began production in April, 1973. Its second major project in Cochin (Cochin Phase II) with the assistance of the World Bank has been completed and trial run commenced in December, 1976.

Madras Fertilisers Ltd., at Madras (Tamil Nadu) with an annual capacity of 160,000 tonnes of nitrogen and 100,000 tonnes of phosphates commenced production in November, 1971. It is a joint venture in which the Government of India holds 51 per cent of the equity capital while the remaining 49 per cent is equally shared between Amoco India Incorporated of USA and the National Iranian Oil Co. of Iran.

Indian Farmers' Fertilisers Co-operative Ltd. (IFFCO), have ammonia/urea complex at Kalol and NPK at Kandla both in Gujarat. In addition one ammonia urea complex at Phulpur, U.P. is under construction.

STATE SECTOR :

Maharashtra Agro Chemicals, Maharashtra.

Hindustan Zinc Ltd., Debari, Rajasthan.

PRIVATE SECTOR : The major private sector units in production, under implementation and approved in principle are mentioned with their capacity in Table III.

Production & capacity : In terms of production and capacity, fertiliser industry, as a whole, has made rapid strides. Indigenous production in this sector meets about 65-70 per cent of the demand. The Fourth Plan and the first four years of the Fifth Plan recorded a very significant growth in the development of capacity and production. High nutrient fertilisers like urea, DAP urea, ammonium phosphate & NPK complex fertilisers were produced in larger quantities as compared to ammonium sulphate and super phosphate produced at the initial stage.

During 1975-76, India hit the annual production target for fertiliser for the first time in 10 years. Production in 1975-76 of over 1·5 million tonnes of nitrogen represents approximately a 30 per cent increase over that of 1·185 million tonnes in 1974-75. While this trend has been maintained in the subsequent years with the production of nitrogen crossing the two million tonnes in 1977-78 and phosphate touching a level of 670,000 tonnes of P_2O_5, the production still falls short of the demand and about a third of the requirement of the nitrogen and marginal quantities of phosphate are imported to meet the shortfall Capacity utilisation in the industry during 1975-76. improved to 63 per cent from 58 per cent in 1974-75.

The public sector fertiliser plants mainly contributed to the increased production. Production in these plants totalled 713,794 tonnes in 1975-76 against 531,000 tonnes in 1974-75.

During the year 1975-76 two new plants and one existing expansion unit went into operation — Tuticorin, Kalol and Gorakhpur expansion — bringing the total installed capacity to 2·11 million tonnes of nitrogenous and to 0·70 million tonnes of phosphatic fertilizers.

The total installed capacity of nitrogenous fertiliser lustry (in terms of plant nutrient-N) as at the end of 76-77 was of the order of 3·028 million tonnes. The re of public sector and co-operative sector units was 60,000 tonnes.

The capacity under implementation stage is estimated 2·070 million tonnes. In addition to this, the capacity proved in principle, amounted to 1·637 million tonnes.

The break-up of the existing capacity in both the tors as well as that under implementation stage is set in the Table No. III.

The share of straight phosphatic fertiliser during 1977- is about 155,000 tonnes of P_2O_5.

Manures and Composts

The Ministry of Agriculture has taken up a very comprehensive programme for the development of organic manures in the country in view of its importance in building up of soil fertility and also because of constraints in the availability of fertilisers. The programmes are :

(i) Preparation of rural and urban compost ; (ii) distribution of sewage and sullage ; (iii) intensification of green manuring programme; and (iv) establishment of gobar gas plants.

Under the Fifth Five Year Plan, it is proposed to set up 27 compost plants in cities having a population of more than 0·3 million. By the end of 1973-74, about 7,000 gobar gas plants were set up in various parts of the country. An ambitious programme for the establishment of 100,000 gobar gas plants had been included under the Fifth Five Year Plan.

Energy Equivalent: The energy equivalent of 24 million litres of kerosene can be made available if all the 400 million tonnes of wet cattle dung, now being used as manure, is converted into biogas. Besides conversion of the dung through biogas plants will yield 236 million tonnes of manure of enriched nitrogen quality.

The 1966 census estimated the cattle population in India at 230 million with an estimated 800 million tonnes of wet dung produced annually. However, a recent study by the National Council of Applied Economic Research (NCAER) estimated the availability of wet dung at 1,355 million tonnes. According to NCAER 33 per cent of the total cattle dung — approximately 400 million tonnes — is used as manure and the rest as fuel.

In the rural areas the per capita consumption of cattle dung cake is around 9 kgs. per month. The average rural household therefore consumes 540 kgs. a year. In urban areas the average per capita consumption of dung cakes is 36 kgs. a year.

Urban Compost: Under the technical guidance of the Gujarat Agro-industries Corporation, a Compost manure plant has been put up by the Vadodara Municipal Corporation at Atladara. It has an installed capacity to process 125 to 150 tonnes of garbage per day. Such plants are also being put up in various other cities.

During 1976-77 the total fertiliser consumption, was 3·41 million tonnes. Of this 2·46 million was nitrogen, 0·63 million tonnes phosphate and 0·32 million tonnes potash.

The levels of consumption of fertilisers per hectare of agricultural land in India during 1975-76 are far below those of other countries (Figures in kgs.).

Apart from inadequate marketing facilities and lack of purchasing power of the farmers, natural calamities and inadequate irrigation facilities, high prices, inadequate imports, inadequate promotion measures, lack of adequate credit facilities in several areas, and insufficiency of retail points at convenient distance from the various rural points contributed to the decline in fertiliser consumption. For the Fifth Plan period, the overall growth rate of NPK is envisaged at 21·7 per cent per annum.

The following table portrays vividly how actual consumption fell short of targeted levels since 1969–70.

General

Potassium Fertilisers : To substitute potassium sulphate/chloride which is being imported at present, the Central Salt and Marine Chemicals Research Institute in Bhavnagar, Gujarat, has developed a process for manufacturing potassium chloride and potassium schoenite from mixed salts.

The Institute has set up a commercial plant at Kandla in the private sector having a capacity of manufacturing 1,000 tonnes of potassium chloride and 2,000 tonnes of potassium schoenite (epsom salt) annually.

Role of F.C.I. (Training) : F.C.I. has initiated a number of scientific and technological programmes for popularising the use of fertilisers: (i) Fertiliser Promotion and Agricultural Research Centre at Calcutta, to demonstrate the use of fertilizer; (ii) a Rice Production Training Centre was set up at Durgapur during 1972-73 to impart right technique of rice cultivation ; (iii) the F.C.I. has also taken up studies to assess the efficiency of slow release sulphur coated urea fertiliser, at the instance of FAO for plants under different climatic and soil conditions. With a view to producing fertiliser containing micronutrients, Fertiliser Corporation of India runs a training institute which provides refresher courses for all categories of employees. The Corporation is also implementing the Indo-German Fertiliser Education project to popularise the use of nitro-phosphate complex fertilisers to be manufactured at Haldia.

Research : Fertiliser Association of India near Jawaharlal Nehru University, New Delhi 110057, has set up a Fertiliser Institute (new Technical Division) which does research on the pathological problems of the industry, holds lectures, group discussions and publishes papers on the research done. The institute also holds courses in marketing from time to time. The Planning and Development Division at Sindri is engaged in providing project and engineering consultancy services for the new projects and diversification programmes besides its important role as a research and development organisation. The P. & D. developed their own know-how for the manufacture of catalysts used in the fertiliser industry and many of these catalysts are put to commercial use.

Consultancy & Engineering Services : P. & D. of F. C. I., FEDO of FACT and EIL are the three Indian organisations engaged in the detailed designing & engineering, erection & commissioning of many of the fertiliser projects set up in the country since 1966. These organisations, especially P. & D. has developed enough expertise in this field. There are other consultancy organisations for specific areas.

Many sophisticated equipments, needed for the industry, are locally fabricated. Now the foreign exchange requirement for the installation of fertiliser plants has come down to about 30 per cent.

FILM INDUSTRY

THE Indian film industry ranks first in the world in terms of production, with an average of about 500 films a year. The industry earns annually about Rs. 2,250 million. Of this, about Rs. 78·70 million is in foreign exchange.

The industry employs about 200,000 persons. There are about 1,800 independent producers, most of them with units either too small or too unwieldy for economic working.

Production : For the first time in 1976 over 50 per cent of the films produced were made in colour. The breakdown is as follows : 1976—colour films 260, black & white films 247; 1977—colour films 340, black & white 217.

The film industry pays about Rs. 2,000 million every year to the Central Government exchequer in taxes mainly in the form of entertainment tax. Since entertainment tax is collected by the States they keep Rs. 1,920 million while the Central Government gets about Rs. 70 million. Entertainment tax varies from state to state. In most states it is about 70 to 80 per cent, while in Maharashtra it is as high as 120 per cent of the price of the admission ticket. Net box office collections during 1976 were about Rs. 3,000 million.

Film censorship : The 18-year-old censorship rules were replaced in 1978 by a new set which, it is claimed, would give more artistic freedom to film-makers. The objectives have now been defined to ensure that : (a) the medium of film remains responsible and sensitive to the values and standards of society, (b) artistic expression and creative freedom are not unduly curbed and (c) censorship is responsive to social change. The new guidelines also state that the board should ensure that films are judged in their entirety from the point of view of their overall impact and that they are examined in the light of contemporary standards of the country and the people to which the film relates.

No. of theatres and cinema houses (1976-77) : With 9,167 theatres (of which 3,322 are touring cinemas) there is an acute shortage of exhibition facilities. With this shortage, a handful of distributors and exhibitors are able to exercise control over the release of films, creating an artificial imbalance.

The number of cinema houses available — 12 for a population of one million — is among the lowest in the world. Theatre rentals are, therefore, heavy.

Finance : It is procured at exhorbitant rates of interest and projects are formulated on the basis of saleability of the stars, the director or the music director.

Films are generally made on borrowed money by independent producers who neither own a studio, nor have any security to offer. Interest rates are as high as 36 per cent to 60 per cent per annum.

The result is that several projects tend to remain incomplete. Of the 700 films launched in 1969, only 320 were completed and released. Of these, only 10 per cent paid a profit. Another 20 per cent broke even. The rest were flops.

Earnings : There has been a phenomenal increase in box office collections from Rs. 360 million in 1958 to about Rs. 3,900 million in 1976. Of the total box office intake 54 per cent goes to the exchequer by way of taxes and imports. The exhibitor gets 27 per cent, the producer 15 per cent and the distributor 4 per cent. The distributor is the one who generally has the biggest financial stake in a film, next to the producer.

The production of Hindi feature films which was showing a downward trend since 1973 suddenly picked up from [illegible] films in 1976 to 134 in 1977. Among the regional films, Marathi, Malayalam, Oriya and Telugu showed a considerable increase in 1977 over the previous year. There was a marginal increase in Assamese, Gujarati, Kannada and Punjabi films, but there was a drop in the number of Tamil films.

National Awards : Under the National Awards scheme of the Government of India, 64 awards for excellence in various facets of film-making have been instituted. These include four "Swarna Kamals", 60 "Rajat Kamals" and cash prizes totalling Rs. 546,000. The prestigious Dada Saheb Phalke award for outstanding contribution to the cause of Indian cinema has been doubled now Rs. 20,000 to Rs. 40,000 besides a "Swarna Kamal" and a shawl.

The state governments of Maharashtra, Gujarat, Karnataka and Tamil Nadu have also instituted own annual state awards for films.

JUTE INDUSTRY

BRIEF HISTORY

THE Indian jute mill industry, born in 1855 at Rishra on the Hooghly, 21 kms. upstream from Calcutta, was a natural evolution of the centuries old cottage industry of Lower Bengal based on hand spinning and weaving of jute. By 1885 the Indian industry with its supremacy in the international markets firmly established, had 6,700 looms in production. Loomage shot up to 30,685 in 1909, to 50,354 in 1927 and to 65,762 in 1949. For a decade or so the industry produced the simplest constructions of sacking cloth. Product diversification continued with webbings, cotton bagging, linoleum hessian, jute carpets and rugs, carpet backing cloth, and decorative jute fabrics gradually added to the range. The industry has already modernised up to the spinning stages of manufacture. This, coupled with the improved technology and other rationalisation measures adopted by the industry, has helped it to increase production without increasing loomage.

LOCATION OF THE INDUSTRY

Figures given are number of jute mill companies in operation on Jan. 1, 1978. West Bengal 56 ; Andhra Pradesh 4 ; Bihar 3 ; Madhya Pradesh 1 ; Uttar Pradesh 3 ; Assam 1 ; All India 68.

LAC INDUSTRY

BRIEF HISTORY

LAC is a resinous substance secreted as a protective coating by an insect known scientifically as "kerria lacca". The insect, about 0·5 mm. long, belonging to the family of scale insects and mealy-bugs, is a parasite which lives and thrives on the sap of certain trees, bushes, shrubs and creepers which are called the 'lac hosts'.

There are four crops of lac named after the Hindu months in which the collection of each crop commences. These are 'Baisakhi' and 'Katki' from one strain of the insect (Rangeeni) and 'Jethwi' and 'Aghani' from another strain (Kusmi). Each Rangeeni female produces 0·03 g. of somewhat dark lac, while each Kusmi female makes about 0·07 g. of a more valuable light-coloured lac.

LOCATION OF THE INDUSTRY

The lac factories are located in the following five States with the number of units in brackets: Bihar (83), West Bengal (87), Madhya Pradesh (16), Maharashtra (6) and Uttar Pradesh (6). (Total 198 units.)

No. of Persons Employed: Bihar: 1,979; West Bengal: 2,209; Madhya Pradesh: 127; Maharashtra: 103; Uttar Pradesh: 95 (Total 4,513).

In addition about 4 to 5 million Adivasis are gainfully employed in the rearing and collection of lac from forests.

PRODUCTION

The lac insect is found in most of the near and far eastern countries but is commercially exploited only by India and Thailand. India's share in world production is about 50 per cent and Thailand's more than 40 per cent.

The all-India production of lac over the last four years in tonnes was as follows: 1973-74: 19,258; 1974-75: 24,690; 1975-76: 21,767; 1976-77: 23,870.

The final report issued by the Directorate of Lac Development, Ranchi, puts the total yield of 'Baisakhi' lac crop in 1976-77 at 16,485 tonnes, of 'Jethwi' lac at 873 tonnes, of 'Katki' lac at 4,605 tonnes and of 'Kusmi' lac at 1,907 tonnes.

Bihar has the highest production, 15,559 tonnes in 1976-77 followed by Madhya Pradesh 3,330 tonnes, West Bengal 2,456 tonnes and Uttar Pradesh 2,000 tonnes.

CONSUMPTION

India's consumption in tonnes over the last three years was as follows: 1972-73: 957; 1973-74: 1,175; 1974-75: 1,267; 1975-76: N.A.

MAN-MADE FIBRE INDUSTRY

BRIEF HISTORY

THE Industry in India is hardly 30 years old. First unit to manufacture viscose rayon filament yarn, The Travancore Rayons Ltd., was incorporated in 1945. The actual production started in 1950.

In 1664 Robert Hooke predicted the possibility of viscose-fibre, but the reality came into being only in 1884 when the father of rayon industry, Count Hilarie de Chadonnet, produced rayon from nitro-cellulose solution. Commercial production started in France in 1891. But polymer 66 and 6 in nylon was only discovered in Germany in 1938.

In 1941, chemists J. R. Whinfield and J. T. Dickson discovered polyester. I.C.I. developed and produced the fibre commercially in U.K. and became an exclusive licencee for polyester fibre throughout the world except U.S. In the earlier days it was the cellulosic synthetic fibre which made the market, but in the last 20 years the more versatile non-cellulosic synthetic fibres have made tremendous head-way.

Position in India : Today there are 9 acetate and rayon filament yarn units with total capacity of 38,664 tonnes per annum; 2 rayon staple fibre units with 71 tonnes annual capacity; 3 rayon tyre cord units w 19,000 tonnes annual capacity and, 16 synthetic fibre staple and tyre cord units. Letters of intent were issued another 16 applicants in 1976-77.

Fabric Production : An estimated 1,200 million metre annually.

Investment & Employment : More than Rs. 2, million and employs directly about 30,000 persons. provides raw material for the operation of 110,000 power looms and more than 400,000 handlooms.

RAW MATERIALS BASIC CHEMICALS

The principal raw materials required for manufacture of rayon filament yarn and staple fibre are wood pulp, caustic soda, sulphuric acid, carbon disulphide and zinc. For acetate yarn and staple fibre, the primary raw materials are alcohol and cotton linters. Other materials used are acetic acid, acetic acetone and ethyl acetate. The wood pulp requirement is met from indigenous sources, but the pulp for tyre cord grade yarn is largely imported. There are immense possibilities for using cotton linters, jute stocks and bagasse for manufacture of wood pulp. There are five units licensed to produce Rayon grade pulp. Their names, locations of factory and production capacity in tonnes per annum respectively are as follows : (1) Gwalior Rayon Mfg. & Wvg. Co. Ltd. (Nagda 456335 & Mavoor 673661) 60,000 ; (2) Harihar Polyfibres (Harihar 577601) 36,000; (3) South India Viscose Ltd. (Sirumugai 641302) 21,600 ; (4) Baroda Rayon Corpn. Ltd. (Udhna 394210) 30,000 ; (5) Andhra Pradesh Industrial Development Corpn. (Hyderabad 500001) 26,250 ; Total : 173,850 tonnes.

The three main sources of raw materials for the manufacture of synthetic organic chemicals are (i) by-products of coal carbonisation and coal-tar, distillation, (ii) alcohol, (iii) petroleum and natural gas and their derivatives.

The main raw materials for the manufacture of polyester fibres are dimethyl terephthalate (DMT) and ethylene glycol. Since the Gujarat State Fertilizer Corpn. manufacture caprolactum and Indian Petro-Chemicals Corpn. manufacture D.M.T. and oxylene, the availability of raw materials indigenously has considerably improved. Mono ethylene glycol is produced by NOCIL and also by IPCL.

MINES AND MINERALS

THE estimated value of mineral production in India during 1977 was Rs. 13,238 million as against Rs. 13,117 million in the previous year. Fuels (coal, lignite, petroleum & natural gas) constituting the leading group accounted for Rs. 9,697 million or 73·2 per cent of the total value of mineral production during 1977. The share of metallic minerals was Rs. 1,655 million and that of non-metallic minerals Rs. 950 million accounting for 13 and 18 per cent respectively.

In terms of value of output, coal including lignite was foremost with 60 per cent followed by petroleum and natural gas 19 per cent; iron ore 7 per cent; limestone 3 per cent; phosphorite and copper ore 2 per cent each; gold, chromite and manganese ore 1 per cent each; and other minerals together accounted for the remaining 4 per cent. The index of mineral production (quantum index) with base 1970 = 100 was 136 in 1976 as compared to 128 during the previous year. Among fuels, the index of both coal mining and petroleum and natural gas increased to 158 in 1976 from 145 in 1975 and that of non-metallic mining to 125 in 1976 from 112 in 1975.

Limestone is one of the most important industrial minerals required in the manufacture of cement, iron and steel, ferro-alloys, chemicals (for soda ash, caustic soda, bleaching powder, calcium carbide etc.), fertiliser (calcium ammonium nitrate) and lime.

From the present knowledge of reserves of various limestone deposits, it is apparent that sufficient resources of flux and cement grade limestone are available.

The production of limestone in tonnes and value in rupees respectively : 1975 : (26,521,000 ; 508,198,000) ; 1976 : (29,891,000 ; 584,777,000) ; 1977 : (29,951,000 ; 602,320,000).

Magnesite : Large deposits of magnesite are known to occur in Salem (Tamil Nadu), Hassan, Coorg, and Mysore (Karnataka), and Almora (U.P.). Small deposits are known in Dungarpur (Rajasthan) and Singhbhum (Bihar). The chief producing centres are Salem, Mysore and Almora districts. Magnesite is used in the manufacture of magnesium salt, metallic magnesium and refractory bricks.

Major part of the output is used in the manufacture of refractory bricks for steel works and some quantity is exported.

Production and export (in tonnes) respectively : 1975 : (313,453 ; 9,698) ; 1976 : (329,698 ; 8,240) ; 1977: (422,013 ; —).

Mica is treated as a strategic mineral and India accounts for a big slice of the world trade in it.

The principal mica deposits are concentrated in Bihar, Rajasthan and Andhra Pradesh. During 1976, Bihar accounted for 61 per cent of the all India output, followed by Andhra Pradesh 30 per cent and Rajasthan with 9 per cent.

There are three mica insulation bricks manufacturing units in Rajasthan utilizing scrap or mica waste. There is also one major unit manufacturing different types of micanite in Bihar.

The production of crude mica (excluding waste mica) and export of all grades of mica respectively in tonnes are : 1975 : (11,501 ; 34,679) ; 1976 : (9,485 ; 22,154) ; 1977 : (9,045 ; —).

Sulphur : The mineral pyrites is one source of sulphur. Important deposits of pyrites are in Amjhore (Bihar) and Saladipura area (Rajasthan). Presently Amjhore deposit is being exploited.

The Pyrites and Phosphates and Chemicals Ltd. has been set up to exploit pyrites for production of sulphuric acid and other related products. The company continued implementation of two projects viz. (1) Mining of 0·24 million tonnes of pyrites per annum at Amjhore, (2) production oriented exploratory mining pyrite project, Saladipura, Rajasthan. The Sindri acid plant of Fertiliser Corporation of India is the only plant consuming pyrites for the manufacture of sulphuric acid to be used in the manufacture of phosphate fertilizer. Rare Minerals : Investigations carried out by the Department of Atomic Energy have revealed a number of radioactive mineral deposits in India.

The beach sands of Kerala and Tamil Nadu contain a useful radioactive mineral — monazite, which contains thoria, uranium oxide, phosphate and a large percentage of rare earth oxides. Thorium can be converted into an important atomic fuel of the future. The total reserves of rare earth oxides in the beach sands have been estimated at approximately one million tonnes.

Ilmenite is also recovered from the beach sands of Kerala State and the Mahavalakurichi area in Tamil Nadu. It is now mainly exported to Japan. The present estimated resources of ilmenite in the country are placed at 100 to 150 million tonnes. During 1976 120,727 tonnes of ilmenite, valued at Rs. 29·94 million was exported.

India's present overall indicated and inferred of uranium are estimated at about 76,000 tonnes, and thorium at 500,000 tonnes.

Uranium bearing ores have been discovered in Singhbhum Thrust Belt of Bihar, and in the Hima regions of Himachal Pradesh and Uttar Prades uranium mine at Jaduguda in the Singhbhum worked by the Uranium Corporation of India Lt
Govt. of India undertaking, treats about 1,000 of ore per day in the uranium mill.

Investigation for uranium and other atomic in Andaman and Nicobar group of islands is cu progress.

It has been estimated that the resources of uran in India can support about 5 to 10 million kWs of e tricity generating capacity.

Iron Ore Exporting Countries: India played a leading role in the formation of the association of Iron Ore Exporting Countries. The purpose of forming the association was, to safeguard their legitimate interest in the present inflationary trends.

The first session of the conference of IOEC countries (India, Algeria, Australia, Chile, Mauritania, Venezuela) was held in London on 23rd and 24th October, 1975. Peru became the 7th signatory of the association.

The total iron ore production in the world was 794·00 million tonnes in 1973. The production of the signatory countries was 243·00 million tonnes — 30 per cent of the total world production. World exports of iron ore in 1972 were 246·5 million tonnes. The share of IOEC countries was 189·00 million tonnes — 76 per cent of the total exports. India's share in production was 4·4 per cent, and in exports 8·6 per cent.

New Surveys: Large reserves of limestone, coal, graphite and dolomite have been located in the eastern region of the country — Nagaland, Arunachal Pradesh, Mizoram and Meghalaya.

Meghalaya has indicated a reserve of about 900 million tonnes of limestone, while exploratory drilling has indicated the existence of a reserve of about 200,000 tonnes of zinc, copper and lead ore.

A coal reserve of about 29 million tonnes is also indicated in the Khasi-Jaintia hills and the Garo hills.

In Nagaland, the survey has revealed a sizeable patch of nickliferrous and chromiferrous rocks and limestone deposits.

In Arunachal Pradesh occurrences of sulphides cobalt have been found. A reserve of 16 million tonnes of non-coking coal has also been established.

The total limestone reserve in the state is about 275 million tonnes, while graphite deposits of 23,000 tonnes have been located in Subansari district.

In its effort to locate new mineral reserves the Geological Survey of India has taken up an intensive programme of investigation during the 1975-76 field season.

Over 71,000 sq. kms. area of geological mapping and 85,465 m. of drilling will be carried out in 22 states and Union territories.

The largest single deposit of iron ore in the country and in the world with an estimated reserve of about 1,500 million tonnes has been recently found by Mineral Exploration Corporation at Chiria in Singhbhum district of Bihar. Iron content of the ore was about 62 per cent.

MEC was currently exploring for coal deposits in Bihar, West Bengal, Madhya Pradesh and Maharashtra at the behest of the Coal Mining Authority and the Bharat Coking Coal Limited. Rich deposit of lead-zinc copper ore at Ambamata in Gujarat have also been discovered.

The first phase of exploration on the two million tonnes lead-zinc deposit at Jangamrajapalli in Cuddapah district of Andhra Pradesh was also completed.

The Geological Survey of India has also located one of the world's major deposits of barytes, about 15 million tonnes, in one block in the Mangampeta area of Andhra Pradesh. Barytes are used in drilling of oil.

Mining Projects under way: Eleven mining projects are now being developed in the coal sector. The details are : Sudamdih : A prime coking coal project in central Jharia. Monidih : Situated in central Jharia ; Jarangdih : Situated in Talcher (Orissa); Nandura : Situated in Talcher ; Jayant (Singrauli I) ; Bina : Situated in Singrauli; Balarampur: Situated in Karanpura ; Nanditoli: Situated by the side of Gidi C. Project ; Silewara expansion : Situated in Maharashtra ; Pipla : Adjacent to the Silewara expansion project and Katkona.

1977—Exploration

Bauxite has been located in the Tribal districts of Sarguja and Bastar (M.P.).

Copper deposits have been discovered in Thosham and Khadana (Bhiwani dist., Haryana) and Bastar dist. of Madhya Pradesh.

Phosphate : Massive rock phosphate, estimated to be about 52·2 million tonnes was discoverd in Jhamar-Kotra, near Udaipur.

Tin : Rich deposit of tin was located in Bastar dist., Madhya Pradesh.

Vermiculite : A rarely found micaceous mineral, has been found in Bakradih in Hazaribagh dist. (Bihar State). This mineral is used for sound-proofing rockets and in atomic research.

OIL-SEEDS AND VANASPATI

OILS and fats play an important role in India's economy with a current production of about 8·5 million tonnes valued at Rs. 25,960 million. Oilseeds form the second largest agricultural crop in quantity and value.

Employment : In 1974 oil-seeds were cultivated on 15 million hectares and provided employment to 14 million persons. In addition 0·5 million were employed in milling and processing units.

Area and Production of Five Major Oil-seeds 1976-77

Seed	Area	Production
Coconut	1,125·9	5,961·0@
Groundnut	6,947·6	5,262·4
Castor-seed	487·2	172·2
Sesamum-seed	2,165·1	403·9
Rape-seed & Mustard ..	3,144·5	1,561·8
Linseed	15,924·0	430·7

Area : Thousand hectares; Production : Thousand tonnes; @ million nuts.

(See the chapter on 'Food & Agriculture' for State-wise break-up).

Demand & Supply : The area under 5 major oil-seeds—groundnut, castor, linseed, sesamum and rape/mustard—increased from 13·1 million hectares in 1958-59 to 15·3 million hectares in 1962-63 and has remained stagnant at that level ever since.

The production of six major oilseeds — groundnut, rapeseed, mustardseed, sesamumseed, linseed and castor seed — in 1976-77 came down to 7·8 million tonnes against 10·2 million tonnes in the previous year.

The Fifth Plan target was 12·5 million tonnes.

In spite of the area and production being more than other countries the yield of oil-seeds in India is the lowest in the world at 736 kgs. per hectare against 1,615·38 kgs. per hectare in Nigeria, 1,474·58 kgs. in U.S., 1,153·49 kgs. in Argentina and 1,148·55 kgs. in China.

Imports : To partially cover the gap between demand and supply the Government has had to regularly import between 0·15 to 0·2 million tonnes of vegetable oils and fats every year. In 1977 imports were freely allowed to all refiners, blenders and manufacturers of oils. The vanaspati industry used at last 70 per cent of the imported oil. Total imports are estimated at 1·1 million tonnes.

Consumption : Per capita consumption of edible oils has declined from 3·4 kgs. per year in 1958-59 to 3 kgs. per annum in 1975-76. According to the Indian Council of Medical Research the per capita nutritional requirement is 20 kgs. per annum. The poor intake of oil-seeds in India is the direct result of their short supply.

Exports : Exports of vegetable oil in 1975-76 was of the value of Rs. 350 million and during April-December 1976 was worth Rs. 440 million. Oilcake brought in an additional amount of Rs. 860 million in 1975-76 and Rs. 1,660 million during April-December 1976.

COCONUT is one of the important oilseeds produced in the country mainly in South India. Production : Copra : 358,000 tonnes (edible : 32,500 tonnes, milling : 325,700 tonnes); coconut oil : 203,000 tonnes; no. of crushing units : 1,446; total installed capacity 1,351 tonnes per shift of 8 hours a day. 90 per cent of the milling copra is produced in Kerala.

GROUNDNUT: Groundnut production of India w[illegible] accounted for more than half of the world output in [illegible] 71 came down sharply to 32·4 per cent in [illegible] The 1977-78 production was estimated at 5·60 [illegible] tonnes vis-a-vis world production estimate of 16·36 [illegible] lion tonnes.

Exports of groundnut extractions form a lion's [illegible] the total exports of oil-seeds meal from India, and [illegible] tute more than 50 per cent of the total world exports. I[illegible] exported 1,248,389 tonnes of groundnut meal [illegible] Rs. 1,648 million during 1976-77.

Per Hectare Yield in kgs. of groundnut : 19[illegible] 845; 1974-75 : 724; 1975-76 : 948.

Groundnut Cultivation : The Vanaspati Manufacturers' Association of India ([illegible] House, [illegible] Rd., Bombay 400001), have conducted extension pro[illegible]grammes in 14 States covering 27,000 hectares of gro[illegible] nut plantations. It has been demonstrated that with [illegible] proved selection of seeds, better water manage[illegible] analysis and treatment and plant protection the yield of groundnut can be increased by 40 per cent. The A[illegible] tion has taken up large-scale multiplication of i[illegible] varieties of groundnut developed by BARC [illegible] cultural universities.

The association has 56 vanaspati factories as m[illegible] who produced 375,000 tonnes of vanaspati in 1977.

COTTONSEED : Until about the beginning of t[illegible] ties cottonseed was used almost entirely as a cat[illegible] but now 65 to 70 per cent of the total produ[illegible] available for crushing.

Scientific processing of cottonseed is undertaken by the 200 members of All India Cottonseed Crushers' A[illegible] tion, through which all exports of cottonseed oilc[illegible] canalised. The unorganised sector scattered throu[illegible] the cotton producing States also crushes cottonsee[illegible] with a lower oil recovery and complete loss of li[illegible] valuable raw material for pulp. In 1976-77, the [illegible] tors accounted for production of about 160,000 t[illegible] cottonseed oil, of which about 100,000 tonnes we[illegible] in the manufacture of vanaspati, the balance [illegible] marketed as refined liquid oil. In 1977-78, due to [illegible] large imports of cheap edible oils, the compulsory off[illegible] by vanaspati units was gradually reduced by go[illegible] from 30 per cent to 10 per cent. This [illegible] high prices of cottonseed due to a short crop were [illegible] ble for generally lower crushing of cottonseed in [illegible]

Exports : Decorticated cottonseed ex[illegible] lers, a by-product of scientific processing, have no mar[illegible] in India and have to be exported. The quantum [illegible] during 1975-76 was 198,145 tonnes valued at R[illegible] million. The corresponding figures for 1976-77 being [illegible] tonnes and Rs. 230 million respectively. The better [illegible] [illegible] were partly due to higher [illegible]

SOYABEAN: The Central Government has a 25 per [illegible] incentive scheme which subsidises the soyabean grower's purchase of pesticides and other inputs to the exten[illegible] one-fourth of his purchase price. This is in pursuanc[illegible] the Government's policy to encourage soyabean culti[illegible] vation for its protein rich content and its use as an [illegible] tional source of edible oil.

The area target envisaged for the Fifth Five [illegible] Plan is 400,000 hectares but the actual achievement w[illegible] only 120,000 hectares at the end of 1975-76 and the p[illegible] duction was 80,000 tonnes.

According to an agreement signed in January, 1977, India will import 50,000 tonnes of soyabean oil from the U.S. valued at about $26 million.

Sunflower Oil : With proper techniques of cultivation, yields up to 2 tonnes per hectare can be obtained. The success of sunflower cultivation depends on the availability of high-yielding fresh varieties of seeds as the crop is highly cross polinated. The Government has sanctioned a scheme for producing such seeds.

Under a Central Government programme sunflower has been grown in Andhra Pradesh, Tamil Nadu and Karnataka.

The Central Government introduced an incentive scheme for sunflower growing by which it envisaged to cover an area of about one million hectares by the end of Fifth Plan.

Non-edible oils for soaps : In 1959 as much as 75 per cent edible oils were used in the manufacture of soap. By 1972 the use of edible oils had dropped to 25 per cent. Efforts have been stepped up to use indigenous sources of non-edible oils such as rice bran oil, mowrah oil, linseed oil, castor oil and solvent oil of groundnuts and minor oils from forest tree seeds. This has not only generated employment in rural India but has saved Rs. 200 million in foreign exchange which would have been spent on the import of 60,000 tonnes per annum of tallow or edible oils.

Castor Oil : Export of castor oil during 1974–75 was 20,420 tonnes valued at Rs. 138 million, while during April-December 1975 it was 21,374 tonnes valued at Rs. 93·20 million.

Inedible castor oil has two significant potentials :

(1) With suitable processing castor oil can be used in the manufacture of soaps to the extent of over 25 per cent thereby relieving to that extent the pressure on other edible oils.

(2) Castor oil has great export potential as it is used for conversion and in the lubricant industry. India and Brazil are the only major sources of castor oil in the free world. If India can export the oil-based chemical equivalent of 20,000 tonnes of castor oil, instead of exporting crude castor oil, the additional foreign exchange earnings would be about Rs. 30 million.

Linseed Oil : Exports fetched Rs. 167 million for the quantity of 19,653 tonnes in 1974–75 and Rs. 185 million for the quantity of 27,219 tonnes during April-December 1975.

Oil-palm : Grown under expert guidance and suitable conditions oil-palm can give higher output of oil per hectare than any other oil-seed crop. For instance, whilst groundnut gives 200 kgs. of oil per hectare in India and 600 kgs. per hectare in most efficient countries, and sunflower gives 360 kgs. of oil per hectare, oil-palm gives 1,800 kgs. of oil per hectare in plantations in Malaysia.

Under a State Government scheme in Kerala saplings germinated from the Malaysian red palm oil-seeds have been planted up to 1976 in an area of 2,500 hectares. The yield will be of the following order (i) Red palm oil 4,446 tonnes (ii) Kernel oil 616 tonnes (iii) Oil cake 616 tonnes.

A similar project has also been sanctioned by the Central Government for Andaman and Nicobar islands on an area of 2,400 hectares.

Lemon-grass Oil : It is chiefly grown in Kerala. India exports more than Rs. 10 million worth of lemongrass oil annually. It is mainly used as a base for some perfumes for the soap-making industry.

Mentha Oil : Mentha farming has been encouraged in the country to save foreign exchange used in the import of mentha oil, an important ingredient in most medicines.

The Kumaon region has been found to be the most suitable area for the cultivation of mentha. The present production of mentha oil is about 200 tonnes valued at Rs. 16 million. This has resulted in the saving of Rs. 10 million in foreign exchange.

Palmarosa Oil : India ranks first among nations producing palmarosa oil, and is the chief supplier of this important raw material for perfumery manufacture, earning foreign exchange worth Rs. 3 million annually.

Pine Oil : The first pine oil factory in the country was started at Hoshiarpur in the Punjab. Three others were set up thereafter. It produces pine oil, dipentine and pine tar. This factory is claimed to have resulted in the saving of foreign exchange to the tune of Rs. 3 to 4 million annually. Another factory to produce high quality pine oil is being set up in Jammu.

RESEARCH : The Central Government has sanctioned Rs. 38 million for a comprehensive all India co-ordinated research project on oil-seeds to be conducted under the Indian Council of Agricultural Research.

The centres for conducting research for different oil-seeds are as follows :

Groundnut : The main centres are at Ludhiana in Punjab for northern region, Tindivanam in Tamil Nadu for south-eastern region, and Rajendranagar in Andhra Pradesh for southern region. The sub-centres are located at Mainpuri, Uttar Pradesh ; Pollachi, Tamil Nadu ; Kadria and Sambalpur in Madhya Pradesh, and Raichur and Dharwar in Karnataka.

Castor : Rajendranagar in Andhra Pradesh, is the main centre and Salem, Tamil Nadu, and Raichur, Karnataka are the sub-centres.

Sesamum : The main centres are at Coimbatore, Tamil Nadu for southern region ; Jubbalpur, Madhya Pradesh for central region; and Sumerpur, Rajasthan for northern region. The sub-centres are at Karimnagar and Visakhapatnam in Andhra Pradesh ; Bhubaneshwar, Orissa ; Urmala, Maharashtra ; and Jhansi, Madhya Pradesh.

Linseed : Kanpur, Uttar Pradesh is the main centre and Patna, Bihar, and Jhansi and Jabalpur in Madhya Pradesh are the sub-centres.

PAPER INDUSTRY

BRIEF HISTORY

THE word paper comes from Papyrus a reed growing on the banks of River Nile in Egypt, yet the art of paper making is popularly known to have been invented by the Chinese as early as the third or second century before the Christian era. In India the tradition of making paper by hand can be traced only to the 8th Century A.D. Paper making was considered to be one of the premier domestic cottage industries before the commencement of the British rule. In India the first paper factory was started in Bengal in the latter half of the 18th century by a Christian missionary. The hundred years that followed never saw the laying of a firm foundation for the industry. It was only in 1967 that a real beginning was made when a modern paper mill was established at Bali in Bengal.

Private Sector : There are 75 paper and paper board units in the private sector, with an annual installed capacity of 1·13 million tonnes.

There are three rayon grade pulp units and one paper grade pulp factory all in the private sector. The total installed capacity of the three rayon grade pulp units till 1977-78 was 117,000 tonnes per year. During 1976-77, production was 118,000 tonnes and during 1977-78 it was estimated to be 125,000 tonnes. Output of pulp grade paper was 22,000 tonnes during 1976-77 and was estimated to be 22,000 tonnes during 1977-78. Six more concerns have been issued letters of intent to produce rayon grade pulp.

Public Sector : National Newsprint and Paper Mills Ltd. (NEPA) at Nepanagar, Madhya Pradesh is the only unit that produces newsprint in the country and is able to meet only 20 per cent of the demand. Seven schemes for the establishment of a total capacity of 340,000 tonnes of newsprint have been approved.

Security Paper Mill : At Hoshangabad, 45 miles from Bhopal, Madhya Pradesh, set up in 1968 in collaboration with a British firm manufactures annually 28,000 tonnes of special quality paper for currency and bank notes.

No. of Persons Employed : About 65,000.

Ranking in the World Market : India ranks 20th among the paper producing countries in the world.

Production : Total production of all varieties of paper and paper board during 1977 was 906,000 tonnes as against 875,000 tonnes in 1976.

Hindustan Paper Corporation Ltd. (HPC) (Registered Office : Vishal Bhavan, 95, Nehru Place, New Delhi 110024) was established in May, 1970 with the object of establishing new pulp, paper and newsprint mills in the country. Its authorised capital is Rs. 1,000 million and so far the Government has invested Rs. 668·70 million in its equity capital.

The plant in Nagaland with 33,000 tonnes per year capacity is scheduled to go into production in December, 1978. The Kerala newsprint project with 80,000 tonnes per year capacity is scheduled to begin production by the middle of 1979.

Two new projects in Assam, one at Nowgong and the other in Cachar district, each with a capacity of 100,000 tonnes a year had been cleared by the Government from investment angle in March 1977. The approved capital outlay for this project is Rs. 1,142·50 million.

HPC also manages the Mandya National Paper Mills Ltd.

Newsprint : The country's total requirement of newsprint is estimated at 200,000 tonnes per annum. So far there is only one public sector company — National Newsprint and Paper Mills in Nepanagar, Madhya Pradesh. Production of newsprint during 1977–78 was expected to be 60,000 tonnes compared to 57,000 tonnes in the previous year. The annual capacity is 75,000 tonnes.

The Mysore Paper Mills at Bhadravati (Karnataka) is poised for a major expansion involving an investment of Rs. 1,000 million. The Company, which is licensed to produce 75,000 tonnes of newsprint per year, will be the biggest paper producing unit in India in a single location, when the project is completed. The expansion is so planned as to be completed within 30 months. The company is getting ready to deliver the first newsprint consignment by the beginning of 1980.

The Government spends about Rs. 650 million every year to import 1·7 million tonnes of newsprint to meet the demand.

By-Products : There are 30 units manufacturing straw and mill boards, 7 manufacturing carbon paper, 3 manufacturing duplicating stencils, one unit manufacturing cardiograph paper, and one new unit manufacturing speciality papers such as tissue, foil lining, airmail etc.

Hand-made Paper : There are 184 units producing hand-made paper. There are 4,200 workers including full-time, part-time and casual hands in this industry. The output of hand-made paper in 1974-75 was 3,570 tonnes valued at Rs. 13·11 million.

Co-op. Paper Mill : The first co-operative paper mill began production in May, 1976 at Pravaranagar near Shrirampur.

The Pravara Pulp and Paper Mills makes paper from bagasse, wheat chaff and old gunny bags. It has a capacity of 25 tonnes a day.

GENERAL

- Six schemes for the establishment of a total capacity of 166,500 tonnes of rayon grade pulp have been approved.

Letters of intent have been issued to two parties, one in Jammu & Kashmir and another in Himachal Pradesh for setting up new units for the manufacture of paper grade pulp. The total approved capacity is 23,000 tonnes per year.

HPC is investigating the possibility of setting up a speciality paper project in Sikkim. It has also been assisting the State Governments in examining the feasibility of setting up pulp/paper mills in a number of other areas like Himachal Pradesh, North Bengal and Bastar (M.P.).

Training : Paper technology is taught at (1) Birla Institute of Technology and Science, Pilani, Rajasthan (Degree); (2) Forest Research Institute, Dehra Dun, Uttar Pradesh (Diploma); (3) Institute of Paper Technology, Saharanpur, Uttar Pradesh (Diploma and Certificate).

Research : Forest Research Institute, Dehra Dun, Uttar Pradesh was the only well-equipped research body uptil now. Recently Parkhe Research Institute at 1183, Shivajinagar, Fergusson College Rd., Pune 411005 was started to study the various problems of paper industry and to design sophisticated machines for paper manufacture. However, many large mills conduct research for their own requirements.

PETRO-CHEMICAL INDUSTRY

GROWTH : The petro-chemical industry was mainly grouped into plastics (polyethylene, PVC, polystyrene, polypropylene), synthetic fibres (polyester, nylon and acrylic), synthetic rubber (styrene, butadiene and polybutadiene) and synthetic organic chemicals as raw materials for plastics, synthetic fibres, dyestuffs, pesticides, synthetic detergents and pharmaceuticals. With the development of process technology using petroleum distillate as the main ingredient, the petro-chemical industry emerged to supply all the basic chemicals that were once derived from coal, alcohol and vegetable oils.

RAW MATERIALS : The raw materials constituting the source for chemicals from petroleum may be divided into three categories : (i) gaseous, (ii) liquid and (iii) solid. Following are some of the important raw materials :

Natural gas : Natural gas is composed mainly of methane, ethane, propane, butane, pentane, hexane and higher hydrocarbons. The quantities of pentane and hexane determine what is known as wetness of the gas. Natural gas is found either associated with crude oil or non-associated. The non-associated gas contains little of the pentanes and above hydrocarbons and as such it is called dry gas. Besides the hydrocarbons, natural gas may contain a certain amount of nitrogen, hydrogen sulphide, carbon-dioxide and helium.

Derivatives : Natural gases provide a basis for the manufacture of lower aliphatic petro-chemicals and ammonia, methanol and their end-products and also carbon black.

Sources : Gaseous sources are found in Naharkatiya and Moran oil fields in Assam and Ankleshwar, Kalol and Cambay oil fields in Gujarat. Whilst the gases in the Ankleshwar and Kalol oil fields are wet with a high percentage of higher hydrocarbons the Cambay gas is dry constituting mainly of methane, ethane and small quantities of propane and butanes. The Gujarat gas is likely to be used for the manufacture of ammonia to feed the fertiliser industry.

Refinery gas : This is the gas produced at various stages in the refinery operations mainly from the straight distillation units and the thermal and catalytic cracking and reforming processes. The cracked gases are generally very rich in olefins and are polymerised to get high octane gasoline where required. They are also a very useful source of petro-chemicals. The distillation gases are generally mostly paraffins and are normally used as fuels in the refinery itself. The refinery gases being rich in butane and propane, have found extensive use as domestic and industrial fuel in liquefied form.

The international oil crisis has had a decisive impact on the feedstocks for the petro-chemical industry. In India the petro-chemical and fertiliser industries have been planned on the basis of increasing availability of naphtha with the increasing demand for petroleum products. Till the sixties this valuable petroleum product was exported. Its utility as a feedstock for the production of organic chemical and plastics was appreciated in the mid-sixties.

Demand : Current demand for naphtha for 1977–78 is about 2·34 million tonnes against a production of about 2·19 million tonnes requiring an import of 0·15 million tonnes. If the programmed production for fertiliser and petro-chemicals materialises the demand for naphtha during 1978–79 will be 2·9 million tonnes and by 1980–81 about 3·6 million tonnes.

Uses of Naphtha : Nitrogenous fertiliser is a rapidly growing item in underdeveloped countries. Naphtha reforming yields hydrogen, which is required for the synthesis of ammonia, a basic material in fertiliser production. To produce one tonne of ammonia less than a tonne of naphtha is required.

Olefins are the base for the bulk of petro-chemicals produced. Ethylene is the most important followed by propylene and butadiene. The cracking of naphtha to produce olefins is a major commercial process. Naphtha crackers are generally so designed as to give variable ratios of olefins according to market requirements of their end products.

Production of aromatics (e.g. benzene, toluene, xylenes, etc.) from naphtha by reforming is another major use of naphtha. Aromatics are used for the production of synthetic fibres, high quality gasoline, etc.

New Naphtha-based Industries : Among the existing fertiliser plants, four units are at Trombay in Maharashtra, Gorakhpur in Uttar Pradesh, Kota in Rajasthan and Madras in Tamil Nadu. Three fertiliser plants at Goa, Cochin in Kerala and Durgapur in West Bengal were operating at half capacity since they began production in 1973. At full capacity they will consume 500,000 tonnes of naphtha a year. During 1974-75 three more naphtha consuming fertiliser plants were to be erected at Tuticorin in Tamil Nadu, Mangalore in Karnataka and Barauni in Bihar which would need another 600,000 tonnes.

Naphtha requirements for the petro-chemical industries in Bombay and Gujarat are about 990,000 tonnes.

PETROLEUM INDUSTRY

RIEF HISTORY

REAL foundation of oil industry in the public sector was laid only during the Second Plan period (1956–61) when the Government of India launched a planned rogramme of exploration, production, refining and distriution. The Oil and Natural Gas Commission was set up n 1956 and the Ministry of Petroleum and Chemicals in 963.

Oil exploration had been started by Assam Oil Company/Burmah Oil Company and their associates in the 19th Century confined to the Upper Assam region. From 1949 to 960 the Standard Vacuum Oil Company explored the West Bengal Basin first alone and then with the Government f India as the Indo-Stanvac Petroleum Project. The roject, however, did not succeed, though it produced aluable data which has since been made the subject f very detailed studies. Till May 1976, crude in comnercial quantities was produced only in Assam and Gujarat. Since then, commercial production has begun n the offshore region of 'Bombay High'. Currently, Bombay High crude production is 5 million tonnes per nnum and is expected to increase to 10 million tonnes per nnum by 1980. In addition, crude and gas reserves have lso been established in the associated Bassein, Tapti tructures.

roduction : ONGC, Oil India Ltd. (OIL) and Assam Oil Company Ltd. (AOC) are the only three agencies enaged in the production of crude oil. The production in Gujarat, which is exclusively by ONGC, is about 4·2 nillion tonnes per annum. The production from offshore reas is 5·0 million tonnes. The production in Assam is bout 4·5 million tonnes per annum, of which the contriution from OIL is 3·12 million tonnes.

During 1977, about 1,250 million cubic metres of associaed and non-associated gas were supplied to various ustomers in Gujarat and Assam. Associated gas from the Bombay High field is also available.

rude Demand: The present demand for crude (1977-78) about 24·5 million tonnes, of which indigenous producion is about 10·75 million tonnes. The demand by the end f the decade will be 32 to 34 million tonnes depending n the progress made in improving fuel usage and developg substitutes, particularly coal.

xpenditure on Crude Imports in 1977-78 was about s. 13,200 million for about 14·7 million tonnes.

rice of Imported Crude: As against U.S. $1·28 a arrel in 1970 the price in Jan., 1977 was U.S. $12·81 a arrel representing 10-fold increase.

ipelines : The longest pipeline under construction is tended for the pumping of imported and Bombay High udes from Salaya in the Gulf of Kutch to Mathura finery a distance of about 1,222 kms. A branch from is pipeline will be laid to Koyali refinery to divert some ombay High and imported crudes to this expanded finery.

Oil Companies: There are five oil companies engaged in the refining and marketing of petroleum products. These are Indian Oil Corporation Ltd. (IOC), Bharat Petroleum Corpn. Ltd., Hindustan Petroleum Corporation Ltd. (HPC), Caltex Oil Refining (India) Ltd. (CORIL) and Assam Oil Company Ltd. (AOC). Of these only the last still remains in the private sector. Full ownership of Esso interests in HPC were acquired by Government in October, 1976. Burmah Shell interests in India were fully acquired in February, 1976 under the name of Bharat Refineries Ltd. (later renamed Bharat Petroleum Corpn. Ltd.) Similarly, Caltex interests were fully acquired by the Government in January, 1977 under the name of Caltex Oil Refining (India) Ltd. till it was merged into Hindustan Petroleum Corpn. Ltd. in May, 1978.

In addition to these companies, there are two public sector companies (each with a minority foreign collaboration) — Cochin Refineries Ltd. (CRL) and Madras Refineries Ltd. (MRL) which are engaged only in the refining of petroleum products and one public sector company, Indo-Burma Petroleum Company Ltd. (IBP) which is engaged in the marketing of petroleum products.

Refineries in Operation : There are ten refineries in operation. They are :

Refineries under Construction : There are two refineries under construction — one at Mathura U.P. and the other at Bongaigaon (Assam). The Mathura refinery (IOC) will have a capacity of 6 million tonnes per annum and will be the biggest in the country. It is expected to cost Rs. 3,370 million and to go on stream in 1980-81. The Bongaigaon Refinery and Petrochemicals Ltd. has a design capacity of 1 million tonnes per annum. The fuels sector of this refinery was expected to be on stream in early 1978. An allocation of Rs. 1,300 million has been made for this refinery.

An expansion programme at Koyali refinery started in January, 1974 was expected to be completed in 1978 bringing the capacity of the refinery to 7·3 million tonnes per annum.

Crude Import: About 14·0 million tonnes of crude worth Rs. 12,400 million was expected to be imported in 1977-78.

Oil and Natural Gas Commission (Tel Bhavan, Dehra Dun 248001, U.P.).

ONGC is the only public sector undertaking engaged in exploration for and exploitation of crude oil and natural gas resources in various sedimentary basins of the country both onland and offshore. Its operations do not cover certain areas in the North East which have been leased out to Oil India Ltd. and Assam Oil Company. It has also undertaken oil exploration in foreign countries.

ONGC has extended its exploration operations to all sedimentary basins (about 1·41 million sq. kms.) of India. It has at present 13 geological, 240 seismic, 5 gravity magnetic, 2 shallow drilling, 22 electrologging parties and 34 deep drilling rigs in operation in various onland sedimentary basins in the country. Besides 4 offshore drilling units — one is acquired and three on charter hire — are conducting drilling, and production testing operations in the Bombay offshore areas. ONGC has also acquired a seismic vessel 'Anweshak' for conducting geophysical surveys in the various offshore areas. This vessel has been in operation since August 1975.

ONGC has undertaken (upto the end of December 1977) drilling on 182 structures (162 on land and 20 offshore), of which 165 structures had been fully tested and remaining were under testing or drilling. Of the 165 tested structures, 54 had been found to be oil or gas bearing — 36 in Gujarat, 8 in Assam, one each in H Pradesh, Rajasthan & Tripura and 7 in the Bombay shore areas. This gives a success ratio of 1 : 3.

ONGC had by the end of December 1977 drilling of 1,504 wells on these structures with a depth of 3·115 million metres. Of the 1,504 wells, 805 had proved oil bearing, 97 gas bearing, 29 injection wells, 410 wells were dry and the re wells were either under test or to be tested fully or repaired.

As a result of drilling, ONGC has been able to (as on 1-1-1976) 275·37 million tonnes of initial recove reserves of crude oil, (onshore—127·69, offshore—14 and 138,422 million cubic metres of natural gas fro shore areas and the Bombay Offshore areas.

Offshore drilling : The country has 385,000 sq. km offshore shelf area (where water depth is within 200 me ONGC has carried out surveys in the Gulf of Cam Arabian Sea, Gulf of Kutch, Coromandal Coast, ar Krishna-Godavari Delta and the south of Sunder extending westwards and have discovered 18 struc features which are favourable for oil accumulation. mission began drilling for oil in the Bombay High S ture in 1973. By the end of December 1977, of th structures drilled, 17 structures were tested and 7 oil/gas bearing.

In order to speed up exploration Govt. of India leased, on production sharing contract, two prom areas to two American companies one off the Kutch C to Messrs. Reading and Bates Oil and Gas Co. and the in the Bay of Bengal to Messrs. Carlsburg Petroleum poration. Messrs. Reading and Bates drilled one well in Kutch area and Messrs. Carlsburg drilled two wells in Bay of Bengal and since they were found dry they dis tinued operations since February, 1976 and May 1976 pectively. Messrs. Asmera Group of Companies of Cana joint venture between three Canadian oil companies ONGC, took up exploration work in the Gulf of Ma under a production sharing contract. After condu seismic surveys the group drilled one well and foun to be dry.

Production—Onshore : Beginning with produ of 100 tonnes of oil per day in September 1961, O has now reached 15,000 tonnes per day. Besides a 2 million cubic metres per day of associated gas is supp to consumers in Gujarat and Assam. By the end of De ber 1977 ONGC had produced and sold 50·45 m tonnes of crude oil and condensate at 15·57 m cubic metres of natural gas and saved the cou over Rs. 17,500 million in foreign exchange. During year 1977-78, ONGC expected to produce 5·62 m tonnes of crude oil from the onland fields in Assam Gujarat.

Production—Offshore : Offshore production on May 21, 1976, from two wells at an initial rate of bbls per day which was gradually stepped up, after tion of the fourth production platform, to 80,000 (about 3·83 million tonnes per annum) by January 1978. After certain modification to the two w production platforms (A&C) the production rate expected to be stepped up to 100,000 bbls per day million tonnes per annum) by June/July 1978. By the of December, 1977, ONGC had produced a total of million tonnes of crude oil from the Bombay field. During 1977-78 the production expected from bay High was around 5·00 million tonnes.

Overseas Operations — Iran: ONGC is exploring and developing oil fields in collaboration with AGIP of Italy, Phillips Petroleum of USA and the National Iranian Oil company. The interest of ONGC in this joint venture are looked after by its wholly owned subsidiary company, Hydrocarbons India Ltd. (HIL). The share of HIL is one sixth of the oil produced. Till December 1977, the crude oil lifted by HIL totalled 39·46 million barrels.

Iraq : After completion of seismic surveys of this area drilling of a well at Abukhema was commenced on 19th August, 1975. The well after tests, showed presence of oil. Since the rate was below the minimum productive capacity to give it the status of " Discovery oil well " further operations were therefore suspended.

ONGC has also secured a drilling contract for another 5 wells in Iraq. Drilling of the first well on SUBA structure had commenced in 1977. ONGC is also conducting seismic surveys in Iraq under a separate service contract.

Tanzania: Under a contract with Tanzanian Petroleum Development Corporation, ONGC undertook drilling Songo-Songo island in June, 1976. However, due to a blow out the first well was abandoned and a second well showed presence of gas. Exploration continues.

Research and Development : The Geoscience group makes an overall evaluation of all Indian Offshore and Onshore basins, fixes priorities for exploration and draws up broad based exploratory strategy. A new Institute is being set up at Ahmedabad for the study of Reservoir Engineering. It will play an important role in maximising recovery of hyrocarbons from proven oil fields. A feasibility report for the Institute of Drilling Technology has been prepared and will be taken up for implementation during 1978-80. The Institute will tackle drilling problems in difficult areas where high pressures and high temperatures are encountered. The commissioning of a Computer Centre at Dehradun in 1976 helped to process seismic data at a rapid rate and also do mathematical modelling of all the reservoirs.

Oil India Ltd. (H.O. Duliajan, Upper Assam): With its equity held in equal proportion by the Government of India and The Burmah Oil Company, this private sector enterprise is concerned with exploration and production of crude oil and natural gas on its leases in Assam and its transportation to refineries in Gauhati (Assam) and Barauni (Bihar) through its 1,157 km. long oil pipeline system. A limited quantity of crude is also supplied to the Digboi refinery of the Assam Oil Company. The capacity of its pipeline system has been expanded from 3·1 mtpa gross to over 5·1 mtpa to carry additional crude to be supplied by the O.N.G.C. to the Bongaigaon and petrochemical complex when it goes on stream. Natural Gas, mostly associated, is supplied to the Fertiliser Corporation of India (Namrup), the Assam Electricity Board, Assam Petrochemicals Limited, various tea gardens besides injecting the same in the fields for pressure maintenance. Oil India (O.I.L.) ended the year 1977 by producing 3·12 million tonnes of crude oil from its limited concessions of 1990·02 sq. km. of mining leases and 551·668 sq. km. of Petroleum Exploration Licence area which constitute under 2 per cent of the total sedimentary basin available in the country for exploration and development.

The " discovery " well NHK-1 was drilled in 1952-53. As at 1-1-78 about 297 development wells and 86 exploratory wells with a cumulative metreage of 1,264,139 had been drilled by the Company. Out of these wells 262 are oil bearing and 20 are gas producing.

Crude oil production during the calendar year 1977 was 3·12 million tonnes and deliveries to the refineries were 3·066 million tonnes. Gas sales to the market approximated 565 million cubic metres. An outlay of Rs. 376·80 million for 1978-79 has been approved by the Planning Commission.

Indian Oil Corporation Ltd. : (Regd. Office : 254-C, Dr. Annie Besant Rd., Prabhadevi, Bombay 400025). The Indian Oil Corporation comprises two divisions viz. Refineries Division and Marketing Division.

Indian Oil has put up its own lube blending plant and also its own drum plant at Madras.

Research & Development Centre : IOC has its own Research & Development Centre at Faridabad near New Delhi. Various engines, rigs, analytical instruments have been imported and commissioned for evaluation and testing of lubricants and other petroleum products. The Centre gives formulations to Indian Oil Blending Limited, a subsidiary of Indian Oil Corporation, for blending all lubricants, specialities etc. Some meligenous lubricants under the brand name 'Servo' have been developed by the Centre for defence, railways, power houses and steel plants etc.

The Centre has obtained international approvals for some of IOC lubricants and is working on getting approval for other grades. With a view to conserving kerosene, the Centre has designed and developed a high efficiency wick stove (Nutan).

Indian Oil Blending Ltd.: A subsidiary fully owned by Indian Oil Corporation Ltd., has two lube blending plants in Bombay and Calcutta and a grease manufacturing plant in Bombay.

Indo-Burma Petroleum Co. Ltd. : (Regd. Off. : Gillander House, N. Subhash Rd., Calcutta 700001). It became a subsidiary of the IOC on 12th January, 1970, and markets motor gasoline and diesel oil of the IOC refineries.

PLASTICS INDUSTRY

BRIEF HISTORY: The Indian plastic industry made a modest start around 1926 with the manufacture of combs, soap boxes, ash trays, etc., from imported materials.

In India, the first plant to be established in the plastics and petrochemicals sector was in 1958 by the Imperial Chemical Industries (ICI).

Location of the Industry : According to a recent survey by the Plastic Institute (Indian Section), there are at present about 5,000 plastic processing units spread all over the country, of which, nearly 4,000 are in the small-scale sector. These units provide gainful employment to around 350,000 workers.

Capital Investment : The current capital investment in plastics industry is about Rs. 3,750 million. To build up an industry of sufficient strength, an annual investment of Rs. 2,500 million for the next ten years is needed.

Per Capita Consumption : The per capita consumption of plastic goods in the country at present is estimated to be just 1 kg. In 1970, the per capita consumption in selected other countries was as follows: West Germany 59 kg., the U.S.A. 45·7 kg., Japan 36·9 kg., India 0·25 kg.

There are over 50 different materials clearly identified as plastics and their number is increasing continuously.

The public sector made its debut with the incorporation of the Indian Petrochemicals Corpn. Ltd. (IPCL) at Vadodara in March, 1969 to develop petrochemical projects based on feedstock available from refineries. (See chapter on Petro-Chemical Industry for details.)

RUBBER INDUSTRY

RUBBER is obtained from the milky juice called latex of various tropical plants of which only a few like Castilloa, Manihotglaziovii, Ficus Elastica, Funtumia Elastica, Parthenium Argentatum and Hevea Braziliensis are of commercial importance. Hevea Brasiliensis (known as Para rubber) tree accounts for over 95 per cent of the world production of natural rubber.

BRIEF HISTORY :

Columbus is credited with the discovery of rubber during his second voyage to America towards the end of the fifteenth century. He reported the existence of a gum which was used by the natives of America as balls for games. An Englishman used the term 'rubber' in 1770 when he found that the substance could be used for removing pencil marks. With the discovery of the process known as vulcanisation in 1836 by Goodyear, rubber came to be commercially used.

In India rubber was first planted in Travancore and Malabar in around 1880. Plantation on a commercial scale commenced in 1902.

No. of persons employed : More than 160,000.

Ranking in the world market : India is the fifth largest natural rubber producing country in the world after Malaysia, Indonesia, Thailand and Sri Lanka.

Location of Rubber Plantations : Kerala State accounts for about 91 per cent of the total area under rubber and the Kanyakumari District in Tamil Nadu for about 4 per cent with Karnataka, Andaman and Nic Islands, Goa, Maharashtra and the North Eastern States contributing the rest. Table I gives the State-wise break up of rubber growing units and area at the end of the year 1976-77.

Production and Consumption : Production of natural rubber which was 137,750 tonnes in 1975-76 went up to 149,632 tonnes in 1976-77. The production during 1977-78 was expected to touch 155,000 tonnes. Consumption of natural rubber during the last 10 years went up from 68,685 tonnes to 137,623 tonnes. Table II gives the trend in production and consumption since 1973-74.

Per Capita Consumption: In 1975 the per capita consumption of rubber in USA was 12·6 kgs., Canada (kgs., Australia 7·4 kgs., UK 7·8 kgs., Germany (8·3 kgs., France 8·2 kgs., Italy 6·1 kgs., and Japan kgs. In India per capita consumption is as low as 0·2

nports : Due to increased indigenous availability Govern-ent of India imposed a total ban on import of natural bber from 1973-74 onwards.

However the industry imports certain varieties of ecial purpose synthetic rubbers. The trend in import of tural and synthetic rubber since 1972-73 is given in ble IV.

ubber Goods : The total number of rubber goods anufacturers in India is around 2,000 units of which er 100 units are fairly well organised. The annual turner of the industry is estimated to exceed Rs. 7,500 illion and the number of persons employed over 0,000. The industry is spread almost all over the country, ough heavily concentrated in the States of West Bengal, aharashtra and Tamil Nadu. With the exception of aryana, Uttar Pradesh and Kerala, the industry has ade comparatively little progress in other States. Natural
d synthetic rubbers are the basic raw materials.
her important raw materials include carbon black, bber chemicals, reclaim rubber, tyre fabrics (nylon/yon/cotton), bead wire, tyre tube valves and miscellaous chemicals. The automotive tyres and tube industry nstitutes the largest sector of the rubber goods anufacturing industry. There are 10 companies with factories manufacturing automotive tyres and tubes.
out 52 per cent of the rubber consumed in the country used by this sector (including camelback). Cycle tyres
d tubes account for about 14 per cent consumption, twear about 11 per cent, belts and hoses about 6 per nt and the balance is accounted for by other products.

port of Rubber Goods : The year 1976-77 witnessed tremendous spurt in export earnings of Rs. 270 million

Earnings from automobile tyres and tubes by way of port doubled from Rs. 85 million in 1975-76 to Rs. 184
llion in 1976-77.

Export earnings of footwear increased from Rs. 23
llion in 1975-76 to Rs. 35 million in 1976-77, an increase nearly 50 per cent.

Export value of general rubber goods increased from . 37 million in 1975-76 to Rs. 51 million in 1976-77, an crease of about 35 per cent. Export of cycle tyres and

nthetic Rubber : Only Synthetic & Chemicals Ltd., Bareilly (U.P.) produces synthetic rubber. Built with initial rated capacity of 30,000 tonnes per annum it
ced is styrene butadiene rubber and nitrile rubber led Chemaprene. Another synthetic rubber factory with a licensed capacity of 20,000 tonnes of poly-butadiene rubber has been established recently by Indian Petro-Chemicals Corpn. at Vadodara (Gujarat) and was expected to start production in 1978. The trend in production, consumption and import of synthetic rubbers since 1972-73 is given in Tables II & III. The consumption of synthetic rubber is about 20 per cent of the total rubber consumption. The tyre industry uses more than 60 per cent of the total synthetic rubber output.

Rubber Development Schemes : The Rubber Board is implementing various schemes for the development of rubber plantations in India. These include grant of subsidy for replantation, grant of loans and aids for new planting and maintenance of small holdings, distribution of high yielding varieties of planting materials, grant of subsidy on the cost of fungicides and fertilisers used by the small holders, grant of subsidy for construction of smoke-house by small holders, distribution of plant protection equipments, grant of financial assistance to co-operative societies for establishing processing centres and undertaking marketing of rubber. The Board also operates an extension and advisory service among rubber growers. Labour welfare measures also form part of the work of the Board.

In 1977 an agreement was signed by the Govt. of India and the World Bank for financial assistance to establish 9 block rubber processing factories in the co-operative sector and expansion of the existing factory in the sector. The project is to be implemented in a phased manner and is to be completed by 1985.

SHIPPING INDUSTRY

BRIEF HISTORY

THE earliest evidence of shipping and ship-building activity is found in the archaeological remains of Mohen-jo-daro, in the Indus Valley, dating back to some 2500-1500 B.C. Ever since, the shipping and shipbuilding industries have passed through various vicissitudes of fortune.

On the eve of the country's independence, in August 1947, India had only 48 coastal vessels of 119,000 GRT and 11 foreign-going vessels of 73,000 GRT.

Position Today: On Jan. 1, 1978, there were 5·35 million GRT in operation and 0·81 million GRT on order.

Ranking in the World: India in terms of GRT occupies the 16th position among the world maritime countries owning a total of 5·35 million GRT as on July 1, 1977.

Among the principal world merchant fleets (as on July 1, 1977), Liberia ranks first owning about (79·98 million GRT) followed by Japan (40·04 million GRT), the UK (31·65 million GRT), Greece (29·52 million GRT), Norway (27·80 million GRT), USSR (21·44 million GRT) and Panama (19·46 million GRT).

National Maritime Day and Merchant Marine Flag Day: 5th April every year.

Indian Register of Shipping: Inaugurated on April 4, 1975 with its head office in Bombay. The National Classification Society supervises shipbuilding and e in operation ships are properly maintained at the site standard of sea-worthiness. The Society h
Shipping, Det Norske Veritas and Lloyd's Reg
Shipping on the basis of dual class. Chief

National Shipping Board: Statutory Advisory on Shipping on which all the interests concerned, shipowners, are represented.

SHIPBUILDING INDUSTRY

(See chapter on Government of India U where details of Hindustan Shipyard, and Garden Reach Workshops are given.)

A new public sector Cochin Shipyard is being will have the capacity to build 2 ships a year of 85,000 dwt. each. The first series of ships to be yard are 75,000 dwt. "PANAMAX" type bulk
The public sector shipyards — Mazagon
Bombay and Garden Reach Shipbuilders and Ltd., Calcutta — are intended mainly to cater to requirements but their capacity is also available construction of merchant ships. The Goa engaged in shipbuilding activities in addi general engineering works. The Rajabagan ged in building inland vessels and harbour crafts such barges, launches, trawlers, tugs and dredgers upto 000 GRT. Two more public sector shipyards are pro-osed to be constructed at Hazira (Gujarat) and Paradip rissa).

There are several small shipyards under private sector read over the country which are capable of constructing harbour crafts and inland vessels such as tugs, barges, launches, dredgers, trawlers etc.

Research Body: The Government of India has decided to establish a research organisation for designing ships. At present India has to purchase designs.

The proposed Central Marine Design Research Organisation will cost Rs. 100 million.

Some of the major schemes included in the inland water transport programme are dredging of Cumberjua Canal in Goa, improvement of Buckingham Canal in Andhra Pradesh and Tamil Nadu, of Champakara and Neendakara Canals in Kerala and construction of jetties and acquisition of ferry crafts for the operation of ferry services on the river Hooghly between Calcutta and Howrah.

SILK INDUSTRY

BRIEF HISTORY: Sericulture in India falls into two ctors, mulberry and non-mulberry. Mulberry silk industry is better organised and accounts for nearly per cent of the natural silk production. The non-erry sector comprises of tasar, eri and muga silk. dia is the only country in the world which produces the four commercially known varieties of natural lk.

LOCATION OF THE INDUSTRY: Andhra Pradesh: Produces mulberry and tasar raw silk. Mulberry in the Anantapur and Chittoor districts, and tasar in the forest regions along the banks of the river Godavari in Karimnagar, Warangal, Khammam and Adilabad districts. New areas in Srikakulam, Vizag, Medak and Hyderabad districts have also been selected for silk production. About 13,000 persons are employed.

Assam : Produces muga, eri and mulberry raw silk mostly in Lakhimpur, Dibrugarh, Kamrup and Nowgong districts. Sibsagar is prominent for mulberry production. Recent investigations show possibilities of producing oak tasar silk in Garampani area. It is estimated that about 360,000 persons derive their livelihood from silk cultivation.

Due to the formation of Meghalaya, most of the sericultural centres were bifurcated.

Bihar : Bihar ranks first in the production of tasar with nearly 63 to 64 per cent of production mainly in the districts of Hazaribagh, Ranchi, Singhbhum, Palamau, and Santhal Parganas. About 100,000 persons derive their livelihood by practice of tasar culture and weaving of tasar fabrics.

ammu & Kashmir : The univoltine mulberry silk Industry is mainly located in Anantnag, Baramulla and Srinagar in Kashmir valley and Udhampur, Doda, Rajouri and Jammu in Jammu province. It provides employment to about 38,000 persons.

Karnataka : It is the biggest multivoltine mulberry silk producing State in India contributing over three-fourths of the total production. Bivoltine rearings have been introduced of late, during all seasons of the year. Production of this high grade bivoltine silk in 1976-77 was 49·4 tonnes. The industry is concentrated in the districts of Bangalore, Kolar, Tumkur, Mysore and Mandya, and to a small extent in Dharwar, Belgaum and Raichur. Tasar production has been started in North Canara and Belgaum districts. About 2 million persons are gainfully employed in the different sectors of the industry.

Madhya Pradesh : Is the second largest producer of tasar silk in the country. It is largely based in the districts of Bastar, Bilaspur, Raigarh, and Surguja and to a small extent in Ambikapur, Raipur and Mandala districts. Mulberry is also cultivated to a small extent in Dhar, Indore, and Sehore districts, and provides subsidiary occupation to nearly 40,000 persons.

Maharashtra : Bhandara and Chandrapur districts have traditional tasar culture and there is one tasar seed farm at Armori ; Mulberry (Tuti) has been successfully experimented at Bhagawati, Kolhar, Shrirampur taluk. Vast areas on either bank of the river Pravara now lying fallow also hold scope for development of mulberry sericulture. About 15,000 people are estimated to be employed.

North Eastern Council States : The north-eastern States comprising of Arunachal Pradesh, Assam, Manipur, Meghalaya, Mizoram and Nagaland hold out scope for large scale-development of the non-mulberry sector, more particularly oak tasar in Manipur, Mizoram, Nagaland and Garampani area of Assam. Ericulture is also largely practised in Assam, Arunachal Pradesh, Meghalaya, Mizoram and Tripura. Mugaculture is confined to Assam and parts of Meghalaya. Scope for development of mulberry sericulture is limited and confined to certain pockets of Assam, Manipur, Mizoram and Tripura. At present about 421,000 tribals are practising sericulture. The development programmes initiated is expected to provide additional employment to about 224,000 by 1978–79.

Orissa : Tasar is concentrated in Mayurbhanj and Keonjhar districts. Besides ericulture, mulberry sericulture is also practised to a limited extent. About 10,000 are employed.

Punjab : Mulberry silk is produced mainly in the d of Amritsar, Gurdaspur, Hoshiarpur and to some ext in Ferozepur, Patiala, Ropar and Ludhiana.

Tamil Nadu: The sericultural industry is practised districts of Dharmapuri, North Arcot, Salem, Coimbatore and South Arcot. The State Govern an ambitious programme of 200,000 kgs. of raw silk pro tion in the State by intensification of the develop activities, more particularly in the Dharmapuri dis It provides employment to about 30,000 persons.

Uttar Pradesh : Sericulture industry has been on co-operative lines both in the rearing and re sectors. The industry is extensively pra districts of Dehra Dun, Saharanpur, Nainital, Al Tehri Garhwal, Paurigarhwal and to a small extent districts of Etawah, Gorakhpur, Bijnore, Mo Gonda, Rampur, Deoria, Meerut, Chamoli, Pith and Uttarkashi. Seasonal conditions permit raising bivoltine cocoon crops and one multivoltine cocoon per annum, the latter being raised mainly in the foo The State also holds scope for large scale introduct oak tasar culture in the hill districts fringing the H layas. Already a beginning has been made for systema development of the industry in the State in collabora with the Board's Regional Research Station functioni at Bhimtal.

West Bengal : West Bengal occupies a prestigious pos tion as a producer of both mulberry and tasar silks. It the second largest producer of mulberry raw silk in th country accounting for nearly 17 per cent of the tota output. The industry is practised mainly in the d of Malda, Murshidabad, Birbhum, Midnapore and Bankur and to some extent in Nadia and West Dinajpur districts Total area under mulberry is around 8,000 hectares a present and is likely to go up to 9,200 hectares by th end of the current plan. The State has fixed a produ target of 520,000 kgs. of raw silk by the end of 1978-79.

Production of tasar silk is confined to the distr Purulia, Midnapore and Birbhum. Ericulture is pr in Jalpaiguri and Cooch-Behar districts. Produ tasar and eri silk yarn is presently around 8,000 a 5,000 kgs. respectively. Total employment potential o the industry as a whole is of the order of 400,000 person

Himachal Pradesh : Rears univoltine mulberry silk worms in Kangra and Mandi districts. The other r where sericulture is practised are Una/Hamirpur a Nahan districts. 10,000 persons earn their livelihoo Manipur: Has both mulberry and eri silk cult and potential for tasar culture. About 3,000 per employed. A target of 50,000 kgs. of oak tasar 1978–79 has been fixed.

Tripura : Sericulture has been recently introduced. Som 2,600 persons have taken up silk cultivation.

Ranking in the World Market : With a prod 2,686 tonnes of mulberry silk and 582 tonnes of wild silk 1976–77 India continued to rank fifth among the silk pro ducing countries of the world. However, India is th country in the world which produces the famed "Muga Silk" and is also the second largest prod tasar silk, next only to the People's Republic of C

There are three spun silk mills, located at Channapatna in Karnataka, Jagi Road in Assam and Bhagalpur in Bihar having an installed spindleage of 7,500, 3,000 and 3,000 respectively.

On an average 800 to 1,000 tonnes of silk-waste are exported annually.

Sericulture is a cottage industry 'par excellence'. With an agricultural base, industrial superstructure and an essentially labour intensive set up, sericulture is an effective tool for generating gainful employment. Presently it provides whole time and part time employment to more than 3·5 million persons in the rural areas of the country.

The headquarters of the Board are located in Bombay. The Board has set up 4 regional offices to ensure close co-ordination of Central and State efforts to develop the sericulture industry. Head Office: Central Silk Board, 'Meghdoot', 95-B, N. Price Stability Measures: The Board has established a raw material bank for tasar cocoons and raw silk at Chaibasa in Bihar. A similar bank for mulberry raw silk is proposed to be set up soon at Bangalore.

Testing: A Central Silk Conditioning and Testing House has been established by CSB at Srinagar at the same address as its regional office.

Training: A fifteen month post-graduate course is offered at the Central Sericultural Research and Training Institute, Mysore 570008, Central Tasar Research Station, Ranchi (Bihar), and Central Sericultural Research Station, Berhampore (West Bengal). The academic session commences in July every year. The course includes 3 months' intensive training in the practice of sericulture both in the mulberry and non-mulberry sectors. The capacity of the Institute is to train 25 students every year. It also caters to foreign students.

Training at "technician" level is imparted by the sericultural States themselves. Such institutes are at (1) Srinagar (Jammu & Kashmir); (2) Channapatna (Karnataka); (3) Berhampore & Malda (West Bengal); (4) Bhagalpur & Chaibasa (Bihar) and (5) Titabar (Assam).

Refresher course for a short duration of 4 weeks is offered every year for in-service officers sponsored by the State Governments. Special training courses are also organised from time to time to overcome the paucity of technical personnel for manning the various developmental projects including the Central Project Schemes directly implemented by the CSB.

Central Projects: There are 43 Central Projects which are implemented directly by the Central Silk Board. These Projects cover research, training, basic seed production and extension services. The Board has taken up under Central Projects, organisation of bivoltine silkworm seed production centres in the States of Karnataka, West Bengal, Jammu & Kashmir, Tamil Nadu and Andhra Pradesh.

Improvement in mulberry yield per unit area through better farming and or propagation of superior strains is another important item of work under progress. The Board has also organised Regional Tasar Research Stations and Extension Centres to propagate tasar rearing on oak plants which are available extensively as nature grown in the sub-Himalayan regions of Assam, Manipur, Uttar Pradesh, Himachal Pradesh and Jammu & Kashmir.

Publications: (1) 'Indian Silk' (monthly); (2) 'Indian Journal of Sericulture' (Annual); (3) 'Silk in India' (Biennial), all brought out by the Central Silk Board.

An interim report submitted by the working group on sericulture to the Government of India has fixed the following financial, physical, export and employment target for the sixth five year plan: (i) Financial Provision: (1) States scheme: Rs. 600·0 million, (2) Central scheme: Rs. 400·0 million, total Rs. 1000·0; million (ii) Production of raw silk at the end of 1982-83: 6,250 tonnes; (iii) Export target for the whole plan: Rs. 2,150·0 million; (iv) Additional employment to be generated during the plan 800,000.

SMALL-SCALE INDUSTRY

DEFINITION: Small-scale industries are the "Undertakings having investment in fixed assets in plant and machinery not exceeding one million rupees."

The small-scale sector has reported a 13 per cent increase in production for 1977 with total production at Rs. 75,700 million against Rs. 67,000 million in the previous year.

The number of registered small-scale units in the country rose to 269,000 in 1977 compared to 247,000 in 1976.

The share of the small-scale sector in the total exports of the country also increased from 15·97 per cent in 1975-76 to 17·07 per cent in 1976–77. The exports during 1976–77 were valued at Rs. 8,782·3 million against Rs. 6,374·5 million in the previous year, representing an increase of 40 per cent.

Ancillary Industries: Ancillary industries are the "Undertakings having investment in fixed assets in plant and machinery not exceeding Rs. 1·5 million engaged in: (a) the manufacture of parts, components, sub-assemblies, toolings or intermediates, or (b) the rendering of services and supplying or rendering or proposing to supply or render 50 per cent of their production of the total services, as the case may be to other units for production of other articles; provided that no such undertaking shall be a subsidiary of, or owned or controlled, by any other undertaking".

Apart from the increase in the investment ceiling, the new definition for ancillaries involves changes in the following important respects: (i) Units producing intermediates will now be recognised as ancillaries; (ii) Units providing servicing facilities, e.g. sandblasting machining, pressure cleaning, grinding etc., will be recognised as ancillary; (iii) The concept of "parent" unit will now include, small-scale industries also. Thus, one small industry can function as ancillary to another; (iv) A unit to be recognised as ancillary should or propose to supply at least 50 per cent of its production to one or more parent units.

Industrial units pertaining to the following 26 industries are being promoted as ancillaries: Metallurgical industries (ferrous and non-ferrous); fuels; boilers and steam generating plants, prime movers; electrical equipment; telecommunications; transportation; industrial machinery (a. major items of specialised equipment used in specific machines — including textile accessories, b. general items of machinery used in several industries such as the equipment required for unit processes, c. other items of industrial machinery); machine tools; agricultural machinery; earthmoving machinery; miscellaneous mechanical and engineering industries; commercial office and household equipment; medical and surgical appliances; industrial instruments; scientific instruments; mathematical, surveying and drawing instruments; defence industries; fertilisers; chemicals (other than fertilisers); photographic raw films and paper; dyestuffs; drugs and pharmaceuticals; paper and pulp including paper products; rubber goods; intermediates for chemical and pharmaceutical industries.

Small-scale ancillary units can be registered even for items for which registration of new units and expansion of existing units is banned provided the unit fulfils other conditions for registration as ancillary units.

The estimated production of such registered SSI units in 1977 was of the order of Rs. 75,700 million with an employment of 2·9 million. Including the contribution of unregistered units under the purview of the SIDO sectors production would be of the order of Rs. 124,000 million with an employment of 5·6 million.

District Industries Centres : In pursuance of the Statement on Industrial Policy (Dec. 1977), the Government of India have decided to set up 460 District Industries Centres, one in each district of the country, for effective development of cottage and small industries widely dispersed in rural areas and small towns of the country. The objectives is to provide, under a single roof all the services and support required by small and village entrepreneurs.

The District Industries Centres are required to undertake economic investigation of the potential for development of the district including its raw material and other resources, supply of machinery and equipment, provision of raw material, effective arrangements for credit facilities, marketing assistance and quality control, research, extension and entrepreneurial training. The Government of India are financing the construction of buildings and the staff according to an overall pattern. Nearly 200 District Industries Centres were expected to become operational by the end of May, 1978, and the remaining by the end of the year.

SPICES

INDIA has always been the traditional home of spices and has throughout history been associated with their trade. It was for spices that men from strange lands came to the shores of India and bartered their wares. Since then, spices figure in the country's exports.

Indian spices are of the finest quality and today the demand for them has considerably increased in all countries.

PEPPER

Pepper, known as the "King of Spices", is the most important foreign exchange earner. The Indian black pepper is considered to be superior in quality and fetches a export price.

Pepper production in India accounts for about cent of the total world production of about tonnes and, more than 80 per cent of it is exported.

The State-wise break-up of area and production year 1976-77 is given in the chapter on 'Food & culture'.

Export of pepper during 1975-76 totalled valued at Rs. 338·80 million but declined to valued at Rs. 382·35 million during 1976-77.

Per hectare yield of pepper is about 276 kgs. The internal consumption of pepper in 1976-77 was 11,073 tonnes.

An annual production target of 38,000 tonnes has been fixed. So far only 'whole' pepper was being exported. Of late, green pepper (pickled and dehydrated), pepper powder and pepper oleoresin are also being produced and exported in appreciable quantities.

CARDAMOM

Cardamom, known as the "Queen of Spices" earns the second highest amount of foreign exchange among spices. Indian exports amount to 90 per cent of total world exports.

The state-wise break-up of area and production for 1976-77 is as follows :

State	Area ('000 hectares)	Production ('000 tonnes)
Kerala	54·7	1·9
Karnataka ..	39·6	2·4
Tamil Nadu ..	4·7	0·4
Total ..	99·0	4·7

Exports during 1973-74 amounted to 1,800 tonnes valued at Rs. 110·09 million ; in 1974-75 to 1,696 tonnes valued at Rs. 134·18 million ; in 1975-76 to 2,000 tonnes valued at Rs. 195-10 million and in 1976-77 to about 950 tonnes valued at Rs. 130·49 million.

Per hectare yield of cardamom is about 47 kgs.

India is the leading ginger producing country and accounts for about 50 per cent of dry ginger output in the world. Our Cochin ginger is regarded as next best to Jamaican ginger.

Area and production of ginger during 1976-77 is given in the chapter on 'Agriculture'.

In 1974-75 India exported 4,681 tonnes of ginger valued at Rs. 35·13 million. In 1975-76 exports amounted to 4,800 tonnes valued at Rs. 41·05 million and during 1976-77 exports of 4,461 tonnes earned Rs. 58·43 million.

Besides dry ginger, ginger oleoresin and ginger oil are also exported at present.

Per hectare yield of ginger is about 1,623 kgs. The internal consumption of ginger in 1974-75 was 33,838 tonnes, during 1975-76 it was 40,876 tonnes which included the import of 519 tonnes and 526 tonnes respectively.

CHILLIES

The cultivation of chillies is widely scattered throughout the country. Its annual consumption varies from region to region, ranging from about 3·5 kgs. per adult in Andhra Pradesh to around 5 kgs. per adult in Maharashtra. In Punjab, Bihar, U.P. and Orissa consumption is lower. The State-wise break-up of area and production for the year 1976-77 is given in the chapter on 'Food & Agriculture'.

Following are figures of exports : 1974-75 : 499 tonnes valued at Rs. 3·16 million ; 1975-76 : 3,500 tonnes valued at Rs. 31·80 million ; 1976-77 : 3,129 tonnes valued at Rs. 27·22 million.

The major turmeric growing States in India are Andhra Pradesh, Maharashtra, Bihar, Tamil Nadu and Orissa. The state-wise break-up of area and production of turmeric during 1976-77 is given in the chapter on 'Food & Agriculture'.

Turmeric has surpassed chillies in the spices trade by becoming the third largest foreign exchange earner.

The exports of turmeric during 1974-75 amounted to 9,227 tonnes valued at Rs. 41·44 million ; during 1975-76 it amounted to 11,800 tonnes valued at Rs. 42·10 million ; and during 1976-77 it was 11,796 tonnes valued at Rs. 44·38 million.

Per hectare yield of turmeric is about 1,794 kgs. The internal consumption of turmeric in 1975-76 was 123,411 tonnes which included an import of 11 tonnes.

It is the most expensive spice in the world. At present the cultivation of this crop in India is confined to certain pockets of Jammu & Kashmir hills where about 2,048 hectares is currently under the crop.

OTHER SPICES

Other items of spices which are exported from India are coriander seed, celery seed, fenugreek, aniseed, cassia, cummin, curry powder, fennel seed, garlic and bay leaf. Besides whole spices, oil of celery, ajowan, cardamom, ginger, pepper, aniseed, cinnamon, garlic and oleoresin of capsicum and fenugreek are also produced in India.

Exports of these spices during 1974-75 amounted to 9,000 tonnes valued at Rs. 54·50 million, during 1975-76 to 11,200 tonnes valued at Rs. 62·70 million and during 1976-77 to 18,100 tonnes valued at Rs. 107·30 million.

EXPORTS

India's spices exports have increased from Rs. 166 million in 1960-61 to Rs. 613·33 million (51,600 tonnes) in 1974-75 and to an all time record of Rs. 729·60 million in 1976-77 (56,000 tonnes).

The following quantities of oleoresins of pepper, capsicum, ginger and fenugreek were exported during 1975-76.

Grading of spice commodities according to Agmark specifications has been made compulsory under the Sea Customs Act for export trade.

Regulated Markets : With a view to preventing exploitation of producers and getting better prices for their produce, several markets have been regulated under Agricultural Produce Market Act. About 644 markets for chillies, 331 markets for turmeric, 283 for garlic, 129 for ginger, 183 for cummin and 345 for other spices have already been regulated in different States of India.

STEEL INDUSTRY

BRIEF HISTORY

ALTHOUGH India occupied a pre-eminent position in iron and steel making in the ancient world, the industry on modern lines is about seventy years old. It came into existence with the launching of the Tata Iron and Steel Works at Jamshedpur, Bihar in 1907. Before this, a number of attempts were made in different parts of India to start the industry by both private companies and the Government, but none of these was even moderately successful.

The Jamshedpur steel works went into operation by stages in 1911-12. In 1919 Indian Iron and Steel Company established a unit near Asansol, West Bengal. Meanwhile the first unit in the public sector was put up in Karnataka on the banks of river Bhadra. Production in Mysore Iron and Steel Works began in 1923.

Upto the end of Second World War these three were the only main units in India producing 1·7 million tonnes of pig iron and a million tonnes of steel ingots annually.

The development of modern steel industry began during the Second Five Year Plan with the setting up of three integrated steel plants in the public sector, each with 1 million tonnes ingot steel capacity at Bhilai, Durgapur and Rourkela. These plants came into operation in stages between 1956 and 1962. During this period capacity of TISCO at Jamshedpur and IISCO at Burnpur was doubled. The total ingot steel capacity thus rose to 6 million tonnes. With the expansion of Bhilai to 2·5 million tonnes ingots, Durgapur to 1·6 million tonnes ingots and Rourkela to 1·8 million tonnes ingots, the total capacity of the integrated steel plants was raised to 8·9 million tonnes between 1962-73.

Holding Company : The Steel Authority of India Ltd. (SAIL) was set up under the Companies Act on 24th January, 1973, to provide co-ordinated development of both the private and the public sectors.

With the establishment of SAIL, remarkable progress was shown by the Indian steel industry and saleable steel production which was stagnant at around 4·5 million tonnes for almost a decade started looking up. The five integrated steel plants have produced 6·9 million tonnes of saleable steel during 1977-78.

Expansion Programmes : Because of financial and material constraints the expansion programme during the Fifth Plan was expected to be less ambitious. Major contribution to additional production would come from the expansion of the Bhilai and Bokaro plants.

During the Fifth Plan period Bhilai would be expanded from 2·5 to 4 million tonnes and Bokaro from 1·7 to 4·75 million tonnes of ingot capacity.

By 1982-83 the demand for finished steel is likely to be about 10·98 million tonnes. Because of highly improved capacity utilisation in the integrated steel plants and Bhilai and Bokaro Steel plants' second stage of 4·0 million tonnes of ingot steel having gone into operation and also because of the revival of the electric furnaces the domestic availability of finished steel is estimated to be 11·8 million tonnes by 1982–83. India will thus be surplus in steel to the extent of 0·9 million tonnes which will be available for export.

Private Sector

Tata Iron and Steel Company Ltd. (TISCO) (Head Office : Bombay House, Homi Mody St., Bombay 4[illegible]) owns, in addition to the integrated steel plant at Jamshedpur, captive collieries at Sijua, Jamadoba and West Bokaro and an iron ore mine at Noamundi all in Bihar State and iron ore, manganese ore, limestone, dolomite and other mines in Orissa. The steel plant at Jamshedpur is the oldest integrated steel plant in the country. The installed capacity of the plant is 2 million tonnes of steel ingots per annum equivalent to 1·5 million tonnes of saleable steel. The Company produces a variety of semi-finished and finished steel items like blooms, billets, tin bars, rails, structurals bars, electrical steel sheets, strip, plates, black and galvanised sheets, rolled rings, railway wheels, tyres and axles, and ferro-manganese, agricultural tools, sulphate of ammonia and benzol products.

Public Sector

Besides the steel plants at Bhilai (Madhya Pradesh), Rourkela (Orissa), Durgapur (West Bengal) and IISCO at Burnpur which come under Steel Authority of India Ltd. (SAIL) there is the Bokaro Steel Plant in Bihar which is being constructed with the help of the Government of USSR since 1966. The agreement was signed on January 25, 1965. The first stage of 1·7 million tonnes ingots has since been completed and the plant has started marketing finished hot rolled and cold rolled products. Bokaro and Bhilai Steel plants' expansion to 4 million tonnes ingot steel annual capacity is going on side by side.

There is also the Visvesvaraya (Mysore) Iron and Steel Ltd. (VISL) at Bhadravati, Karnataka. It was started in 1923 as a small blast furnace and was expanded from time to time and is now one of the main producers of alloy and special steels in the country. In addition, it also manufactures ferro-silicon cement, castings etc. It is now a joint undertaking of the Government of Karnataka and Government of India through SAIL.

New Steel Plants : The Salem Steel Plant is estimated to cost Rs. 5,168·8 million according to the consulting engineers, Messrs. M. N. Dastur & Co. A committee has studied the report and has made its recommendations to the Steel Authority of India. 1,545 hectares of land has already been acquired and production in the first phase is expected to begin by September 1981.

Investment decisions on the other two plants — Visakhapatnam (Andhra Pradesh), and Vijaynagar (Karnataka) — are expected to be taken after a thorough study of plant capacity, product-mix and capital and operation costs. The detailed project reports for both the plants have been received from the consultants and are under scrutiny by Experts Committee.

Ranking in the World Market : India which ranked only 30th in the world ranking (non-Communist bloc) of steel producers during 1974 moved up to 11th position in 1977.

SUGAR INDUSTRY

BRIEF HISTORY

SUGAR manufacture in India got a spurt after the Government granted it protection in 1932. From dependence on imports the country became self-sufficient within four years thereafter.

In 1931-32 there were an estimated 32 working units. By 1935-36 the number rose to 130. The volume of sugar production which was 162,000 tonnes in 1931-32 increased to 947,000 tonnes by 1935-36.

LOCATION OF THE INDUSTRY : Area under sugarcane cultivation in major producing States in 1977-78 was as follows (in '000 hectares): Andhra Pradesh: 135; Bihar: 126; Haryana: 175; Karnataka: 106; Maharashtra: 284; Punjab: 117; Tamil Nadu: 142; Uttar Pradesh: 1,478; Total (All India): 2,775.

State-wise break-up of the sugar factories in 1976-77 given in brackets:

GENERAL: On 25th May, 1971 Government decontrolled sugar. However, a partial control was reimposed with effect from 1st July, 1972, the proportion between levy and free being 60 : 40. However for the season 1972-73 Government reduced the share of free sugar to 30 leaving the balance 70 per cent for levy. The same position was maintained for the season 1973-74 but for 1974-75 the proportion between levy and free was changed to 65 : 35 respectively. The Government allowed 5 per cent free sugar to sugar industry to cover various cost increases with effect form January, 1975. The same proportions have been extended to 1976-77 and 1977-78 seasons. On 16th August, 1978, sugar was once again decontrolled by the Government of India.

Beet-sugar : Beet-sugar has been produced for the first time in India by the State owned Sri Ganganagar Sugar Mills in Rajasthan. During 1975–76 the plant diffused 242,000 quintals of beet and produced 25,687 quintals of sugar. The recovery percentage rose to 11·70 against the earlier average recovery of 10·1 per cent. The yield per hectare also improved from 9 tonnes to 20 tonnes.

Training : The Sugar Industry gives practical training facilities to students of sugar technology and also trains a number of apprentices, as required under the Apprentices Act.

National Sugar Institute at Grand Trunk Rd., Kanpur 208001, Uttar Pradesh conducts courses in sugar technology, besides many other agricultural universities which have this as a subsidiary subject.

Research is conducted at the Indian Institutes of Sugarcane Research at Coimbatore, Tamil Nadu Lucknow and Uttar Pradesh.

So far, licences/letters of intent have been issued for establishment of 181 co-operative sugar factories. Of these 116 sugar factories are in operation. Others are in various stages of establishment. In the year 1976-77, the co-operative sugar factories produced 2·31 million [illegible] sugar which was about 48 per cent of the total [illegible] in the country in that year.

TEA INDUSTRY

BRIEF HISTORY

CHINA is believed to be the original home of the tea plant where it was first introduced as a medicine.

In 1823 the tea plant was discovered growing wild in Assam. It was then that China lost its monopoly of tea trade. The East India Company sent the first shipment of eight chests of Assam tea which were sold in London in May, 1834.

LOCATION OF THE INDUSTRY

The two main tea-growing regions in India are North-East India and South India the break up of which is given in Table I.

No. of Persons Employed: The estimated daily average labour employed during 1974 was as follows: North India: 609,401 ; South India : 152,316 ; All India : 771,717.

Total tea production in India in 1977 saw an average increase of 9·38 per cent over the 1976 level at 559·81 m. kgs. Production in 1976 stood at 511·82 m. kgs.

Of the increase of 47·99 m. kgs., North India accounted for as much as 28·97 m. kgs. and South India just 19·02 m. kgs.

Auction Centres : Indian tea is sold through auction centres at Calcutta and Cochin, which are also the major ports for export of tea, where nearly 170 m. kgs. and 65 m. kgs. of tea respectively is sold annually. Tea is also auctioned at Gauhati, Amritsar and Coonoor. In North India an auction centre at Siliguri has been newly opened in the month of October, 1976.

About 40 m. kgs. of Indian tea is sold through the London auction centre, major portion of which is meant for consumption in the U. K.

The Central Government earns about Rs. 320 million annually on tea through the customs and central excise.

Research : The Toklai Experimental station in Assam is considered to be one of the largest research establishments in the world dedicated entirely to tea. The United Planters' Association of Southern India (address : Coonoor, Tamil Nadu) has its own tea experimental station in Nilgiri Hills. Facilities for tea research in south India are at the Central Laboratory and Field Station in the Anamallis and a sub-station in Kerala. The scientific problems of the tea industry in the Kangra Valley are looked into by a Tea Experimental Farm located at Palampur. All these tea research establishments in India receive substantial financial assistance from the Government through the Tea Board of India (address : 14, Brabourne Rd., Calcutta-700001) which also maintains a close liaison with these institutions. The Tea Board also sponsors and finances independent research projects at different universities and technical institutions to supplement the work of the various [illegible] research establishments in the country.

Tea Corporation : Assam state-owned corporation was formed in 1971 and a similar corporation was proposed to be set up in West Bengal in 1976 to take over and [illegible] sick and uneconomic tea gardens.

TOBACCO INDUSTRY

BRIEF HISTORY

ALTHOUGH the official history of the development of tobacco on commercial scale in this country dates back to the advent of the Portuguese in the early 17th century, large number of references to tobacco in Puranic tales and the Ayurveda show that tobacco was known to India from times immemorial.

The black porous soil in certain parts of east India, throughout the Coromandel coast, particularly Guntur, East and West Godavari and Prakasam districts of Andhra are considered to be favourable to the growth of quality grades of tobacco.

The present total number of cigarette factories in the private sector is 17, of which 6 are in Maharashtra, 3 in Andhra Pradesh, 2 each in West Bengal and Uttar Pradesh and 1 each in Karnataka, Bihar, Madhya Pradesh and Gujarat. Recently letters of intent have been issued to set up 9 new cigarette factories. The cigar industry is concentrated in Tamil Nadu, whilst the production of bidis is a cottage industry on a country-wide basis.

The first joint sector cigarette factory at Bari Brahman, 18 kms. south of Jammu has been put up by the state-owned Jammu & Kashmir Industrial Development Corporation and the Golden Tobacco Co. Ltd. The factory has attained a production level of 1·5 million cigarettes per day.

There are about 19 zerda (chewing tobacco) manufacturing factories and 3 snuff factories in the country situated mostly in Tamil Nadu and Uttar Pradesh.

Public Sector : The State Industrial Development Corporations of Assam, Haryana, Jammu and Kashmir, Kerala and Tamil Nadu have each been issued a letter of intent to set up a cigarette manufacturing unit. Each unit will have a capacity of 4,500 million cigarettes annually, except the unit in Assam which will have a capacity to produce 3,000 million pieces per year. An application from the Madhya Pradesh Industrial Development Corporation is reported to be under consideration.

No. of Persons Employed : It is estimated that about 700,000 growers and 500,000 curers are engaged in tobacco cultivation. In the manufacturing sector, the [illegible] number of persons employed is estimated at 3 million of which, 2 million are in the bidi industry. About 14,000 are employed in the cigarette industry.

Nearly 80 per cent of the tobacco produced is locally consumed and the rest is exported.

Consumption of Cigarettes : The per capita consumption rate per month in India is about 10, as against 217 in US, 176 in UK, 170 in Japan, 168 in Singapore, 70 in Malaysia, 24 in Pakistan, 20 in Sri Lanka and 13 in Nepal. Consumption of Cigarettes in India was expected to reach 100 billion pieces by 1978-79.

IMPORTS

The quantity and value of tobacco (manufactured, unmanufactured and cigarettes) imported into India during the past three years are given in the table below:

Year	Quantity (in kgs.)	Value (Rupees)

GENERAL

The nicotine content in Flue-Cured Virginia tobacco grown in India ranges between 0·6 per cent to 3 per cent. Nicotine content is lower in Virginia tobacco grown in light soil areas and high in tobacco grown in heavy black soil.

Tobacco is an excisable commodity and its movements, processing and manufacture from the stage of harvesting till it is consumed or exported are controlled by the Central Board of Excise and Customs of the Ministry of Finance.

The excise collection during 1975-76 amounted to over Rs. 3,000 million.

Research : Research programmes on tobacco are implemented by the Indian Council of Agricultural Research. The Council has initiated an All India Coordinated Research Project on tobacco with its headquarters at Anand (Gujarat) with a view to conducting research for all round improvement of Indian tobacco.

The Central Tobacco Research Institute at Rajahmundry in Andhra Pradesh is mainly devoted to the investigation of fundamental problems connected with various aspects of tobacco. It also co-ordinates the work of other tobacco experimental farms and research stations (listed below), spread all over the country, which are carrying out research on different types of tobacco grown in the concerned regions.

1. Tobacco Research Station, Guntur, Andhra Pradesh.
2. Tobacco Research Station, Hunsur, Karnataka.
3. Tobacco Research Station, Vedasandur, Tamil Nadu.
4. Tobacco Research Station, Pusa, Bihar.
5. Tobacco Research Station, Dinhata, West Bengal.
6. Bidi Tobacco Research Scheme, Anand, Gujarat.

India Tobacco Co. Ltd., and their sister concern Indian Leaf Tobacco Development Co. Ltd. are conducting research on various aspects of tobacco at their research centre in Rajahmundry, Andhra Pradesh. Recently the company has established an integrated research centre at Bangalore.

The Indian Tobacco Development Council of the Government, formulates the tobacco development programmes, reviews the progress and considers the problems of marketing, trade and price policy.

The Tambaku Vikas Nideshalaya (Directorate of Tobacco Development) in the Ministry of Agriculture, with its headquarters at 3-A, Eldams Rd., Teynampet, Madras 600018, implements the development schemes, channels Government finances and renders technical advise and guidance.

Besides the development schemes, Tobacco Extension Units are also operating in the tobacco growing areas under the control of Agricultural Departments of the State Governments for educating and training the farmers in the improved methods of harvesting, handling and curing of tobacco.

Pashmina: Of the total 91,073 goats in Ladakh 70,000 are Pashmina bearing. A joint effort of the State and Central Governments is afoot to increase the size and production of Pashmina goats by cross breeding them with the Goran Altaskyia breed from U.S.S.R. and Angora bucks from Turkey.

With these measures the yield per goat is expected to increase from about 400 gms. at present to 1 kg. The maximum yield of Pasham wool recorded so far is 700gms. the minimum being 200 gms. This means that the production of Pasham wool in Ladakh will increase from about 28,000 kgs. at present to 70,000 kgs. in due course.

Gujarat Sheep and Wool Development Corporation at Anand Bldg., Mirzapur Rd., Ahmedabad 380001, helps to produce quality wool by a cross-breeding programme. This has substantially reduced imports of quality wool.

Karnataka State Sheep & Wool Development Board, 12, Rashtriya Vidyalaya Rd., Bangalore 560004.

International Wool Secretariat at Dugal Estate, 193, Backbay Recl., Bombay 400001, is a non-profit organisation with headquarters in London. It helps the Indian Woollen Industry in all its problems such as economic, research, planning etc.

Research: Central Sheep and Wool Research Institute at Malpura (88 kms. from Jaipur) in Rajasthan, is run by the Indian Council for Agricultural Research with some technical and financial help from FAO. Situated on a 1,618 hectares farm, its main programme is research and training facilities in sheep husbandry, better utilisation of land, wool shearing, grading, testing, technology and processing. It also trains key personnel, instructors, supervisors, managers and research workers.

Two sub-stations, one at Kulu (H.P.) and the other at Kodaikanal (T.N.) are run by the Institute.

Wool Research Association at SASMIRA, A. Besant Rd., Bombay 400025, deals with research on wool yarn and fibre and its application to different commodities, improvement of the quality of fabrics etc.

BACKGROUND

CONSTANT famine conditions in India compelled the British Government to appoint a commission in 1878 to draft the Famine Code which was formalised in 1883.

On an average the country receives 60·64 million cubic cms. of rain. But there is a variation in the seasonal and the annual distribution of rainfall. Some parts of Rajasthan get as low as 12·70 cms. of rain while hills of Assam get as much as 1,270 cm. About 12 per cent of the country's area receives less than 61 cms. of rain on an average and only 8 per cent more than 254 cms.

Drought: Though the definition of drought varies widely, drought in India refers to a situation when the rainfall for a week is half of the normal or less when the normal rainfall is 5 mm or more for the week. Agricultural drought is a period of 4 such consecutive weeks in the period from middle of May to middle of October or 6 such consecutive weeks during the rest of the year. Droughts have been occurring periodically largely due to the variability of south west monsoon from which 80 per cent of the annual rainfall is received during the period from June to September in most parts of the country. Not only a low rainfall but untimely distribution of fairly high rainfall can also lead to droughts. Approximate probability of deficient rainfall (deficiency equal to 25 per cent or more of the normal) is once in 4 to 5 years over large areas of the country.

In India, as many as 128 districts accounting for about 68 million hectares have low to medium rainfall under 1,125 mm. annually, and these also have very limited irrigation facilities. Of these districts, 25 are characterised by very poor rainfall in the range of 375-750 mm. annually with an irrigated area of 5–10 per cent of the cropped area. Another 91 of these districts receive annual rainfall ranging from 750 to 1,125 mm. The total net sown area in these districts is 42 million hectares of which about 5 million hectares are irrigated. Agriculture in these dry farming areas is faced with the twin problems of low productivity and high instability. Since, by and large, drought regions have low water resources, they may have to depend on rainfed agriculture with its attendant risk of instability in years of bad monsoon.

The chronically affected drought areas account for 19 per cent of the total geographical area of the country and 12 per cent of its population. With the exception of Kerala in the South, Punjab in the North and the States of North-Eastern region, every State in India has one or more drought-prone districts. Nearly 56 per cent of the geographical area of Rajasthan falls within the category of drought-prone areas; in terms of population the coverage is 33 per cent. Next to Rajasthan comes Andhra Pradesh, where about 50 per cent of the geographical area and 22 per cent of the population is within the ambit of the drought-prone areas. In Gujarat, about 29 per cent of the geographical area and about 18 per cent of the population are within the purview of the areas characterised as drought prone. In Karnataka, the corresponding figures are 25 per cent and 22 per cent. These areas are the major factor contributing to regional imbalances in the country. Every third year, about 3 million inhabitants of arid zones take to migration with their livestock. These areas also remain a continuous source of strain on the financial resources of the country. The Irrigation Commission Report (1972) indicated the drought and chronic drought areas as follows

(1) Drought areas (20 per cent probability of rainfall deficiency of more than 25 per cent of normal) : Gujarat, Rajasthan and adjoining parts of Punjab, Haryana, West Uttar Pradesh and west Madhya Pradesh, Madhya Maharashtra, Interior Karnataka, Rayalaseema, South Telangana and parts of Tamil Nadu, a small portion of north-west Bihar and adjoining east Uttar Pradesh, and a small portion of north-east Bihar and adjoining portion of West Bengal.

(2) Chronically Drought Affected areas (40 per cent probability of rainfall deficiency of more than 25 per cent of normal) : West Rajasthan and Cutch.

Drought-Prone Areas Programme (DPAP) : Over the Plan period, several measures have been taken for the development of drought-prone areas. These include : (a) development of irrigation ; (b) formulation of schemes specifically designed to benefit the drought-prone/dry areas ; (c) agricultural research specifically oriented towards the problems of the low rainfall areas ; (d) scarcity relief which also helped in creating additional production potential and provision of services like drinking water supply ; and (e) special programmes like Emergency Agricultural Production Programme.

Drought-Prone Areas Programme (formerly known as the Rural Works Programme) which made a beginning in 1970-71 has been in operation in 54 districts primarily and contiguous areas of another 18 districts which have been identified as chronically drought prone. These districts have been identified on the following criteria :

(i) incidence and pattern of rainfall ; (ii) percentage of irrigated areas to the total area and (iii) the frequency of drought over a period of time.

Gujarat : Panchmahals; Kutch; Jamnagar; Rajkot; Amreli; Banaskantha; Surrendranagar.

Karnataka : Bijapur; Chitradurga; Kolar; Dharwar; Belgaum.

Madhya Pradesh : Jhabua; Dhar; Sidhi; Betul.

Tamil Nadu : Dharmapuri; Ramanathapuram.

Rajasthan : Udaipur (Kharwara); Ajmer; Jhunjhunu.

Strategy for Development : The strategy for rural development in the Five-Year Plan (1978–83), according to the draft outline, will be integrated rural development. Since the experience of previous Plans shows that piecemeal approach holds little chance of success, the emphasis will now be to make the Programme area specific and utilise the local endowments for growth and social justice. The approaches in the ongoing rural development programmes such as DPAP which are broadly area development schemes are proposed to be utilised according to their usefulness in particular areas to achieve the twin objectives of generating employment and increasing production. In the Five Year Plan (1978–1983), a sum of Rs. 28,000 million has been earmarked for rural development as against Rs. 11,930 million during the Fifth Plan.

A comprehensive analysis of the problems of the drought prone areas was made by the Task Force on Integrated Rural Development in 1973. The Fifth Plan policies in this regard were formulated on the basis of the Task Force's recommendations. The most important objective was to reduce, through appropriate investments and technology, the severity of drought and scarcity conditions and create a long-term stable basis for production and employment.

Agricultural Research Oriented Towards Low Rainfall Areas : The All India Co-ordinated Research Project on dry land farming was introduced in 1970 in 15 centres and 9 sub-centres. Canadian assistance for this scheme was obtained under an Indo-Canadian agreement. This project provides research base for the integrated pilot dry land farming project. The Central Arid Zone Research Institute was also established at Jodhpur in 1959 and has been functioning as a focal point on research on agricultural problems of arid areas.

Integrated Dryland Agricultural Development

The Centrally sponsored scheme of Integrated Dryland Agricultural Development initiated in 1970-71 is being continued. Under this scheme, 24 pilot projects were taken up in dry areas to act as demonstration-cum-training projects in 12 States in close proximity to the ICAR research centres/sub-centres. Under these projects, the various programmes in operation during the year included cultivation of drought-resistant, short-duration and high yielding varieties of crops, adoption of improved dryland, modern technology with stress on use of fertilisers and pesticides, soil conservation, land shaping, land levelling, water harvesting, construction of wells, bunds, bundhis, foliar spraying of urea, etc. Besides, the programmes of animal husbandry and dairying e.g. supply of improved milch cattle, poultry and piggery development were taken up with a view to providing a supplementary source of income to the farmers. These programmes also generate employment potential for landless and agricultural labourers.

The large number of demonstrations laid out on farmers, fields have revealed that by following the improved dryland farming techniques, the increase in agricultural production amounts to about four quintals per hectare which is generally 50 to 100 per cent higher than that obtained through growing crops with traditional methods. The implementation of the scheme has helped in the education of the farmers in growing coarse foodgrains, oilseeds and other hardy crops which are generally suitable for the dryland areas.

GAUGING Stations : The Central Water & Power Commission has set up 21 gauging stations along major rivers and their tributaries in Madhya Pradesh, Maharashtra, Gujarat and Rajasthan as part of its all-India project to collect accurate and reliable data of river flows for a scientific study of the country's surface water potential.

Flood Prone Areas : According to the studies made by Dr. Khosla in 1949 (the then Chairman of C. W. & P. C.), the total annual flow of all the river systems in India comes to 1,672,599 m.cu.m. (1,356 million acre feet). Another appraisal of the water resources of the country made in 1960 based largely on statistical analysis of the flow-data and on suitable rainfall run off relationship (wherever observed data was meagre) puts the total flow at 1,881,057 m.cu.m. (1,525 million acre feet). Several studies have also been undertaken by the Surface Water Resources Directorate (SWRD) of the C.W. & P.C. However, various estimates do not tally and this clearly underscores the importance of scientific observation for each river system. Only one-third of water resources available in the country could be used for agricultural purposes.

Floods are almost an annual occurrence because of India's extensive river systems. The flood havoc is acute in the Ganga and Brahmaputra basin states of Bihar, Uttar Pradesh, West Bengal and Assam as well as in Orissa

It is estimated that flood control measures taken till the end of the Fourth Plan, have afforded some degree of protection to about 8 million hectares and an additional 2 million hectares have been immunised from floods till 1976-77. According to the latest assessment, the total area liable to floods is 25 million hectares of which 20 million hectares may be considered economically feasible of protection.

The region traversed by the Himalayan rivers is also subject to earthquakes and land-slides, which make large areas flood-prone. Growing frequency of floods in Andhra Pradesh, Maharashtra, Gujarat and Rajasthan is largely due to deforestation.

Flood Damage — Despite the increase in outlays on flood control in successive Plans, the estimated value of damage has also shown a rise. On an average floods affect an area of 6·7 million hectares annually including 2·6 million hectares under crops and the estimated yearly average damage is put at Rs. 2,500 million, 70 per cent of which relates to crops.

Flood Control : Since the initiation of flood control programme in 1954, considerable progress has been made in protecting areas from floods. The amount earmarked has also increased in successive plans. During the Fourth Plan the outlay on flood control was Rs. 1,750 million. In the Fifth Plan it rose to Rs. 3,450 million. In the Sixth Plan (1978-83) an outlay of Rs. 6,750 has been proposed. Flood control measures consist of building new embankments, the raising and strengthening of existing ones, town protection works, drainage channels and multipurpose reservoirs. These have to be supplemented by positive control of events that increase the damage potential, through measures like proper land use planning and regulation, the preparation of master charts to determine the exact areas which will get affected by floods of va magnitude. The Central Government has e National Commission on Floods (Rashtriya Barh to go into all these problems and advise compr on flood control. It has been asked to submit recommendations which were expected by the end

Progress Summary : To summarise the prog the various flood control schemes since the of the National Flood Control Plan in 1954, prote measures have covered 9·5 million hectares out estimated total of 25 million hectares regarded as prone. These steps comprised the following : 10,260 of embankments, 17,850 kms. of drainage chan town protection schemes and raising of 4,700 v above flood level.

IRRIGATION

Since the beginning of planned development in 1951 over 800 projects — major and medium — were taken up for execution. Of these about 450 have been fully completed and the rest partially commissioned.

Thus, the irrigation potential created from major and medium projects, which was only 9·7 million hectares in 1951 increased to 24·9 million hectares in 1977–78.

The total irrigation potential including that created by minor irrigation works rose from 22·6 million hectares to 52·2 million hectares during the same period.

It has been assessed that about 107 million hectares can be eventually irrigated — 72 million hectares by surface water and 35 million hectares by ground water.

Water Potential: The total water resources are assessed at 178 million hectare metres. However, because of limitations of physiography, topography, geology, dependability, quality and the present state of technology only a fraction of this will be utilised.

It has been assessed that about 67 million hectare metres of ground water can be tapped and utilised.

The land area that can be ultimately irrigated has been assessed to be 107 million hectares — 72 million hectares from surface water and 35 million hectares from ground water — as against possible gross cropped area of 200 million hectares of full development of irrigation potential.

Expenditure : The following table gives de expenditure incurred and potential created from and minor irrigation programmes during the various Pl

Programme for Medium Term Plan (1978 83)

The Government proposes to accelerate the tempo irrigation development setting itself a target of 8 hectares at an estimated cost of Rs. 74,000 million.

Minor Irrigation : There were 1·74 million in 1977–78 as against 3,000 in 1950–51. During this there was a phenomenal increase in pumpsets from to 5 million. The number of dug wells is 7·7 m

Every year 215,000 dug wells, 130,000 private tubewells and 3,000 public tubewells are being added to the total number. The number of pumpsets energised every year is around 300,000 whilst the total number energised upto 31st December 1977, was 3,204,014.

There has, however, been a great imbalance in the development and exploitation of minor irrigation resources in the various regions. Whereas states like Punjab, Haryana (in the north), and Tamil Nadu and Andhra Pradesh (in the south) with 20 per cent of the total groundwater resources, have 50 per cent of the total number of pumpsets in the country, the eastern states, like Orissa, West Bengal, Bihar and Uttar Pradesh with 50 per cent of the groundwater resources have only 15 per cent of the pumpsets.

The requirement of electricity for minor irrigation will go up from the present 8·5 billion units to 23·7 billion units by 1982–83.

Rural Electrification : Of the 576,000 villages in India 202,843 had been electrified upto 31st March, 1977.

Total Capacity : The total installed capacity at the end of 1976–77 was 24,040 M.W. comprising 21,815 M.W. in the utility sector and 2,225 M.W. in the non-utility sector. The gross generation capacity during 1976–77 was 89,200 Gwh. from utilities. 1,020 M.W. of additional generation capacity has been added during 1977–78 thereby increasing the total installed capacity to 25,060 M.W. with 22,835 M.W. in utilities.

Per Capita Consumption : The per capita consumption rose from 109·9 kWh in 1975–76 to 118·8 kWh during 1976–77. It was only 17·8 kWh in 1950–51.

Resources : Hydro : The Central Water and Power Commission survey done in 1953–59 placed the potential from this source at 221 TWH of energy generation per annum equivalent to a continuous output of 25·26 million kW.

This estimate, however, did not include the seasonal energy generation, particularly from schemes located in the Himalayan region which are mostly run-of-river type developments. The potential of small schemes was also not included which could be covered only by site investigations.

Subsequent surveys by State Governments indicated a much higher potential.

The total installed hydro capacity in February 1978, aggregated to 9·69 million kW, which constitutes about 39 per cent of the total installed capacity.

Name of scheme	Installed capacity in M.W.
1. Dehar Power station unit I	165
2. Lower Sibru unit III	100
3. Pong Power House unit I	60
4. Nagarjunasagar	110
5. Lower Jhelum unit I	35
6. Kundha Power House No. III	60

Coal : Coal-based thermal power stations contribute about 56·6 per cent of the total power generation.

The latest estimates place the reserves of coal at 82,770 million tonnes. Of these resources about 19,400 million tonnes are of the coking variety and 63,370 million tonnes of non-coking variety.

The total lignite reserves are estimated at about 2,100 million tonnes. The reserves of tertiary coal is estimated at 900 million tonnes.

Coal production which was around 78 million tonnes in 1973–74 increased to 88·4 million tonnes in 1974–75, 99·8 million tonnes in 1975–76 and 101·24 million tonnes in 1976–77. The total lignite production during 1976–77 was about 4·01 million tonnes.

Oil and Gas : Oil and gas have played an extremely limited role in the production of electricity. India has a large sedimentary area covering 1·41 million sq. kms. of land and 0·26 million sq. kms. off-shore, which are considered as potential oil bearing regions. Only a few gas turbine power plants located close to oil and gas wells and refineries and diesel power plants in isolated regions and some industrial establishments for providing standby power supply exist.

Nuclear Energy : Nuclear power generation was initiated in 1969 with the commissioning of the Tarapur Atomic Power Station with an installed capacity of 420 M.W. The following nuclear power stations are under construction.

1. Rajasthan Atomic Power Station (near Kota) 2 × 200 M.W.
2. Madras Atomic Power Station (near Kalpakam) 2 × 235 M.W.
3. Narora Atomic Power Station (Uttar Pradesh) 2 × 235 M.W.

Of this the first unit of 200 M.W. at RAPS was commissioned in December 1973. The second unit of RAPS is in an advanced stage of erection.

Non-Conventional Sources of Energy : During the last three years considerable attention has been devoted to the possibilities of using solar energy, geo-thermal energy, tidal power and wind power. Solar energy is the most promising of the non-conventional sources of energy in India.

	Maximum	Minimum	Average
Madras	765	605	720
Bangalore	746	562	668
Bombay	795	542	701
Calcutta	817	501	681
Delhi	827	421	655
Srinagar	738	239	631

Solar energy and bio-gas offer the greatest scope and very high priority has been accorded for their development. IIT (Madras), Bharat Heavy Electricals Ltd. and the National Physical Laboratories are associated with a West German firm to develop a 10 kW solar Power Generation Unit for demonstration.

Notes : (i) 1 Gwh = 1 Million kWh.

(ii) All figures are at station bus after deducting consumption in station auxiliaries.

Geo-thermal Energy : Western Himalayas and the west coast are areas where geo-thermal manifestations occur. A project for carrying out explorations to establish geo-thermal potential is under way with help from UNDP. Present indications are geo-thermal energy would have very limited potential.

Tidal Power : Investigations on the use of tidal power have been carried out and the Gulfs of Kutch and Cambay on the West Coast and the Sunderbans area on the East Coast have been identified as areas where tidal range is fairly high and where tidal power could be developed.

It is estimated that a single basin development would provide an annual energy potential of 15,400 Gwh, with an installation of about 7,400 MW in the Gulf of Cambay and 3,000 Gwh with an installation of 1,200 MW in the Gulf of Kutch. The sites in the Sunderbans area can provide outputs of only about 1,500 to 2,000 KW with annual energy potential of 3 Gwh.

The main problem with tidal energy relates to the high initial cost, the variable nature of the output and the technical and economic problems involved in firming up this power.

Wind Power: It has been found that by and large wind velocities are low and winds are not steady enough to permit any significant use of this source of energy. Research and Development work on development of suitable wind-mill designs for lifting water and generating electricity along the coasts and on the hills, is in progress.

Bio-gas : The programme of bio-gas development as implemented till 1977 was oriented to establishing small-size plants to serve the needs of individual families. This programme has been inadequate to harness the large bio-gas potential rapidly.

For economic and accelerated development of bio-gas potential, the government has found it essential to develop large size bio-gas plants serving a whole village.

National Power Grid : In order to extend the concept of integrated operations of systems from regions to the all India level, it is necessary to develop a National Power Grid. With the plans on hand, for construction of power stations with large capacity units, it has become necessary to adopt higher voltages for the transmission of power. Since the parameters involved are large and the associated problems complex, for efficient integrated operation, computerisation has become inescapable. Accordingly, System Planning Studies are being done in the CEA in association with M/s. Teshment of Canada for developing the optimal EHV network requirements on a long-term basis. The 400 KV system to be developed in the next 5–6 years would be shortly finalised. It is anticipated that about 16,000 circuit kms. of 400 KV lines would be required to be constructed in the next 5 years. For the first time a 400 KV line between Obra and Sultanpur in U.P. was test-charged in December 1977. Action is underway for establishing the National Load Despatch Centre at New Delhi. The present status of integrated operations of the Power Systems in the country is summarised as follows :

(i) In the Northern, Western, and Southern Regions, all the constituent systems are interconnected and are operating in an integrated manner.

(ii) In the Eastern Region, the Bihar, West Bengal, DPL and DVC and Orissa Systems are interconnected. While the West Bengal, DPL and DVC Systems are operating in parallel, the Orissa System (which is operating in parallel with the Southern Region) is catering to certain loads in Bihar radially.

(iii) In the North-Eastern Region, the Assam and Meghalaya Systems are operating in parallel. Mizoram, Nagaland and Arunachal Pradesh are partly fed from Assam.

FORESTS

TOTAL forests : 74.6 mill. hectares. Percentage of forests to land : 22.7. Per capita forest area 0.14 hectares as compared to world average of 1.08 hectares. An average of 3.6 million people are engaged in forestry activities.

Revenue from forests : Rs. 1,322 million. Forest revenue as percentage of national revenue : 2.2.

By composition, coniferous forests constitute 4.2 million hectares, the broad-leaved species such as sal and teak aggregate to 20.5 million hectares, while miscellaneous trees account for 49.9 million hectares. The forests are owned by the State (95.0 per cent), by corporate bodies (3 per cent) and by private individuals (2.0 per cent).

The forests are unevenly distributed and the production is also proportionately low, being only 0.5 cu.m. per hectare per year as against the world average of 2.1 cu.m. per hectare. Forests are located mostly in hilly terrain or remote interior areas where communications are not properly developed. Madhya Pradesh has the maximum forest area and accounts for about 23 per cent of the country's total forest area. Other important wood-rich States are Andhra Pradesh, Assam, Himachal Pradesh, Karnataka, Maharashtra, Orissa, Rajasthan, Uttar Pradesh and Andaman and Nicobar Islands.

Each of these groups has a number of types which are in turn divided into sub-types. 16 broad climatic forest groups are recognised in this country. These are :

1. Tropical Wet Evergreen Forest — 4.503 million hectares including semi-evergreen forests (Parts of Assam, West Bengal, Karnataka, Kerala and Andaman and Nicobar Islands).
2. Tropical Semi-Evergreen Forest — (Parts of Assam, West Bengal, Orissa and Andamans).
3. Tropical Moist Deciduous Forest — 23.303 million hectares (Parts of Andamans, Uttar Pradesh, Madhya Pradesh, Maharashtra, Karnataka, Orissa, Tamil Nadu and Kerala).
4. Tropical Dry Deciduous Forest — 29.154 million hectares (Almost all over India).
5. Littoral and Swamp Forests — (Deltas of big rivers).
6. Tropical Thorn Forest—5.236 million hectares (Parts of Punjab, Haryana, Rajasthan, Upper Gangetic plains, the Deccan Plateau and Lower Peninsular India).
7. Tropical Dry Evergreen Forests — 0.075 million hectares (Restricted to a small area of the East Coast in Tamil Nadu).

8. Sub-Tropical Dry Evergreen Forests — 0.173 million hectares (Siwaliks and the Western Himalayas up to about 1,000 m).
9. Sub-Tropical Broad-leaved Hill Forests — 0.287 million hectares (Lower slopes of the Himalayas in W. Bengal and Assam and other hill ranges such as Khasi Hills, Nilgiris and Mahableshwar).
10. Sub-Tropical Pine Forests — 3.740 million hectares (North-West Himalayas, between 1,000 m to 1,800 m and in Khasi, Manipur and Naga Hills).
11. Montane Wet Temperate Forests — 1.613 million hectares (Tamil Nadu and Kerala above 1,500 m and in the Eastern Himalayas, Viz., W. Bengal, Assam, Arunachal Pradesh from 1,800 m to 3,000 m).
12. Himalayan Moist Temperate Forests — 2.725 million hectares including dry Temperate Forests. (Entire length of Himalayas between the pine and sub-alpine forests in Kashmir, Himachal Pradesh, Punjab, Uttar Pradesh and Sikkim between 1,500 m to 3,300 m).
13. Himalayan Dry Temperate Forests (Inner ranges of the Himalayas where S-W monsoon is very feeble).
14. Sub-Alpine Forests
15. Moist Alpine Scrub
16. Dry Alpine Scrub

The treeless zone is the habitat of the Tibetan sheep, bharal, woolly hare with occasional appearance of snow leopard.

Over 16 per cent of the total forest area is inaccessible and 45 per cent of these could yield timber and other forest products.

Education and Research : Forest research and education are centralised in the Forest Research Institute and Colleges located at Dehra Dun. The Institute is recognised by the F.A.O. as a centre for training in forestry for South-East Asia.

The Forest Research Institute and Colleges are under the administrative control of the Ministry of Agriculture and Irrigation of the Government of India. Its administrative head is designated the President. It has under its control four Regional Forest Research Centres, one each at Bangalore, Jabalpur, Coimbatore and Barnihat to deal with the special problems pertaining to the area. Forestry education is imparted through Indian Forest College and Northern Forest Rangers College at Dehra Dun and State Forest Service College, Southern Forest Rangers College, Eastern Forest Rangers College and Central Forest Rangers College at Barnihat, Coimbatore, Kurseong and Chandarpur respectively.

The institute has five directorates working under the President, viz., (1) The Directorate of Forest Education training professional foresters for Indian Forest Service, State Forest Service and Rangers for Centre and the States; (2) The Directorate of Forestry Research having eight branches — the Silviculture branch, the logging branch, the forest genetics branch, the minor forest products branch, the forest economics branch, the silvics branch, the forest soils branch, and the forest management and mensuration branch; (3) the Directorate of Biological Research having four branches — the systematic botany branch, the forest pathology branch, the entomology branch, and the wood anatomy branch; (4) the Directorate of Forest Products Research having eight branches — the wood seasoning branch, the composite wood branch, the cellulose and paper branch, the timber mechanics branch, the timber engineering branch, the chemistry of forest products branch, the wood preservation branch and the wood working, saw milling and finishing branch; (5) Direc torate of Wildlife Research & Training.

Besides forestry training, the Institute also impart training in wood seasoning, wood preservation and pu and paper technology and also imparts vocational train in forest based industries. It also provides research faci ties for post M.Sc. and post doctorate research on forestr subjects to university scholars.

Central Schemes : During the Fifth Five Year Pla period 8 more schemes sponsored by the Government India were established : (i) Pilot Scheme for Research an Demonstration in growing Cash Crops, Ranchi, (ii) Settin up Seed Banks and Seed Improvement and Tree Breedi Centres, Secunderabad, (iii) Research and Pilot Demonstra tion, Oleo-resin, Shillong, (iv) Eucalyptus Research Centr Hyderabad, (v) Sandal Spike Research Centre, Bangalor (vi) High Level Conifers Regeneration Research Cent Simla, (vii) Tropical Pines Research Centre, Dehra Du (viii) Environmental Research Station for study effect of vegetation on soil loss and run off in catch areas and correlation of atmospheric precipitation wit vegetable cover and streamflow.

Logging Training Centres Project : Training courses in basic logging are run in the Northern Zone (Dehra Dun Central Zone (Chandrapur), Eastern Zone (Sukna) and in the Southern Zone (Coimbatore). Training courses in the operation and maintenance of logging equipment, plannin and efficiency of logging operations and saw milling operation of cable ways are run at Dehra Dun, Chandrapur and Kul respectively.

In the 1976-78 course, 35 I.F.S. probationers, beside one from Malaysia, passed from the Indian Forest Colleg 149 rangers from India and 11 from foreign countrie passed out from the Northern and the Central colleges.

Development Programmes : Forestry development includes elements such as rehabilitation of degraded forests soil and moisture conservation, farm forestry, road-side and canal bank plantation, creation of wind breaks, woo lots on community land and pasture development. Emphasis is being laid on arresting the process of deforestation both for ecological reasons and to check so erosion.

The programme of pasture development is being linke with sheep development through a scientific selection of suitable grass species for different agro-climatic zone It is also expected that farm forestry would provide enoug fuel wood for consumption so that organic manure will b available for utilisation on the soils for crop producti During the Fifth Plan (upto 30th Sept., 1976) plantati was undertaken on 74,098 hectares. Farm forestry an extension forestry was undertaken on 2,323 hectares an 639 kms. respectively. An area of 6,261 hectares was als brought under improved pastures.

Forest Produce : The forest produce can be broadl divided into two groups:—

(i) Major forest produce — timber and firewood. Th important varieties are teak (Tectona grandi deodar (Cedrus deodara), sal (Shorea robusta), sisso (Dalbergia sissoo), chir (Pinus roxburghii) and ka (Pinus wallichiana).

(ii) Minor forest produce — the commercially importan items under this are bamboos, canes, gums, resins dyes, tans, lac, fibres, floss and medicinal pla material.

Government is the largest timber producing agency the country. Sale of timber is done mostly by auction an in standing form.

Teak is by far the most important species which occurs over an area of 8.9 million hectares. More than 50 per cent of total area under teak is in Madhya Pradesh. The next are the States of Maharashtra, Andhra Pradesh, Karnataka, Kerala and Gujarat.

Sal ranks next to teak in its utility and value. Sal forests cover an area of 11.6 million hectares and are distributed in Assam, Bihar, Madhya Pradesh, Orissa, Tripura, Uttar Pradesh and West Bengal.

Rosewood which is valued for its grain and colour, is mostly obtained from Kerala, Karnataka, Tamil Nadu, Andhra Pradesh and Maharashtra.

Cedrus deodara (Deodara) is by far the most important coniferous species highly valued as constructional timber.

Pinus roxburghii (Chir pine) ranks second best for constructional purposes and for resin. Abies pindrow (Fir) and Picea smithiana (Spruce) represent the valuable long fibre resource for pulp and paper industry.

The total production of wood is estimated at 22·8 million cu.m. of which 9·1 million cu.m. constitute industrial wood. Fuel wood production is 13·7 million cu.m. including wood for charcoal. This represents an increase of about 15 per cent over the production figures of 1966.

There are about 3,000 saw mill units. Their capacities range from 10 tonnes to 200 tonnes per day. There is an increasing tendency of opening departmental saw mills in the various forest departments to obtain rational utilisation of forest produce. Some of the saw mills have introduced their own seasoning kilns.

Exports and imports of forest products: The exports of total forest products (major and minor products) went up from Rs. 330 million in 1972–73 to Rs. 608 million in 1973–74. On the other hand, imports during 1973–74 showed a marginal fall and stood at Rs. 435 million as against Rs. 439 million in 1972–73.

Preservation of wild life: Wild Life Protection Act, 1972 which governs the wild life conservation and protection of endangered species both inside and outside forest areas, has been extended to most of the States and Union territories.

Trade in wild life and its products has been brought under the purview of the Act, and further restrictions have been imposed on the export trade of a number of animals, birds and their products. The export of rare and endangered species has been totally banned and a number of other products have been brought under quota system to regulate the export. Already 142 sanctuaries and national parks have been set up and efforts are being made to manage them scientifically.

Project Tiger: The Project Tiger was launched on 1st April, 1973, at the Corbett National Park (U.P.) to protect and perpetuate the tiger. The Project covers a total area of 13,017 sq. kms. in nine reserves of nine States. It is proposed to eliminate all the disturbing factors at least from a core area of 300 sq. kms. in each of the nine reserves. An allocation of Rs. 3·6 million was made for the implementation of this project during 1974–75.

A sum of Rs. 7·5 million is expected to be received from certain world organisation, like the World Wide Life Fund in support of the project.

FOOD AND AGRICULTURE

EMPLOYMENT: Agriculture offered employment to over 126 million people in 1971 against 136 million in 1961.

Basic Facts (1974-75): Total geographical area: 328·8 million hectares; net area sown: 139 million hectares; area sown more than once: 24 million hectares; net irrigated area: 34 million hectares; consumption of fertilisers: 2·57 million tonnes; production of foodgrains (1977-78): 125 million tonnes; livestock population: 359 million; no. of cold storages: 93,000; no. of warehouses: Central 153, State 866.

Growth Rate: During the five years preceding partition in 1947 the average annual production of foodgrains stood at 62 million tonnes. Despite the loss of some of the most fertile areas, foodgrain production reached 60 million tonnes by 1952-53. Thereafter, the overall picture has been one of continued increase in production reaching 121 million tonnes by 1975-76, representing an increase of 79 per cent in 22 years or about 3·6 per cent per annum.

In the 20 years between 1952 and 1973 China's foodgrain production rose by 48 per cent or 2·4 per cent per annum. The rate of increase in world food production was, according to FAO estimates, 1 per cent in 1974 and 2-3 per cent in 1975.

This does not mean all is well with India's agriculture. The abysmal poverty of the peasants should be sufficient to dispel any complacency. Since agriculture's share in India's Gross Domestic Product is about 43 per cent, the health of the economy depends upon the health of agriculture.

Agriculture in India is not profitable for the overwhelming majority of people engaged in it. Between 1942 and 1976 the per capita availability of foodgrains per day increased from 417·0 grammes to 456·8 grammes. A portion of the increase was due to imports. From the nutritional angle the situation is utterly disturbing. For 1969–71 the average daily availability of calories and proteins for an Indian was about 2,071 calories and 51 grammes of protein. The daily per capita food supply in developed countries during this period contained 3,150 calories and 96·4 grammes of proteins.

Yield Per Hectare : The principal weakness of Indian agriculture is that the yield per unit area is low. The table below gives the yield rates for paddy and wheat — the principal crops — in India and other countries in 1975.

Paddy : (Per hectare in kgs.) Indonesia : 2,686 ; Japan : 6,185 ; Pakistan : 2,271 ; Philippines: 1,760 ; Thailand : 1,771 ; China : 3,235 ; Egypt : 5,326 ; USA : 5,105 ; Burma : 1,462 ; India : 1,877.

Wheat : (Per hectare in kgs.) Australia : 1,333 ; Canada: 1,802 ; China : 1,367 ; France : 3,888 ; Italy : 2,714 ; Pakistan : 1,323 ; Egypt : 2,504 ; U.K. : 4,382 ; USA : 2,060 ; India : 1,338.

The total paddy yield during 1975-76 was 74,474,000 tonnes comprising 32,377,000 tonnes of autumn paddy, 36,191,000 tonnes of winter paddy and 5,906,000 tonnes of summer paddy. The yield of summer paddy was around 2,925 kgs. per hectare. It was significantly higher in some States—3,774 kgs. in West Bengal and 3,459 kgs. in Tamil Nadu. If the area under summer paddy could increase — it is just 5 per cent of the total paddy area at present—the food situation would change significantly. Moreover, there are pronounced inter-state variations in the overall yield rates as can be seen from the following.

Yield rates in 1975-76 per hectare in kgs. : India : 1,877 ; Andhra Pradesh : 2,485 ; Tamil Nadu : 3,255 ; Punjab : 3,867 ; Bihar : 1,382 ; Orissa : 1,488 ; Assam : Uttar Pradesh : 1,402 ; West Bengal : 1,879.

This variation is also true for wheat which has increased to 1,409 kgs. per hectare in 1976. The per yield was 1,980 kgs. in Haryana and 2,375 kgs. in whilst Rajasthan, Uttar Pradesh and Bihar produce kgs. per hectare. The lowest production is in Pradesh where the per hectare yield is only 846 kgs.

High Yielding Varieties Programme: Cultivat high yielding varieties of rice, wheat, maize, jowar bajra is the new agricultural strategy for increasing grain production. During 1977-78 it was targetted to the area under these varieties to 37 million hecta against the estimated achievement of 34 million in 1976-77. The crop-wise break up is given below :

Foodgrain Production (1976-77) : Weather conditions during the agricultural year were not as favourable as in 1975-76. The overall index of agricultural production dropped to 117·1 (triennium ending 1969–70 — 100) during 1976-77 from the peak level of 125·5 in 1975-76.

In absolute terms the output of foodgrains during 1976-77 was estimated at 111·6 million tonnes against the revised estimate of 121·03 million tonnes in 1975-76. Despite the shortfall the level of foodgrain production in 1976-77 was the second highest on record.

Among foodgrains, bulk of the decline in 1976-77 was accounted for by rice. Other crops that declined during the year were maize, barley and pulses.

The production of wheat during 1976-77, touched a new high of 29 million tonnes. Among commercial crops, the production of sugarcane (in terms of gur) showed a further rise to a level of 15·8 million tonnes. The prod of five major oilseeds and cotton suffered a set back production of oilseeds was estimated at 7·83 tonnes, while that of cotton at 5·78 million bales (kgs. each). The production of jute and mesta recovery and was placed at 7·09 million bales (each).

Food Exports : Exports of agricultural contributed substantially to India's total export In 1976-77 the export of agricultural produce Rs. 10,840 million as compared to Rs. 12,170 previous year. The decline was largely due to the exports of sugar from Rs. 4,720 million in 197 Rs. 1,480 million in 1976-77. Other comm register a fall in export earnings were : Raw cotton million in 1976-77 as against Rs. 420 million the year ; Raw Jute Rs. 10 million in 1976-77 as Rs. 100 million in 1975-76.

However, significant increases were registered in the export of oilcake (Rs. 1,270 million), fish and fish products (Rs. 530 million), meat and meat preparations (Rs. 70 million), pepper (Rs. 40 million), and unmanufactured tobacco (Rs. 30 million).

Foodgrain Targets for 1977-78 : With power and irrigation situation quite comfortable and a 27 per cent increase in the consumption of fertilisers the crop prospects were much brighter than in 1976-77.

Food Consumption : The per capita consumption in India of all food items in terms of calories compares as follows: Canada: 3,200; USA : 3,300 ; U.K. : 3,170 ; Japan : 2,470 ; India : 1,990.

The increase in population by about 12 million persons per year in itself requires one million tonnes of additional grain. With an increase of the per capita intake of 100 calories per day the country would require an additional five million tonnes per year.

Foodgrain Loss : Six million tonnes of foodgrains valued at Rs. 10,000 million are lost every year because of non-scientific and old methods of storage.

Credit to Farmers : Land Development Bank (LDB) provided Rs. 1,930 million as credit to farmers during the co-operative year 1975–76. This was Rs. 214·3 million more than the loans disbursed in 1974–75.

The recovery position also improved with 68 per cent of the dues collected during 1975–76.

National Seeds Corporation Ltd., 4-E Jhandewalan, New Delhi 110055 and the Tarai Seeds Development Corporation, Pantnagar, P.O. Haldi, Nainital (U.P.), were set up for the supply and production of foundation/certified seeds of the high yielding varieties.

Mechanised Farms : There are 14 Central and State mechanised farms in operation. They are located in Khammam (Andhra Pradesh) ; Kokilabut (Assam) ; Hissar (Haryana) ; Raichur (Karnataka) ; Aralam (Kerala) ; Lokichera and Lushiachera (Mizoram) ; Jharsuguda (Orissa) ; Lodhowal (Punjab) ; Suratgarh and Jetsar (Rajasthan) ; Chengam (Tamil Nadu) ; Bahraich and Rae Bareili (Uttar Pradesh).

The cultivated area of these farms is about 35,000 hectares. Apart from providing improved varieties of seeds they help local farmers with land development, levelling, reclamation and harvesting on a commercial basis.

Food Corporation : The Food Corporation of India was set up as a statutory body in January, 1965, to purchase Land Reforms : Legislative provisions have been made in most states conferring ownership rights on cultivating tenants, protecting tenants against wilful ejectment and regulation of rent payable. Consolidation of holdings has been accorded high priority. More than 44 million hectares have already been consolidated.

Under the revised ceiling laws of the 1·4 million cases 1·2 million have been scrutinised and disposed of. About 1·65 million hectares was declared surplus of which 890,000 hectares had been taken by the states and about 550,000 hectares had been distributed among 930,000 beneficiaries.

Earlier about 810,000 hectares had been distributed among 1·06 million families.

To provide financial support to the beneficiaries of surplus lands the Central Government allotted Rs. 116·50 million to the states.

Average size of Land Holdings : The average size of a farm in India is 2·63 hectares. The State-wise average is as follows : Andhra Pradesh 2·87 hectares ; Assam 1·46 hectares ; Bihar 1·53 hectares ; Gujarat 4·49 hectares ; Jammu & Kashmir 1·43 hectares ; Kerala 0·75 hectare ; Madhya Pradesh 3·99 hectares ; Tamil Nadu 1·49 hectares; Maharashtra 4·65 hectares ; Karnataka 4·11 hectares ; Orissa 1·98 hectares ; Punjab 3·89 hectares ; Rajasthan 5·5 hectares ; Uttar Pradesh 1·78 hectares ; and West Bengal 1·56 hectares.

Out of a total 50 million rural households possessing operational holdings, 35 per cent hold on an average less than 0·20 hectare of land each.

ANIMAL HUSBANDRY

INDIA has the largest cattle, buffalo and goat population. According to the 1972 census, there are about 179 million cattle, 58 million buffaloes and 68 million goats in the country. About one-sixth of the cattle, about half of the buffalo and one-fifth of the goat population in the world are in India. Animal husbandry plays an important role in the national life and accounts for about 10 per cent of the national income. In particular, the contribution of the cattle and buffalo to the economy is considerable. They are the main source of draught power in agricultural operations and rural transportation ; they provide essential foods like milk and meat as also large quantities of animal by-products like hides, bones, blood and guts, as well as valuable original manure. Meat and meat products alone earn about Rs. 70 million by way of foreign exchange.

Census — The 12th quinquennial livestock census was due to be conducted in different States with April 15, 1977 as the reference date. But only a few States carried out the census as per schedule while others had to postpone it for a variety of reasons. Hence data in the consolidated form are available only for 1972, the year of the previous census.

The break-up for 1972 is : Cattle — 178·9 million ; sheep — 40·4 million ; goats — 68·0 million ; buffaloes — 57·9 million ; horses and ponies — 1·0 million ; pigs — 6·5 million ; camels — 1·1 million and other livestock 1·2 million. Poultry makes up an additional 136·8 million.

Meat Production : There are nearly 2,800 slaughter houses operating under local bodies; excepting a few, many of them lack even elementary facilities for hygienic production and handling of meat and for collection and utilisation of animal by-products. About 37·3 million sheep and goats, 1·5 million pigs and 1·4 million cattle and buffaloes are slaughtered annually in the organised slaughter houses. The percentage of the animals slaughtered to their respective population is: cattle: 0·9; buffaloes: 1·4; sheep: 32·5; goat: 36·8; pigs: 22·0; others: 6·4.

The yearly production of meat is around 720,000 tonnes consisting of 190,000 tonnes of beef and buffalo meat, 390,000 tonnes of mutton and goat meat, 50,000 tonnes of pig meat and 90,000 tonnes of poultry meat.

Modernisation of Slaughter Houses: For the establishment of modern slaughter houses, five corporations have been set up — Modern Meat Complex Ltd., Panaji (Goa); Animal Food Corp., Pvt. Ltd. (Bangalore); Modern Slaughter Houses Development Corp. (Hyderabad); West Bengal Processing Corp. Ltd., and Tamil Nadu Meat Industries Corpn. The modern abattoir set up at Deonar (Bombay), provides clean and wholesome meat and also caters to the needs of export market as regards buffalo meat.

Hide-Flaying and carcass utilisation: A model training-cum-production centre at Bakshi-ka-Talab, Lucknow established with financial and technical assistance from the Government of Netherlands and Food & Agriculture Organisation of the United Nations, where training is imparted in hide-flaying, tanning, carcass utilisation footwear making etc. The Animal By-products Plant, Kesarpalli, Andhra Pradesh is handling, in addition to fallen animals, other raw materials such as bone chips, fish waste etc. and converting them into sterilised bone-meal, fish-meal and meat-meal.

CATTLE: The best Indian cattle breeds are found in the Punjab, Rajasthan, Saurashtra, parts of Maharashtra, Tamil Nadu, Karnataka and Andhra Pradesh. In the eastern parts of the country and in the coastal areas, the animals are non-descript and are poor milk yielders. The Indian breeds of cattle are classified as milch breeds, draught breeds and general utility breeds.

Milch Breeds: Sahiwal, Gir, Red Sindhi and Deoni are some of the outstanding breeds of this group. The Sahiwal yields between 2,725 and 3,175 kgs. of milk in a lactation period of 300 to 325 days. The average yield of Gir is 1,675 kgs. The average milk yield of Sindhi and Deoni varies from 1,135 to 1,725 kgs.

Draught: Cows of these breeds are poor milk yielders but the bullocks are excellent draught animals. About 42 per cent of the cattle in the country are draught animals. The Amritmahals and Hallikar (Karnataka) are the well-known draught breeds of India. Other important breeds are Malvi (Madhya Pradesh), Nagori (Rajasthan), Kenketha and Ponwar (Uttar Pradesh), Bahaur (Bihar), Bargur, Kongayam (Tamil Nadu) and Khillari (Maharashtra).

General Utility Breeds: The cows are fairly good milk yielders and the bullocks are good for draught purposes. Hariana (Haryana and Delhi); Kankrej and Tharparker (Gujarat and Rajasthan); Ongole (Andhra Pradesh), etc., which give about 1,500 to 2,000 kgs. of milk in the lactation period are some of the well-known breeds of this type.

Cattle Breeding: The Intensive Cattle Development Projects (ICDPs) was formulated during the latter half of the Third Plan has now intensified its activities. In areas served by the Key Village Scheme for Cattle Development and ICDPs cross-breeding has been now introduced. With a view to intensifying cross-breeding work in selected ICDPs, four more frozen semen banks have been set-up in Amritsar, Gurgaon, Indore and Bangalore with Danish aid.

Development work has made further progress at the Central Cattle Breeding Farms at Suratgarh (Rajasthan) for Tharparkar breed, Ankleshwar (Gujarat) for Surti buffaloes and Chiplima (Orissa) for Red Sindhi breed. Three additional farms are being set up at Eichenkotli (Tamil Nadu), Banvasi (Andhra Pradesh) and Wadsa Dessaiganj (Maharashtra) with the assistance to be received under DANIDA project.

The Central Frozen Semen Bank at Hessarghatta continued to supply frozen semen to the neighbouring States for cross-breeding purposes. A number of frozen semen stations have been set-up recently in places like Bangalore, Bhopal, Gurgaon and Amritsar and many more are likely to come up in the near future. Large-scale use of frozen semen would go a long way in the successful adoption of cross breeding programmes.

Buffaloes: Buffalo is customarily classified into two types — the swamp and the river buffalo. The buffaloes in India are of the second type. There are seven breeds of Indian buffalo. It should, however, be noted that the breed classification of Indian livestock especially buffalo is not satisfactory. They are the Murrah of Haryana, the Jaffarabadi (Saurashtra region). Surti (Kaira, Anand and Nadiad districts) and Mehsana (Mehsana district) of Gujarat, Nagpuri of Maharashtra, Nili-Ravi of Punjab and Bhadawari of Uttar Pradesh. The average yield of milk in a single lactation period (which varies from 250–300 days) is 1,360–2,270 kgs. in the case of Murrah, 1,655 kgs. in the case of Surti, 1,360–1,825 kgs. in the case of Mehsana and 1,585 kgs. in the case of Nili-Ravi.

Sheep: According to the 1972 livestock statistics, India has 40 million sheep and ranks sixth among the countries of the world in sheep population. Most of the sheep are concentrated in the arid zones with low rainfall and poor agriculture where they form a major source of livelihood for the people. The productivity of most of the sheep-stock is low in terms of wool and mutton. The average annual yield of wool per sheep in India is only 700 grams as against 5–7 kilograms in the case of some of the exotic breed of sheep. As regards mutton, the average weight of sheep varies from 25 to 30 kgs. The exotic sheep weigh as much as 3 times this figure.

Wool: India produces over 34 million kgs. of wool annually with 36 per cent of this coming from Rajasthan alone. The bulk of the wool produced is coarse and is used largely in the manufacture of carpets, druggets and coarse blankets. (See also Woollen Industry.)

Breeding: Sheep development involves cross-breeding of indigenous sheep using imported strains of merino type sheep such as Rambouillett stavrovol, etc., for improving wool quality and quantity. It also aims at improving both mutton and wool quality by cross-breeding with imported dual purpose sheep like Corriedale. This cross-breeding programme was initiated in 1970 and is being continued. Over 5,000 exotic sheep have so far been imported and located in different States.

Five Centrally sponsored large sheep-breeding farms have been set-up at Mamidipally (Andhra Pradesh), Challakeri (Karnataka), Daksum (Jammu & Kashmir), Bhainsora (Uttar Pradesh) and Fatehpur (Rajasthan). Action has been initiated for the establishment of two more sheep-breeding farms — one at Shivpuri (Madhya Pradesh) and another at Chatra (Bihar) is proposed.

A largescale sheep shearing, wool grading and marketing programme has been undertaken in Rajasthan with the assistance of Food and Agricultural Organisation. Another significant development was the setting up of the Central Sheep and Wool Research Institute, in 1962.

Goats : Goats constitute an important source of animal protein and account for 35 per cent of the country's total meat production. Goats also account for about 3 per cent of the total milk production. They account for 35 per cent of meat production. Exports of goat skins, casings and hair earn substantial foreign exchange.

Among the important breeds are Bakarwah, Assam Hill, Chamba, Gaddi and Gegu in the Northern temperate region, Beetah, Jamnapari, Kutchi, Marwari, Mehsana, Sirohi and Zalwadi in the North-Western region and Osmanabadi and Mahabari/Tellicherry in the Peninsular region.

POULTRY: There are only 26 chickens per 100 persons in India as against 540 in Denmark and 373 in Canada. The annual laying capacity of an Indian hen is about 60 small eggs in a year as against 180 large eggs of the American (exotic) breeds like White Leghorn.

Poultry production has made rapid strides in the last decade. The annual egg production increased from 2,500 million eggs in 1971 to about 10,000 million eggs in 1977. The production of poultry meat through broiler industry has touched a level of 17 million in 1977-78, compared to just 4 million in 1971. However, the per capita availability is very low when reviewed against world standards. The poultry industry has become nearly self-sufficient in respect of modern poultry equipment which has, now, found even export markets. However, the availability of eggs in India is estimated at only 12 per person per year as against 295 in U.S.A., 282 in Canada and 249 in West Germany. The annual per capita availability of poultry meat too is low, being estimated at 131 grams in India as compared with 13·18 kgs. in U.S.A. and 2·47 kgs. in other European countries.

Piggery : Pig is one of the most efficient feed converting animals among domesticated stock, and in India an important source of protein rich meat. The total pork production is around 53,000 tonnes and accounts for 7·4 per cent of meat production in India. In the Second and later Plans schemes were drawn up for the setting up of bacon factories, regional pig breeding stations, pig breeding farms/units and piggery development blocks. By the end of the Fourth Plan 8 bacon factories were set-up in different States — Andhra Pradesh, Maharashtra, West Bengal, Uttar Pradesh, Kerala, Bihar, Punjab and Rajasthan — but none of them is working at even half of their installed capacity. Special efforts are made to promote piggery in North-East States.

The Centre has drawn up a comprehensive piggery development programme with the help of Danish International Developmental Agency. Under this scheme, a regional pig breeding station will be set up at Shillong with seven sub-units for all other North-Eastern States.

Plan Targets : Against a base level production of milk of 23·2 million tonnes in 1973-74, the latest Plan document (1978-83) expects the production to reach 35·5 million tonnes by 1982-83. The target for egg production is 16,000 million, and wool 38 million kgs. (greasy). As against an outlay of Rs. 4,380 million for the Fifth Plan, the outlay for the Five-year Plan (1978-83) according to the draft is about Rs. 8,250 million.

FISHERIES

EXTENT of Resources : India has a long coast line of 6,535 kms. and an exclusive economic zone of 2 million sq. km. which offer large stocks of the sardine group, the mackerel, the tuna and other scombroids, catfishes, the group of sharks and rays, Bombay duck, ribbonfishes, prawns, squids and cuttlefishes, the pomfrets, solefish, the carangids, the perches, polynemids, sciaenids etc.

The country has an inland cultivable water area of about 1·6 million hectares to raise indigenous and exotic carps, air-breathing fishes, hilsa, trouts etc. It also has a brackish water spread of about 2·6 million hectares, a portion of which could be brought under culture for raising prawns, mullet, milk fish, pearl spot etc. There are also good possibilities of producing shell-fishes, fin-fishes and algae through mariculture in the coastal belt.

India occupies seventh place in fisheries production in the world. Marine fisheries account for about 64 per cent of total production with 36 per cent contributed by inland fisheries. The present per capita consumption of fish is only 2·8 kg. a year against the desired consumption level of 31 kg. as recommended by the nutrition advisory committee on human nutrition.

A ten-fold increase in fish production is considered necessary to meet adequately the increasing demand for fish in the country.

Development Programmes : At the end of 1977, there were about 13,352 mechanised fishing boats in operation as against only 13 at the commencement of the First Plan. Trawling deserve special mention, a method of fishing, which was practically unknown at the time of Independence, is now most popular.

In order to give a fillip to deep sea fishing, it is proposed to introduce 200 deep sea fishing vessels. 89 such vessels are already in operation as against only 10 in 1950–51. Arrangements have been made for the import of more than 100 offshore/deep sea fishing vessels and measures have been taken for the construction of such vessels at the indigenous shipyards.

Inland Fisheries : Fifty Fish Farmer's Development Agency Projects have been taken up in different States for augmenting fish production through intensive fish culture practices such as bund breeding and induced breeding in small water areas like ponds and lakes. These practices will also help in spawn collection and fish seed supplies. Attention will also be paid to the creation of additional nursery areas. Spawn production and fingerlings production were 2,109 million and 570 million respectively during 1975-76 and were 2,714 million and 698 million respectively during 1976-77. The total nursery area available for spawn rearing during 1975-76 was estimated at 1,016 hectares and for 1976-77 it was estimated at 1,135 hectares.

Of the 1·6 million hectares of ponds and tanks only 0·6 million hectares are now being utilised for the production of fish.

Job Opportunity : All the schemes of the fisheries sector taken together will directly generate an additional employment potential of 400,000 persons including skilled and semi-skilled workers. In addition to this, employment potential will also be generated in the ancillary industry and for marketing and transportation of fish. This is estimated to go up to 600,000 in the near future.

Research : A multi-pronged research and [illegible] effort is under way to double the present annual [illegible] in the next few years.

The research activities are being carried on by Central Marine Fisheries Research Institute and the C Institute of Fisheries Technology, both located at Coc and the Central Inland Fisheries Research Insti Barrackpore. These Institutes have their subor establishments also. The National Institute of O graphy, the Central Institute of Fisheries Educat Pelagic Fisheries Project, the Zoological Survey of In some of the agricultural universities and conv universities and some fisheries departments of the S Governments also carry out research in different dis of fishery science.

Exports : Against an export of 54,463 tonnes in 197 valued at Rs. 1,245 million, the export of marine prod during 1976-77 was valued at Rs. 1,891 million.

For augmenting the exports of sea foods, the Gover ment of India has set up a Marine Products Export velopment Authority at Eranakulam, Cochin 682016

Main Buyers : These exports are directed to the sophi cated markets of America, Europe, Japan and Austra

Rolling Plan : In the Plan for 1978-83, the prim objectives would be : (i) to step up the fish producti (ii) to organise the inland fish production based on i dividual family basis and on high labour, low-investme technology so as to improve the socio-economic conditi (iii) to organise intensive marine fishing survey a promote exploitation, distributed equitably among t different sectors and (iv) to improve and diversify t processing and marketing facilities. The Planning Comm sion has envisaged a target of 3·4 million tonnes for t five year period. The outlay for 1978-79 for Central, Ce trally sponsored and State schemes and research is ab Rs. 840 million.

Fishing Harbours : Besides limited facilities for land and berthing of fishing boats already available at abo 75 centres, medium sized fishing harbours have been com pleted at four centres and work on large sized fish harbours is in progress at Cochin, Madras, Bombay a Calcutta. The first stage harbour works at Visakhapatna have been completed.

One of the major projects proposed in this connection a Rs. 220 million programme to build fishing harbours Gujarat and Andhra Pradesh with World Bank assistanc

SUBJECTS OF STUDY

(Derived with permission from ' Directory to Subjects of Study at Indian Universities' published in the annual Commonwealth Universities Yearbook by the Association of Commonwealth Universities, London and University Grants Commission, New Delhi.)

This directory contains a list of selected subjects which may be studied at universities in India, some in the departments or constituent colleges of universities themselves, some in colleges affiliated to universities, and others in both. The list is not exhaustive but it does cover most of the main subjects in which facilities for study or research are available. Many of the universities which provide ourses for bachelor's or master's degrees in a subject also provide facilities for research in aspects of it which ay lead to a doctorate.

Subjects marked † may, depending on the university, ither (a) form a greater or lesser part of the course for a achelor's degree, or (b) be studied for a master's degree, r (c) both.

Universities marked* in the article provide instructions upto the post-graduate level; 'm' and 'd' under the edicine list indicate Master's Degree (including MD) and Government Diploma. 'Tech.' stands for Technology and " Engg. ' for Engineering.

Engineering Training at Bombay and Calcutta provides four years' course for engineering cadets. The boys desirous of undergoing training in the "Rajendra" as well as D.M.E.T. are selected on the basis of marks obtained and are drawn from all parts of the country through a competitive entrance examination followed by interviews and medical and eyesight tests.

Rules for Entry into T.S. "Rajendra" and D.M.E.T. are as follows :

Age Limit : Candidate must have completed 16 years of age and must not have exceeded 20 years on September 1 of the year of entry. Eligibility : A candidate is eligible provided he has passed intermediate science examination of any University with mathematics and physics.

The pre-entry qualification for engineering cadets for entry into D.M.E.T. is a pass in higher secondary examination or equivalent of a recognised board of secondary examination or a University in the science stream with physics, chemistry and mathematics as elective subjects. The duration of the course is 4 years.

The Lal Bahadur Shastri Nautical and Engineering College at Hay Bunder, Tank Road, Bombay 400033 provides post-sea training instructional courses for both navigating and engineering officers and apprentices who are preparing for Ministry of Transport Certificates of Competency Examinations. There is a Life Boat School attached to the college.

Candidates with the requisite educational qualifications and within the age group prescribed for "Rajendra" and D.M.E.T. training are also admitted by shipping companies as Direct Entry Cadets. The Shipping Corpn. of India and the Great Eastern Shipping Company have established special pre-sea training schemes of their own for such cadets.

SPACE RESEARCH

THE Indian Space Programme began in the year 1962 when the Indian National Committee for Space Research (INCOSPAR) was formed in the Department of Atomic Energy of the Government of India. In 1969, the Indian Space Research Organisation (ISRO) was created to plan, manage and execute the nation's growing activities in Space Science, Space Technology and Space Applications.

The Government of India established the Space Commission in June 1972, backed by the Department of Space (DOS) and entrusted DOS with the responsibility for conducting India's space programme. ISRO functions under DOS as its research and development organisation.

The Space Commission, the Department of Space and the Indian Space Research Organisation have their Headquarters in Bangalore. (For personnel see chapter on Central Government Administrative Personnel.)

The primary aims of the Indian Space Programme are the application of space science and technology to further national developmental objectives in mass communication and education via satellites; the survey and management of natural resources through remote sensing technology from space platforms and the development of space technology with the maximum degree of self-reliance.

The activities of ISRO are carried out at its four Space Centres : 1. Vikram Sarabhai Space Centre (VSSC), Trivandrum, Kerala ; 2. ISRO Satellite Centre (ISAC), Bangalore, Karnataka ; 3. SHAR Centre, Sriharikota, Andhra Pradesh ; 4. Space Applications Centre, Ahmedabad, Gujarat.

In addition, DOS provides major support to the Physical Research Laboratory (PRL) at Ahmedabad which is India's prime centre for research in space sciences.

Vikram Sarabhai Space Centre (VSSC) : Named after the late Prof. Vikram A. Sarabhai, the founder of the Indian space programme, VSSC encompasses all aspects of work related to the development of sounding rockets and satellite launch vehicles, scientific and technological payloads, ground-based and vehicle-borne instrumentation and production facilities for propellants and rocket hardware. VSSC is developing the Menaka and Rohini (including Centaure) series of sounding rockets for meteorological and scientific investigations of the upper atmosphere, respectively, and a satellite launch vehicle called SLV-3. SLV-3, a four-stage solid propellant rocket, is designed to place a 40 kgs. satellite, called Rohini (RS-1) into an elliptical orbit of 300 kms. perigee and 885 kms. apogee with a maximum lifetime of 100 days. SLV-3 will be about 23 metres in length and its maximum diameter will be one metre and expected to be launched from Sriharikota by the end of 1979. The RS-1, polyhedral in shape and weighing about 40 kgs. is the first of the Rohini series of satellites which will be launched by SLV-3.

The Space Science and Technology Centre (SSTC of the VSSC is the main research and development laboratory. Solid propellant for the rockets is produced at the Rocket Propellant Plant while the rockets and other hardware are manufactured at the Rocket Fabrication Facility (RFF). The Propellant Fuel Complex (PFC) produces special materials required for the processing of propellants. Liquid propellants for rockets have also been develope on a laboratory scale.

VSSC operates and maintains the Thumba Equatoria Rocket Launching Station (TERLS) which has been recognised by the United Nations Organisation as an international facility for sounding rocket experiments to investigate problems of meteorology and ionosphere over the geomagnetic equator running close to Thumba and for other experiments. Since November 1963, when the range became operational, more than 500 sounding rockets of different makes have been launched for meteorologica ionospheric, aeronomic and astronomical studies. Scientists from France, Federal Republic of Germany, Japan the UK, the USA and the USSR have participated, in co-operation with their Indian counterparts, in many of these experiments.

ISRO Satellite Centre (ISAC) : ISAC is responsible for the design, fabrication and integration of spacecraft and the development of satellite technology. The first Indian satellite, Aryabhata, named after the famous ancient Indian astronomer and mathematician, was designed and fabricated by this Centre. Aryabhata, a 360-kg. satellite was launched on April 19, 1975 into a near-circular orbit of 600 kms. at an inclination of 51° to the equator from a Soviet cosmodrome using a Soviet rocket. The ground stations, one at Bears Lake near Moscow and the other at SHAR Centre were used for command and data reception purposes. The spin-stabilised satellite survived in orbit well beyond the design lifetime of six months owing to low rate of spin decay. All technological systems on board the satellite have been functioning well.

With the launching of Aryabhata, India has acquired indigenous capability in satellite technology, namely to design and fabricate space worthy system and evaluate its performance in orbit, evolve the methodology of conducting a series of complex operations on the satellite and set up the necessary receiving, transmitting and tracking systems besides the establishment of the infrastructure for fabrication of satellite systems.

The second Indian satellite designated 'Satellite for Earth Observations (SEO)' will obtain useful information in the areas of hydrology, forestry, oceanography and meteorology. SEO was to be launched from the Soviet Union in 1978. The mission control centre is located at the SHAR Centre and the ground stations at Trivandrum and Ahmedabad will receive signals from SEO.

Rohini Satellites (RS-I) : The primary mission of RS-1 is to evaluate the performance of SLV-3, its dynamic characteristics, the trajectory of the vehicle and the orbital characteristics of the satellites.

Apple Satellite: ISAC is also responsible for the development of a 616 kgs. three-axis stabilised geostationary experimental communication satellite called 'APPLE'. The communications payload for the satellite will be built at the Space Applications Centre, Ahmedabad. Certain important sub-systems such as Apogee Boost Motor and secondary propulsion will be built at VSSC. A project, the Indian Experimental Satellite for Communication has been organised for building the APPLE spacecraft, and design activities and the establishment of facilities are underway. The satellite is expected to be launched by an Ariane test flight of the European Space Agency in 1980.

SHAR Centre : The SHAR Centre at Sriharikota island, off India's east coast, is about 100 kms. north of Madras city. It is being developed as a range for launching large multistage sounding rockets and satellite launch vehicles. Facilities to launch sounding rockets up to 560 mm in diameter have been established and these are being expanded for launching larger and heavier rockets. The augmented facilities will be used for flight-testing different stage combinations of SLV-3.

A satellite launch complex, along with supporting facilities is being established and is expected to be ready soon for flight-tests of SLV-3. To meet the propellant requirements of large vehicles, a plant with an annual production capacity of 250 tonnes of solid propellants, with provision for further expansion, has been set up. A comprehensive test facility for conducting various ground tests of rocket motors and sub-systems has been set up at Sriharikota.

Space Applications Centre (SAC) is engaged in the planning and execution of the space application projects of ISRO. Its objective is to apply space science and technology to practical uses. To achieve this goal SAC has taken up work in : telecommunications and television broadcasting and reception via satellites ; use of remote sensing techniques to survey natural and renewable earth resources ; studies in space meteorology and satellite geodesy.

This Centre conducted the Satellite Instructional Television Experiment (SITE), the year-long (August 1st, 1975 to July 31st, 1976) experiment in direct broadcast of television programmes via the NASA satellite, ATS-6.

Community TV sets were installed in 2,400 villages in Rajasthan, Bihar, Orissa, Madhya Pradesh, Karnataka and Andhra Pradesh and instructional programmes were beamed directly via the satellite.

Under an agreement between ISRO and the Symphonie, one of the two transponders aboard the Franco-West German 'Symphonie' satellite with a bandwidth of 90 MHz, has been made available for Indian experiments in satellite telecommunications for two years beginning from June 1977. This is known as the Satellite Telecommunications Experiments Project (STEP) and is being executed as a joint project of ISRO and the Posts and Telegraphs Department of the Ministry of Communications. Under STEP, experiments in remote area communications using transportable terminals, radio-networking, emergency communications, digital communications, multiple access, integration of satellite circuits into terrestrial networks and multiple audio-video transmissions will be conducted. The project is mainly aimed at providing a system test of geo-synchronous communication satellite and sharpen India's expertise in the design, development, fabrication and operation of communication systems involving geo-stationary satellite.

The ground network for STEP consists of the following terminals : The earth stations at Ahmedabad, Delhi and Madras ; Transportable Remote Area Communication Terminal (TRACT) and, the Emergency Communication Terminal.

Except for the Madras Earth Station, the modification, fabrication and operation of all other stations are the responsibilities of ISRO. ISRO has fabricated the antenna system and the high-power amplifier for the Madras Earth Station. The Ahmedabad and Delhi Earth Stations are existing stations which have been modified for STEP. TRACT was fabricated at SAC and was tested with ATS-6 in July 1976. The Emergency Communication Terminal, a miniaturised and ruggedised communication system, is mounted on a jeep in such a way that it can be detached easily and the whole container air-lifted in emergencies like natural calamities when the terrestrial communication system is disrupted.

One important area of activity of SAC is the remote sensing of natural and renewable resources. ISRO and the Indian Council of Agricultural Research (ICAR) conducted, during 1974-75, a joint experiment called the Agricultural Resources Inventory and Survey Experiment (ARISE) employing remote sensing techniques to assess crops and land-use pattern. Aerial flights using Hasselblad cameras were conducted over Anantapur district of Andhra Pradesh and Patiala district of Punjab. The results indicated that the level of details regarding agricultural features, land-use pattern, etc., which remote sensing data can give is far higher than the published and available DES (Directorate of Economics and Statistics, Ministry of Agriculture) data. This has important implications in planning at the micro level. Photo-interpretation of the imageries taken have been done and classifications of crops and of land-use pattern pertaining to orchards, forests, fallow lands, agricultural lands and water bodies have been made. Analysis and interpretation of the data collected are in progress.

The remote sensing techniques can be applied for a wide range of purposes such as collection of data relating to agriculture (crop vigour, crop census, classification of soil, etc.), detection of minerals, management of water resources, forest inventories and meteorological studies. SAC is developing sensors for use from balloons, aircraft and spacecraft to collect data for these applications. Some of these sensors are : infra-red scanner, multispectral scanner, microwave radiometer and the vidicon TV camera.

About ten remote sensing experiments have so far been conducted to study aspects of agriculture and landscape features over sites in Pune, Bombay, Sriharikota island, Jaipur, Bangalore, Anantapur district in Andhra Pradesh, Patiala district in Punjab and Panchmahals district in Gujarat.

INSAT : The Department of Space, in close co-operation with the Ministries of Communications, Tourism and Civil Aviation and Information and Broadcasting, has initiated the establishment of the Indian National Satellite (INSAT) System. The INSAT system is a multi-purpose operational space system providing telecommunications, meteorology and television services from a common satellite in geostationary orbit. The proposed system envisages a very significant telecommunications component providing for long distance telephony, communication with remote areas and islands and emergency communications. The proposed meteorological capability includes 24-hour observation of weather system, data collection and relay from remote unattended platforms and a disaster warning. Television capability relates both to direct TV broadcasting from satellite to community TV sets in rural areas and to radio networking. The Government of India has approved the implementation of the INSAT-I system. It is expected to be operational sometime in the first quarter of 1981.

ESCES : SAC operates the Experimental Satellite Communications Earth Station (ESCES), Ahmedabad, which is an international Centre for training in satellite telecommunications technology.

STARS : The Satellite Tracking and Ranging Station (STARS) was formally inaugurated on January 23, 1977 at Kavalur in Tamil Nadu. In addition to the tracking cameras there is also a ranging laser at the station. Equipment for this station has been supplied by the USSR Academy of Sciences. The station is located at the campus of the observatory of the Indian Institute of Astrophysics at Kavalur. Using this facility it will be possible to determine orbits of our own satellites accurately and also the data collected by this station will be useful for geodetic purposes.

PRL : The Physical Research Laboratory has been the cradle of Space Science in India and is being further developed as a national centre in this field. Its activities are supported mainly by DOS. PRL conducts basic research in many areas of space sciences for understanding the structure and dynamics of the earth's upper atmosphere, the solar terrestrial relationship and astrophysical problems. For these studies, data are collected through laboratory experiments, ground based observations and measurements with rocket-borne instruments. PRL scientists participate in many rocket-borne experiments at TERLS. They also use the data received from various orbiting scientific satellites of other countries. Investigations on lunar samples and meteorites, and laboratory studies of plasma for understanding certain ionospheric phenomena and astrophysical problems are also conducted at PRL. Climatological and hydrological studies are also undertaken.

Sponsored Research : Various universities and academic institutions in the country are identified and encouraged by ISRO to undertake research and development studies in Space Science, Space Technology and Applications relevant to the Indian Space Programmes.

PROGRAMME

THE Indian atomic energy programme was launched chiefly to supplement the limited conventional energy resources to meet the long term electricity needs of the country, to produce nuclear power and to utilise nuclear techniques in agriculture, industry, medicine and other areas. The Atomic Energy Commission was constituted in 1948 as the policy making body of the Government of India for the development and utilisation of atomic energy.

The Atomic Energy Establishment was set up at Trombay in 1957 (renamed in 1967 as Bhabha Atomic Research Centre) for carrying out research in basic sciences, development of nuclear technologies based on indigenous resources, and demonstration of their economic viability.

The production of nuclear fuels, control instruments, reactor components, plant and machinery, research equipments, high purity metals and materials required for the atomic energy programme is undertaken either under the aegis of the Department of Atomic Energy or by the industry with active encouragement through scientific and technical assistance from the Department.

Over the last few years, the Department has placed considerable emphasis on the following areas in addition to its main task of nuclear research and development producing commercial nuclear power and applying nuclear techniques to agriculture, industry, medicine etc. These activities are :

(a) Training and development of personnel in different fields of science and technology related to the atomic energy programme.

(c) Transfer of technology from research centres to industry in several non-nuclear areas.

(d) Planning and implementation of pilot level and semi-commercial demonstration projects to extend the benefits of atomic energy in industry, medicine, agriculture and research.

(e) Assistance, both financial and otherwise, to various academic and other institutions for promoting research and other activities that are beneficial to the atomic energy programme.

ATOMIC ENERGY ESTABLISHMENTS

The Bhabha Atomic Research Centre, Trombay which was set up as the Atomic Energy Establishment in 1957 and renamed in 1967, is the national centre for research and development work in nuclear energy and related disciplines. Its facilities include four research reactors, namely, Cirus (40 MW), Apsara (1 MW), Zerlina (a zero energy thermal reactor), and Purnima (a zero energy fast reactor), a 5·5 MeV Van de Graaff accelerator, a H-400 computer, a BESM-6 computer, and various special laboratories. It also has a uranium metal plant, a fuel element fabrication plant, a plutonium plant etc.

The Reactor Research Centre has been set up at Kalpakkam, Tamil Nadu, adjacent to the Madras Atomic Power Station. The most important facility in this Centre will be the Fast Breeder Test Reactor which will provide experience in the design, construction and operation of a plutonium-fuelled, sodium-cooled fast reactor. It will also serve as an irradiation facility which is essential for developing fuel for the large fast breeder reactors of the future. The other facilities at the Reactor Research Centre will help in the construction and operation of the Fast Breeder Test Reactor and use of the test reactor for studies in connection with future fast breeders.

The Gauribidanur Seismic Station (of the Bhabha Atomic Research Centre), 80 kilometres north of Bangalore, was set up towards the end of 1965 in collaboration with the U.K. Atomic Energy Authority. It has an array of 2 short-period seismographs and 3 long-period seismographs deployed over an area of 25 km × 25 km. It helps in the detection and identification of underground nuclear explosions and also facilitates seismic research.

The Nangal Heavy Water Plant in the Punjab operated in conjunction with the Nangal Plant of the Fertilizer Corporation of India, was commissioned in August, 1962. It has an annual capacity of about 14 to

The Kota Plant being built by the Department of Atomic Energy next to the Rajasthan Atomic Power Station will produce about 100 tonnes of heavy water a year. The plant is based on the know-how generated by BARC.

The Baroda Plant based on the ammonia hydrogen exchange process developed by a French consortium, is linked to the synthesis gas stream of the Gujarat Corporation plant. Its capacity is 67·2 tonnes of heavy water a year.

The Tuticorin Plant will be similar to the Baroda Plant and will be linked to the fertilizer plant of the Southern Petrochemical Industries Corporation. Its capacity will be 71·3 tonnes of heavy water per year.

The Talcher Plant, equipment and know-how for which are being obtained from a West German firm, will use the synthesis gas stream of the Ammonia Plant being set up at Talcher by the Fertilizer Corporation of India. It will produce 62·7 tonnes of heavy water a year.

The Nuclear Fuel Complex in Hyderabad which is designed to meet the fuel requirements of nuclear power reactors consists of the following: 1. Zirconium Oxide Plant. 2. Zirconium Sponge Plant. 3. Zircaloy Fabrication Plant. 4. Uranium Oxide Plant. 5. Ceramic Fuel Fabrication Plant. 6. Enriched Uranium Oxide Plant. 7. Enriched Fuel Fabrication Plant. 8. Special Materials Plant. Its fields of research include: electron microscopy, EPR spectroscopy, mass spectrometry, microwave absorption spectroscopy, molecular biology, NMR spectroscopy, NCR spectroscopy, nuclear activation, nuclear reactions, nuclear spectroscopy, radiochemistry, solid state physics, structural crystallography, technical physics and theoretical nuclear physics.

GENERAL SURVEY

The Power Reactor Fuel Reprocessing Plant at Tarapur, which is wholly indigenous in design and construction, is complete and is already on an initial run reprocessing spent fuel.

The Variable Energy Cyclotron (VEC), Calcutta, was commissioned for the internal beam. A circulating beam of alpha particles accelerated to energies where it can produce radioactivity in copper, was first obtained at 6 a.m. on June 16, 1977. During the subsequent runs, alpha particles were accelerated upto the full radius of 99 cms, which is the design radius for the extraction of the beam outside the cyclotron chamber. The complete assembly was done by BARC entirely indigenously with the assistance of some of the leading public and private sector industries in the country. The programme for obtaining an external beam is continuing.

The 100 MW thermal research reactor project (R–5), with 100 per cent indigenous design and detailed engineering, is progressing at Trombay. Its building superstructure upto the roof level is almost complete and major components such as the reactor vessel, coolant channel assemblies etc. are under fabrication. The reactor will give great impetus to research and development activities in the country in the fields of nuclear engineering, physics, chemistry, activation analysis and biology. It will also produce radioisotopes of specific activities higher than what is hitherto possible at Trombay.

Another important R & D project on hand is Magneto-hydrodynamics (MHD) Power Generation. Located at Tiruchirapalli, the Project is a joint venture of BARC and Bharat Heavy Electricals Ltd. The MHD technique relates to the direct conversion of thermal energy to electrical power. The technology is expected to improve the thermal efficiency of fossil-fired power plants from the present 30–40 per cent to 50 per cent, and even higher.

A computer based control system, for operating fuelling machines of the pressurised heavy water (PHW) type of reactors which are at the Rajasthan Atomic Power Project and under construction at Kalpakkam and Narora, has been developed during the year. This is the first sophisticated computerised control system wholly developed in the country and marks a major advance towards eventual computer control of a nuclear reactor.

BARC has also built and commissioned a flash X-ray generator in a national laboratory at Chandigarh. The flash X-rays have many applications in high-speed radiography, pulse radiolysis and X-ray cinematography.

Production of wide range of radioisotope preparations and associated equipment is a major activity at the BARC. During the year the Centre supplied over 40,000 consignments of various radioactive products to users in India and abroad.

Important developments in this area include installation of a 50,000 curies cobalt–60 panoramic batch irradiator at Baliapatam, Kerala and receipt of an order for the supply and installation of a similar unit with 75,000 curies of cobalt–60, on a turn-key basis, at the Pasar Jumar Research Centre, Indonesia. A scale-up process for wood-polymer composite has also been developed. This process will help the country tide over the scarcity of high-grade timber by upgrading the inferior native timbers with monomer impregnation and gamma irradiation. The Nuclear Research Laboratory at Srinagar, has also been carrying on radiation polymerisation studies on cheap and fast growing local woods, willow and poplar, to assess the commercial feasibility of using them in the wood-carving industry.

Isomed, the radiation sterilisation plant at Trombay, sterilised a total of 1,130 cu.m. of various medical products during the year. Some 1,50,000 ready-to-use surgical kits were also supplied by it for use in minor surgical operations.

Trombay Groundnut (TG) strains were multiplied in Saurashtra, Maharashtra, Madhya Pradesh and Andhra Pradesh. About 2,000 tonnes of improved seeds were raised for further distribution. Yield studies have shown that TG–17 is suitable for Gujarat and TG–3 for Madhya Pradesh.

Five Trombay Jute (TJ) mutants were grown at different locations in Eastern India along with check varieties in yield trials under the All India Co-ordinated Programme on Jute and Allied Fibres. One of them (TJ–32), gave 26 per cent more fibre yield compared to the highest yielding check variety. Two other mutants were also found to be significantly superior to the best check variety.

As a follow-up of the work on uranium exploration (BARC-TEFUREX) developed earlier, a field study was conducted in Romehra in Himachal Pradesh. The results obtained in this area and other areas surveyed earlier are promising enough to encourage massive application of this technique all over the country.

The country-wide personnel monitoring service for evaluating radiation exposure covered around 45,000 workers from nearly 2,400 institutions. The country-wide radiological protection surveys, covering source-loading operations of teletherapy units also, were conducted in 138 institutions consisting of 113 medical, 19 industrial and 6 research institutions.

The city was inaugurated as the capital of the Punjab by President Dr. Rajendra Prasad on October 7, 1953.

The Central Government will also acquire powers to give directions to the Governments of the two States to regulate land use in the surrounding areas declared as "controlled areas". Chandigarh will continue to be the capital of both the States of Punjab and Haryana". On November 1, 1966 the Union Territory of Chandigarh came into being in accordance with the Constitution (18th Amendment) Act providing for the linguistic re-organisation of the Punjab.

HOUSING

BACKGROUND : There were 93 million houses used for residential purposes partially or fully to house 548 million people during 1971. These included 32·2 million semi-pucca houses and 34·8 million katcha houses.

The total number of households in 1970 was 97·0 million — 78·0 million in rural areas and 19·0 million in urban areas. Their numbers rose to 103·1 million at the beginning of the Fifth Five Year Plan in 1974 — 81·4 million in rural areas and 21·7 million in urban areas. It is estimated that the growth of population alone demands 2 million dwelling units every year.

Shortage : The shortage of housing units at the beginning of the Fifth Plan on the criterion that (i) every household in urban areas should have a pucca house or semi-pucca house; and (ii) every household in rural areas should have a pucca, semi-pucca, or serviceable katcha house has been estimated by the National Building Organisation at 15·6 million units — 11·8 million in rural areas and 3·8 million in urban areas respectively at the beginning of the Fifth Five Year Plan.

Rate of Construction : The net annual addition to housing stock is estimated at 1·67 million units — 0·60 million units in urban areas and 1·07 million units in rural areas.

House Sites: It is estimated that nearly 11·4 million families are eligible for allotment of house-sites under the scheme of provision of house-sites to landless workers in rural areas. Upto the end of August, 1977, about 7·3 million families were allotted house-sites.

The Problem : In the last decade there has been a large influx into urban areas. Six of the 9 large urban agglomerations, each having more than a million population, recorded between 43·5 per cent and 63 per cent increase in population during 1961-71. Towns with population of 100,000 recorded a 52 per cent increase during the same period. Whilst on an all India basis the urban population increased at the rate of 38 per cent.

The average number of persons per room in some larger cities of India are given in the table below :

Household Incomes: Family incomes, naturally, play a great part in a family's ability to acquire or afford a home. Incomes of families in urban areas are much higher than families in rural areas. For instance in Greater Bombay 56 per cent families have an income of less than Rs. 350 a month and 28 per cent less than Rs. 600 a month.

In the Asansol Industrial area of West Bengal 80 per cent families earned less than Rs. 350 a month and 19 per cent less than Rs. 600.

Household Expenditure: It is observed that an increasing amount of a family's income goes towards the purchase of food alone. A low income family's inability to pay for shelter can be seen from the expenditure pattern of the various income groups compiled by the Town and Country Planning Organisation, New Delhi. The survey covers South Delhi and is deemed to be representative for all major urban areas of the country.

Cooperative Housing : It is estimated that upto the end of June 1977, 28,900 co-operative housing societies with 1·8 million members would have constructed 440,000 houses.

The Overseas Communications Service (OCS), a Department of the Government of India, Ministry of Communications is responsible for all external telecommunications services of India. The services are provided through its four gateway centres at Bombay, New Delhi, Calcutta and Madras.

Nearly 99 per cent of the international telephone calls, 98 per cent of telex calls and 77 per cent of telegrams are carried via high quality international satellite communications system. The Vikram Satellite Earth Station at Arvi near Pune and the Ahmed Satellite Earth Station at Dehra Dun of O.C.S. work with the INTELSAT Satellite in the Indian Ocean Region. O.C.S. has direct satellite links to 21 countries.

O.C.S. provides a wide variety of international telecommunication services like phototelegraph, high speed data, leased telegraph channels, news broadcasts, etc. in addition to conventional public telephone, telex and telegraph services. Telephone service is available to 197 countries, telex service to 178 countries and telegraph service to practically any destination in the world. 75 customers (international trading houses, airlines, banks, etc.) are provided with international leased telegraph channels.

The bulk of international telephone service is at present operated in the semi-automatic mode. BROADCASTING History : Organised broadcasting was started in India in 1927 by private, Indian Broadcasting Company from Bombay and Calcutta. This lasted till 1930. Government of India decided to run radio stations in 1932. In 1935, broadcasting was constituted into a separate department. All India Radio replaced the earlier Indian State Broadcasting Service on June 3, 1936. Real break in broadcasting came with World War II. Most of the news services and external services originated during the war years.

Akashvani : All India Radio operates this service over a network of broadcasting stations located throughout the country. It caters to the complex needs of all communities in the country.

Broadcasting constitutes the most powerful medium of mass communication covering 85 per cent of our population. At the end of February, 1977, there were 80 broadcasting centres with 151 transmitters in India.

Commercial Broadcasting : Commercial services were started in November, 1967.

The National Harbour Board : The Board advises the Central Government on matters of general policy relating to port management and development including the effects on industry, commerce, shipping, railways etc. so as to ensure integrated consideration of all important port matters.

LIGHTHOUSES : There are 328 lighthouses, 8 light-vessels, 13 fog signals, 7 M.F. radio beacons, 2 harbour control radars, 2 Decca navigator chains and several hundreds of lighted and un-lighted beacons, land marks etc. serving as aids to navigation — strewn over the coastline of approximately 6,915 kms. including Andaman, Nicobar and Lakshadweep Islands.

BOMBAY : The port of Bombay owns landed estates extending over 761 hectares from Pilot Bunder to Wadala and the docks cover an area of 283 hectares. Sassoon Dock has a water area of 1·5 hectares and limited facilities for five ships of 1,000 tonnes.

Besides the docks there are a number of " Bunders " or open wharves along the harbour front with a total quayage of about 12·5 kms.

The port maintains its own railway system which serves the docks, ten local stations and a large number of sidings on the Port Trust estates. It also connects the main line railways.

Proposal for a satellite port at Nhava-Sheva is expected to be included in the Sixth Plan.

CALCUTTA : There are two docks, known as Kidderpore Dock and Netaji Subhas Dock. The third and subsidiary deep water modern dock at Haldia meant for handling bulk carriers and bigger vessels has been undergoing trial operations in respect of shipment of ore and coal. Other berths for handling phosphate, salt, sulphur, general cargo and containers will be opened to shipping in phases. A river-side oil jetty, a part of Haldia Dock complex, was commissioned in 1968. There are five dry docks — two in Netaji Subhas Dock, and three in Kidderpore Dock I.

RAILWAYS

HISTORY: First railway (consisting of 14 four-wheeled teak coaches carrying 400 passengers) in India ran over a distance of 33·6 kms. from Bombay to Thana on 16th April, 1853. Development of rail communications, however, took place after 1858. Upto the revolt in 1857, railway was practically unknown, except for a few miles around Bombay, Calcutta and Madras.

The revolt highlighted the need for proper communications. Thus by 1871 a general system connecting the different provinces and the hinterland of each province with its ports was completed.

Zonal Administration: The entire Government Railway system is now grouped into nine administrations (Headquarters within brackets): Southern Railway (Madras); Western Railway (Bombay); Central Railway (Bombay); Northern Railway (Delhi); Eastern Railway (Calcutta); South-Eastern Railway (Calcutta); North-Eastern Railway (Gorakhpur); North-East Frontier Railway (Maligaon, Gauhati); South Central Railway (Secunderabad).

New trains introduced during 1977-78: Tatanagar-Muzaffarpur Express (Tri-weekly); Tirupati-Hyderabad-Rayalaseema Express; Madras-Madurai Vaigai Express; Howrah-Bombay Geetanjali Express (Bi-weekly); Madras-Ahmedabad Navjivan Express and Jaipur-Bikaner Express (metre gauge).

Ticketless Travel : In 1976-77 the railways arrested 3·47 million ticketless travellers and 2,576 corrupt members of railway staff. The railways earned Rs. 25·40 million from fines levied on ticketless travellers.

Pilferages : There were 82,926 cases of pilferages during 1977–78 against 86,985 during 1976–77. The Railways paid Rs. 54·70 million as compensation in 1977–78 against Rs. 54·60 million in 1976–77.

ROADS

Length of Roads in April, 1975 : 1,188,000 kms.

Unmetalled Roads : 694,740 kms.

Above total includes 189,000 kms. of tracks made by Community Development projects.

National Highways : The Union Government is responsible for the system of National highways formed in 1947. There are 55 roads classified as National Highways in India. Total 28,682 kms.

These are : (1) Delhi–Amritsar (2) Jullundur–Srinagar-Uri (3) Delhi–Calcutta (4) Agra–Bombay (5) Thane-Pune–Bangalore–Madras (6) Cuttack–Madras (7) Dhule–Calcutta (8) Banaras–Cape Comorin (9) Delhi–Ahmedabad–Bombay (10) Ahmedabad–Kandla (11) Rajkot–Porbandar (12) Pune–Vijayawada (13) Delhi–Fazilka–Pakistan (14) Agra–Bikaner (15) Jabalpur–Bhopal–Bisra (16) Solapur–Chitaldurg (17) Ambala–Simla–Tibet (18) Delhi–Lucknow (19) Lucknow–Shivpuri (20) Jhansi–Lakhnadon (21) Allahabad–Mangawan (22) Barauni–Lucknow (23) Pipra–Raxaul–Nepal (24) Gorakhpur–Banaras (25) Mohania–Patna–Bhaktiarpur (26) Bahi–Cooch Behar (27) Sivok–Gandak (28) North Salmara to river Brahmaputra (29) Jamshedpur–Gobindpur (30) Randhi–Tatanagar (31) Dalkhola–Behrampore–Calcutta (32) Barasat–Bangaon–Pakistan (33) Goalpara–Gauhati–Saikhoa Ghat (34) Makum–Lekhapani (35) Kamargaon–Imphal–Burma (36) Jorhat–Shillong–Bangladesh (37) Kolaghat–Haldia (38) Sambalpur–Cuttack (39) Raipur–Vizianagaram (40) Madras–Dindigul (41) Krishnagiri–Ranipet (42) Ernakulam–Cape Comorin (43) Madurai–Dhanushkodi (44) Nasik–Pune (45) Belgaum–Panaji (46) Haridaspur–Paradip Port (47) Chandigarh–Manali (48) Nowgong–Manipur Road (49) Shillong–Agartala (50) Palayam Kottai–Turicorin (51) Pathankot–Kandla (52) Panvel–Panaji–Mangalore–Trichur (53) Cortalim–Mormugao (54) Rourkela–Talchar (55) Bangalore–Hassan–Mangalore.

During the 28 years ending March 1975, 13,000 kms. of National Highways have been widened to 2-lane carriageways; 231 major bridges have also been built.

Fifth Plan : An investment of Rs. 3,276 million on development of National Highways has been proposed for the Fifth Plan period. Rs. 2,529 million would be spillover from the Fourth Plan. The government proposed to spend Rs. 650 million on conversion of National Highways around big cities to four-lane traffic. During the period 1974-79, it was hoped that 4,000 kms. would be converted to four-lane ones and advance work on 3,800 kms. would also be done but the allocation for National Highways has since been reduced from Rs. 4,810 million to Rs. 3,276 million. So these targets will not now be achieved.

State-wise length of National Highways (in kms. as in April, 1975).

Andhra 2,372; Assam 1,365; Bihar 2,117; Gujarat 1,352; Haryana 682; Karnataka 1,968; Kerala 772; Madhya Pradesh 2,676; Maharashtra 2,848; Meghalaya 217; Nagaland 103; Orissa 1,687; Punjab 667; Rajasthan 2,089; Sikkim 62; Tamil Nadu 1,804; Uttar Pradesh 2,466; West Bengal 1,637; Himachal Pradesh 594; Manipur 211; Tripura 123; Jammu & Kashmir 534; Union Territories 326. Total length 28,682 kms.

Express Highways : Four express highways have been built for fast movement of traffic. Two are in Bombay, the Eastern and Western Express highways. The third runs between Calcutta and Dum Dum airport, the fourth between Sukinda mines to Paradip port in Orissa. The fifth, almost 100 kms. long will connect Durgapur to Calcutta. Work on the last is in progress.

International Highways : There are two categories of International highways. The first are the main arterial routes linking the capitals of the countries and, the second, routes joining main cities, ports etc. with the arterial network.

The main arterial highway links India with Lahore in Pakistan and Mandalay in Burma running through Amritsar-Delhi-Agra-Calcutta-Golaghat-Imphal. The two link highways are one through Agra-Gwalior-Hyderabad-Bangalore to Danushkodi and the other from Barhi to Kathmandu. The other links will be Agra-Bombay; Delhi-Multan; Bangalore-Madras and Golaghat-Ledo.

* Excluding lengths of cart tracks not regularly maintained. India has the largest network of National Highways in Asia.

Road traffic in 1973-74 was more than 6 times that of 1951 in the passenger-bus field and nearly 10 times in the field of goods haulage. The extent to which the road system needs to be improved to cater to the traffic demands can be seen from the fact that bad roads are costing the country about Rs. 2,000 million annually in increased wear and tear of vehicles and additional fuel consumption.

Nationalised Transport : Nationalised bus service almost cover the major parts of Gujarat, Maharashtra, Orissa, Manipur and Himachal Pradesh.

No nationalisation has taken place in Goa and Pondicherry, but in the remaining parts of the country the extent to which services have been nationalised varies from one State to another.

In the country as a whole the number of nationalised buses increased from 26,494 in 1966 to 52,157 in 1976.

The freight transport is operated by certain State transport organisations such as those in Assam, Orissa, Uttar Pradesh, Jammu and Kashmir, Sikkim, Tripura and Himachal Pradesh and also by the Central Road Transport Corporation. The number of goods lorries operated by nationalised concerns is, however, less than one per cent of the total goods vehicles in India.

MUNICIPAL CORPORATIONS (1978)

CIVIC rule in India is a little over a hundred years old. Now there are 1,500 Municipal Councils and 35 Municipal Corporations in India. They are functioning at : Agra, Ahmedabad, Allahabad, Bangalore, Bhopal, Bombay, Calcutta, Calicut, Chandranagore, Cochin, Delhi, Gangtok, Gauhati, Gwalior, Hubli-Dharwar, Hyderabad, Indore, Jabalpur, Kanpur, Kolhapur, Lucknow, Madras, Madurai, Nagpur, Patna, Pune, Raipur, Rajkot, Solapur, Simla, Surat, Trivandrum, Ujjain, Vadodara and Varanasi.

As a general rule the Municipal Councils and Municipal Corporations are established in towns having a population of more than 20,000 and cities having a population of more than 300,000 respectively.

The State Government makes an assessment of the revenue and population of the town/city through the district collector prior to the establishment of the Municipal Council/Corporation.

When a city's revenue exceeds Rs. 20 million, the Council representing the city is upgraded with the concurrence and approval of the State Government.

In fact it is the responsibility of the States to establish Municipal Councils and Corporations. Schedule 7 of the Constitution of India, elucidates this point. The rules and regulations and powers of the Municipal Councils and Corporations vary from State to State.

The following table gives vital statistics of the four major Corporations — Bombay, Calcutta, Delhi and Madras.

NEWSPAPER STATISTICS

BRIEF HISTORY : Press had its beginnings in India when the first newspaper, a weekly double sheet called "Bengal Gazette", was started by James Augustus Hickey on January 29, 1780 at Serampore near Calcutta.

Many other newspapers followed in quick succession (19 were started before the end of the century). Most of these were in English and were published, edited and read by Englishmen. In spite of their interesting editorial contents which consisted of political and private scandals the newspaper circulation did not exceed 100.

The first Indian owned newspaper the "Bengal Gazette" was published by Gangadhar Bhattacharjee in 1816 (Price Re. 1/-). Many independent and well-conducted papers flourished during the administration of Governor-General Lord Hastings, who adopted a liberal policy of self-censorship for the press in 1818. One such magazine was "Calcutta Journal" a bi-weekly with a circulation of 1,000.

However, a revision of policy by John Adam in 1823 necessitated the closure of "Calcutta Journal". Later under liberals like William Bentinck who replaced John Adam in 1828 and Sir Charles Metcalf who succeeded Bentinck press in India enjoyed greater freedom.

Many other Indian language newspapers were started between 1816–1822. "Shri-Mumbai-na-Samachar", started as a Gujarati weekly in 1822, by Fardoonji Marzban. It became a daily in 1832 and is the forerunner of the oldest living newspaper today, the "Bombay Samachar".

In Bengal between 1818 and 1855 as many as 99 newspapers and periodicals were started. The average life of each of these publications was 5 years. During the same period only 10 newspapers were published in the north and an insignificant number in the south.

The first railway line in 1853 and the first telegraph line in 1851 contributed to the growth and dissemination of news.

After the mutiny of 1857 restraints on the press were reimposed by Act XV of 1857. Of the 35 publications of 1853, six survived till 1857.

Important Legislation :

1. Act XXV of 1967 — regulating printing presses and newspapers.
2. Vernacular Press Act of 1878 — to restrain the vernacular press. Repealed four years later.
3. Indian Official Secrets Act was passed in 1889.
